PLANE OUTPUT LAGGING 30%, KNUDSEN WARNS

Points to Week-end Plant Shutdowns.

New York, Dec. 13 [Special].—William S. Knudsen, defense commissioner, tonight disclosed that American aircraft output is lagging 30 per cent behind schedule and asserted that a speedup of defense production is imperative.

Knudsen, speaking before the National Association of Manufacturers, contended that week-end factory shutdowns tended to defeat defense production aims.

"Friday night has become the big night in most of our industrial picture," he added. "It used to be Saturday night—we have cut 20 per cent off our machine time. Can we afford to do this?

Urges Defense on War Basis.

"Can't we stop this blackout, this lack of production from Friday to Monday, and get more out of the equipment? We can train the men to operate it. Isn't it possible to put the defense job on a war basis, even if we are at peace?

"When I think of the seriousness of the whole world situation, where the Americas are the only spot where freedom and law still have a foothold, I wonder if we are not justified in doing just that."

Knudsen warned his audience, composed largely of leading industrialists, that any failure on the part of industry and labor to coöperate for the utmost speed in defense production might have grave consequences for the nation.

Tells Faith in Labor.

"I am wholly in sympathy with the rights of labor under the law," the defense commissioner added. "I am happy to see the published expressions by labor of their willingness to mediate any difficulty before resorting to strikes. I also have faith in labor's acceptance of the spirit of fair play and the necessity for avoiding discrimination against industry equally as unfair as discrimination against labor."

[Sidney Hillman, labor member of the defense commission, yesterday protested the award of a war department contract for 1,500 midget scout cars to the Ford Motor company because it contained no stipulation for compliance with the labor laws. Story on page 8.]

Sell Job to Industry and Labor.

Knudsen asserted the public generally is "sold on defense," but he said he wonders whether it has been sufficiently sold to industry and labor.

"Talk to your men," he advised the manufacturers. "Make them feel that it is their responsibility as well as yours. Ask them what they think of a civilization that drives women and children to live in cold wet holes in the ground.

"We have gone back a thousand years in the last year. Why? Because a few individuals decide the actions of totalitarian nations and democracy is fighting for its life. It makes one shudder to think that brains can devise a situation like this—where we kill the harmless to break the spirit of the people.

"Let us work and work harder so that the possibility of such barbarism spreading to our shores will be an impossibility forever."

Reports on Orders Placed.

Knudsen gave an inventory of the important defense materials for which orders have been placed with contractors and subcontractors. These included:

Airplanes, 50,000; engines, 130,000; heavy guns, 17,000; light guns, 25,000; trench mortars, 13,000; loaded shells, 33,000,000; tanks, 9,200; machine guns with ammunition, 300,000; automatic rifles with ammunition, 1,300,000; navy ships, 380; camps and cantonments, 210; government factories, 40; clothing and other equipment for 1,200,000 men.

"I have included with these quantities," he said, "British and other foreign material orders placed at the present time. The program, with all its subcontract and equipment features is large and is estimated to require about 18 billion man hours, conservatively."

Build Four Light Tanks a Day.

He said, however, that guns and machine guns are still in the tooling stage "except for such capacity as was ready before we started." Light tanks are being produced now, he added, at the rate of four a day, and the larger so-called medium tanks

BRITISH PURSUE DUCE'S 'BEATEN' ARMY TO LIBYA

Land, Air and Sea Blitz Described.

CAIRO, Egypt, Dec. 13 (AP).—The great shock power of Britain's forces of the middle east—troops, navy, and air force—was declared today to be driving the last lingering Fascists out of Egypt. The British applied the word "beaten" to the fleeing and much reduced Italian army.

"Only remnants" of the major force led last September by Marshal Rodolfo Graziani into the Egyptian coastline still hold out there, said general headquarters. These were declared to be withdrawing in a desperate rearguard action toward Italian Libya, "closely followed by our advanced troops."

[Reuters, British news agency, reported that the British had seized the entire stock of fuel and food which the Italians had assembled for their Egyptian invasion.]

Captives May Total 30,000.

The capture of uncounted thousands of Italian soldiers, for a total of perhaps 30,000 to 40,000, was reported. The British attempted to give no precise figure officially because of the wide extent of the area of isolated battles—500 square miles of sand and rock. Among these captives were five generals.

The first phase of the British offensive—a spectacular example of desert warfare—was clearly nearing an end. There were signs that after a necessary breather to repair damage to machines and rest the operation of the British troops might be turned into a counterinvasion of Libya.

[Dispatches from London said that the British success had encouraged rebel activity in Italian East Africa, including Ethiopia. British spokesmen said there was possibility that the Italians would lose Ethiopia.]

BRITISH BLITZ IS 3 PLY.

An amazing and spectacular blitzkrieg of less than a week practically annihilated an army of about 80,000 Italians in Egypt.

The British blitz descended upon Premier Mussolini's troops from the sands of the desert and from the air, as did Adolf Hitler's mighty drive on the western front, but it surpassed the German drive in that it also came from the Mediterranean sea.

With this triple form of warfare the British captured Sidi Barrani, main Italian base in Egypt, in three days. The base fell on Wednesday. Thereafter the British, using warships, planes, tanks, and ground troops, were engaged in smashing what little resistance was left.

Story of Panic and Rout.

A vivid picture of how the victory was achieved was gained in dispatches from Cairo and from Associated Press correspondents with the British navy and the British forces operating in the barren desert.

The correspondents witnessed the panic and rout of the disillusioned Italian army—a rout that now seems comparable only to Caporetta in the world war and Guadalajara in the Spanish civil war.

The British navy, said a correspondent aboard a British destroyer, roamed along the coast of Egypt and Libya, engaging in a mighty and continuing bombardment against the fleeing Italians on shore.

Shells from 6 to 15 inches poured from the sea into the ranks of the

Bare Parolees' Record: 22 Executed

SANTA'S CORNER

2 Others, Once Freed, Await Death in Chair

Twenty-two men executed for murder in Cook county during the last 11 years and two others now awaiting death in the electric chair were presented with freedom during their criminal careers thru the parole system or by probation. Fourteen of the 24 were convicted for slaying Chicago policemen.

These figures were made public last night by Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan as a protest against the wholesale freeing of Illinois felons by Gov. John Stelle's board of pardon and paroles. The last monthly order of the board placed 187 convicts outside prison walls.

"Of the 40 persons executed since the electric chair was put in use in Cook county, 23 or 57.5 per cent had been put back on the street thru probation or parole," Chief Sullivan said. "Our records show that not more than 30 per cent of persons convicted for robbery with a gun ever make good citizens after they are paroled.

Burglars Prowl Again.

"From 60 to 70 per cent of convicted burglars prowl again after they are freed. And you must remember that if these parolees continue their crimes uncaught they are considered to have made good by parole officials."

Chief Sullivan recalled that in 1937, when paroles were reduced to a low of 595, robberies in Chicago were reduced to a low of three per day. As paroles increased until they mounted to 1,460 in 1939 the robberies also increased, Chief Sullivan said, until they now average 17 or 18 each 24 hours.

"When we begin to get descriptions of stick-up men as between 30 and 40 years old we know the parolees are at work," the chief declared. "These descriptions are coming in every day. Apparently the wholesale paroles are beginning to show in the crime records"

Murderers Who Benefited.

The list of murderers who benefited by the order of a parole board or a probation ruling and the crimes they committed follow:

Napolian Glover, colored, executed for murder in a robbery on June 21, 1929.

August Vogel, convicted of murder in a holdup, executed May 9, 1930.

Lafon Fisher, convicted of murder of a policeman during bank robbery, executed Oct. 3, 1930.

Leon Brown, convicted of murder of a policeman during bank robbery, executed Oct. 3, 1930.

Frank Jordon, convicted of the murder of two policemen, executed Oct. 16, 1931.

John Popescue, convicted of murder of a banker, executed Oct. 16, 1931.

Richard Sullivan, convicted of murder of restaurant owner, executed Oct. 16, 1931.

Frank Bell, murdered storekeeper, executed Jan. 2, 1932.

John Reed, colored, convicted of murder of storekeeper, executed Jan. 15, 1932.

Ben Norsingia, convicted of murder of storekeeper, executed Jan. 15, 1932.

Ross King, convicted of murder of policeman, Oct. 16, 1933.

Alonzo McNeil, colored, convicted of murder of policeman in holdup, executed Oct. 12, 1934.

Chester Novak, convicted of murder, executed March 21, 1935.

Andrew Bogacki, convicted of murder of policeman, executed Oct. 21, 1936.

Frank Karczykowski, convicted of murder of policeman, executed Oct. 21, 1936.

Joseph Rappaport, convicted of murder of government informer, executed March 2, 1937.

Frank White, convicted of murder of a policeman, executed April 16, 1937.

Stanley Murawski, convicted of murder of policeman, executed April 16, 1937.

Joseph Schuster, convicted of murder of policeman, executed April 16, 1937.

J. C. Scott, colored, convicted of murder in robbery, executed April 19, 1938.

Steve Cyzan, convicted of murder of policeman, executed Oct. 13, 1939.

Howard Poe, colored, convicted of murder of policeman, executed April 19, 1940.

Orville Watson and Edward Reilly, convicted of murder of policeman, under sentence of execution in the county jail.

"In considering the claim of parole officials that more than 98 per cent of the parolees make good," Chief Sullivan said, "you must remember that if a man kills some one two minutes after his parole period is up he goes on the records as a successful parolee."

Former U. of C. Football Player Found Dead in Car

Stanley Hamberg, 30 years old, advertising executive and former University of Chicago football player, was found dead last night, apparently of a heart attack, in his auto in a parking lot behind the Lake Shore club, 850 Lake Shore drive. Hamberg, whose home was at 108 Keeney street, Evanston, is survived by his widow, Virginia, and a son, Stanley Jr. He was a guard on the University of Chicago teams of 1930, 1931, and 1932.

ALDERMEN VOTE MILLION DOLLAR CUT IN BUDGET

Union Workers' Pay Slashed 10 Pct.

The city council finance committee early today approved a city operating budget of approximately $54,500,000 for 1941.

Ald. J. J. McDermott.

This is an estimated reduction of one million dollars from the $55,500,000 tentative budget submitted by Robert B. Upham, city controler, and is approximately two million dollars below the 1940 budget.

Upham had reduced departmental estimates for the coming year by a million dollars before sending the budget to the finance committee.

300 Jobs Eliminated.

The committee effected its reductions by eliminating approximately 300 jobs and by voting a 10 per cent pay cut for all city union employés paid on a monthly or a yearly basis. It was provided, however, that the cut will not put any worker's pay below the prevailing union scale.

The committee's action is subject to final approval by the council as a whole. The committee will hear objections to the union wage cuts Monday, and the budget will be sent to the council the following Friday.

It will be studied then by council members and civic bodies, and a public hearing will be held Jan. 2. The council is expected to take final action Jan. 3.

Mayor Attends Session.

Mayor Kelly sat thru last night's four hour session, which ended at 12:30 a. m. today. At its conclusion he told the aldermen they had done "a great job."

He said he was grateful to the special budget survey committee and its sponsors. This group recommended the job slashes and a decrease in the union worker's pay. The survey committee was financed by the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Civic Federation and Bureau of Public Efficiency in a 10 month study of city operations.

The vote to reduce the pay of union workers came after a stormy session. By this action, which was approved by the mayor, the committee lopped an estimated $344,000 from the tentative budget.

McDermott Only Dissenter.

The committee vote was 15 to 1, the dissenter being Ald. James J. McDermott [14th].

The committee's action, which is expected to bring a protest from labor groups, was taken after the reading of a report prepared by the budget survey committee.

The survey committee said the city "consistently pays the highest union rate, while private industry in many cases is permitted to pay a lower rate."

The report recommended placing the city's 893 union employés who are paid annually or by the month on the same daily basis as ther respective unions are paid by outside employers. The tentative appropriation for the 893 employés for 1941 had been placed at $3,449,344.

Arvey Supports Slash.

Mayor Kelly declared his belief that an adjustment should be made if the city were paying higher union rates than outside employers. He was supported by Ald. J. M. Arvey [24th], chairman of the finance committee; Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], and others.

Ald. Arvey then caused a storm when he urged, for the sake of expediency, the 10 per cent cut for the union employés. Then, he said, the matter should be studied scientifically during the coming year.

Half a dozen voices were raised in opposition to the proposal. The loudest was Ald. McDermott's. The question was put to a vote just before midnight.

Election Board Request Slashed.

The committee slashed the election board's 1941 request from $850,405 to $744,755 and at the same time challenged County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki to open the board's offices to investigation by the budget survey staff.

The action was taken after a report

Pay Roll Bandit Seizure Solves Another Crime

How the arrest of the four robbers who shot and wounded Harry P. Walsh, chief of THE TRIBUNE guards, aided investigators toward the solution of another sensational crime—the holdup of the Hurley Machine company in Cicero on Aug. 2—was disclosed in detail yesterday.

One man has been named as a participant in both holdups. He is Peter Allegretti. His connection with the Hurley job was not suspected until the Walsh shooting had been pinned on him thru confessions of his confederates. It was not made positive until Thursday evening, when Hurley witnesses, at a state's attorney's showup, unhesitatingly identified him.

Plan to Seek Indictment.

Emmett Moynihan, assistant state's attorney, has announced that an indictment charging Allegretti with the Hurley robbery will be sought at once. Allegretti and his three accomplices already have been indicted in the Walsh case on charges of shooting with intent to kill. The other three, Walter J. Smith, Tony Lullo, and Neal Rizzo, have not been connected with the Cicero holdup.

Walsh was shot July 19 and a pay roll of $9,179 was taken from the car in which he rode. THE TRIBUNE offered a reward of $10,000 for the arrest and conviction of the gunmen. Special police details went to work at once and remained constantly on the investigation.

Innumerable clews were sifted and many witnesses were questioned. The investigation took a short step forward, however, with the Hurley robbery.

One Robber Captured.

In that crime the robbers, after seizing more than $1,400, fled in an automobile from the plant at 2115 South 54th avenue. They were pursued by Cicero and Chicago police until their car crashed on the west side. One of the four robbers, Joseph Kostek, was captured.

He asserted, firmly and consistently, that he did not know the names of his companions, and he was not himself identified in the Walsh shooting. Just the same the car was exactly like the one used in the earlier holdup—a black, 1937 Ford sedan, and it was suspected at least one man was in both crimes.

This information was kept in the files. Later Lullo was captured and confessed in the Walsh case. Smith did the same and Rizzo was seized. Last of all, the investigators traced Allegretti to San Pedro, Cal., and arrested him there Nov. 30 and brought him back to Chicago.

Thursday night, after the now recovered Walsh had been presented with a watch "for heroism" by THE TRIBUNE, he went to the state's attorney's office and identified Allegretti as one of his assailants. So did six other persons.

Then Chief of Police Martin Wojciechowski and Sergt. Edward Baumgartner of Cicero produced their witnesses to the Hurley robbery. One of them is Joseph Burman, office manager. Unanimously they named Allegretti as one of the holdup men. Capt. Daniel Gilbert and Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney's forces and Capt. Thomas Harrison of the Chicago avenue district, all of whom worked on the Walsh case, are hopeful of getting the other Hurley robbers.

DISCOVERS VANISHED SCIENTIST'S SECRET OF CHEAP LIQUID HELIUM

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 13 (AP).—Using only a rough sketch drawn by the celebrated Russian physicist, Peter Kapitza, before he vanished in 1935, a Yale professor has found a way to make liquid helium cheaply and quickly.

Helium gas liquefies only at 4 degrees above absolute zero, where all atomic action ceases, so to further his experiments in the electrical conductivity of metals at low temperatures, Prof. Cecil T. Lane sought a way to produce it inexpensively.

The answer is the Kapitza machine, which manufactures a quart of liquid helium in about two hours for only $5 a quart. Heretofore the same amount took 24 hours to produce and cost $50. Lane hopes this is the key to transporting electrical power without waste.

Kapitza built his machine at the University of Cambridge but returned to Russia in 1935 on a trip and has not been seen since.

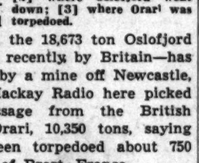
Unfortunately, he carried the plans in his head and the machine at Cambridge was too complicated to understand. Only the discovery of Kapitza's rough design enabled the Yale man to build it.

British Admiralty Strikes Blow at Seniority System

LONDON, Dec. 14, Saturday (AP).—The admiralty struck a blow today at the seniority system in effect since 1718, announcing that hereafter promotions to rear admiral will be made from among captains in the upper five years of the promotion lists without further regard to length of service.

U-Boat Sinks Armed British Merchant Ship

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Loss of the British armed merchant cruiser Forfar, torpedoed by a submarine, was announced today by the British admiralty.



Map shows [1] where German supply ship was sunk; [2] where Oslofjord went down; [3] where Orari was torpedoed.

At the same time it was learned that Norway's largest and finest liner, the 18,673 ton Oslofjord—chartered recently by Britain—has been sunk by a mine off Newcastle, England. Mackay Radio here picked up a message from the British freighter Orari, 10,350 tons, saying she had been torpedoed about 750 miles west of Brest, France.

The admiralty announcement that the Forfar had been torpedoed said there were some casualties. Lloyd's register of shipping does not list a Forfar and it was assumed that was a new name given a ship requisitioned by the admiralty.

Might Be One of Two Liners.

In this connection, shipping circles here believed the vessel might have been the liner Scythia, 19,761 tons, or the Cameronia, 16,297 tons. The admiralty did not give the tonnage of the vessel or other details.

Both the Scythia and Cameronia sailed between England and New York after the war started and were recently withdrawn from that service.

There was no confirmation from London on the sinking of the Oslofjord, but authoritative shipping circles in New York said the two year old liner built in Bremen, Germany, struck a mine two days ago.

Carried Canadian Flyers.

The Oslofjord, laid up in New York last January because of the war, sailed secretly for Halifax, N. S., on Oct. 26, under British charter. Shipping circles said that on her last voyage to England she carried Canadian aviators. She was en route back to Canada when the mishap occurred.

On the brighter side of the British ledger, the admiralty announced that the submarine Sunfish had sunk a 4,000 ton German supply ship off the Norwegian coast and had damaged a German oil tanker. A direct hit on an enemy ship off the Dutch coast was claimed for British airmen.

by Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], who had been delegated to ask the election board to agree to the same investigation that has been conducted in city departments.

Rowan said all he received was hesitancy and a letter from the board saying the amount requested for 1941 was necessary and suggesting that the committee read again a letter Judge Jarecki sent to the council in 1924. In that letter Jarecki said the council must pass the board's appropriation when the request was accompanied by a court order.

Arvey Blasts Hesitancy.

"We are supposed to be the machine politicians," Ald. Arvey snapped. "Judge Jarecki is the reformer, and yet his board hesitates to be investigated. The thing that shocks me is that the county judge, who never hesitates to criticize others, won't let his office be studied by Mr. Sutherland [Douglas Sutherland, head of the Civic Federation and Bureau of Efficiency] and his men.

"Maybe he has a lot of men working in the county building who are charged to this pay roll. If Mr. Sutherland went in there this budget would be reduced.

"In the last 10 years Judge Jarecki has failed to certify a court order for the board appropriation. He doesn't want the responsibility. Well, we don't want the responsibility for his pay rolls, either. By making deductions, we will make him certify the appropriation."

Traction Fund Put at 24 Million.

The 1941 traction fund appropriation was approved at $24,724,975. Of that amount, $5,750,000 was set aside as it was this year, for possible expense in the event of a referendum on the traction ordinance. The committee approved $17,500,000 for subway construction.

The committee was told there will be $12,760,000 available next year for street, bridge, and viaduct construction, and street lighting installation from the state motor fuel tax fund. Of that amount, $9,500,000 already has been allocated to projects approved by the state highway department.

A request by the Chicago Plan commission for $184,340 for 1940 was reduced to $135,000. In 1940 a total of $100,000 was appropriated for the commission. The aldermen told the commission they approved its program but could spare no more money from the corporate budget.

Morton Bodfish, vice chairman of the commission, told the committee that Theodore T. McCrosky, chief of the master plan division of the New York Plan commission, has been hired as executive director at $10,000 a year.

Part of the original request to which aldermen objected was for $13,640 for a publicity department.

PENNSY'S NEW FLORIDA TRAIN HUMS INTO CITY

So new the paint on the cars was hardly dry, the Pennsylvania railroad's South Wind, with Engineer Edwin Carter at the throttle, made its first run into Chicago yesterday—Indianapolis to Chicago, 202 miles, in 199 minutes.

Destined for 29½ hour service on the 1,534 mile trip between Chicago and Miami, the sleek new streamliner, an all-coach train, hummed smoothly over the track behind the giant coal burning locomotive. At times the speed ran as high as 89 miles an hour, and the average was better than a mile a minute.

"She's a sweet job," said Engineer Carter.

The train consists of a "social center"—observation lounge car—a dining car, four full length coaches, and a combination baggage and dormitory car, in addition to the locomotive.

The dining car seats 48 persons and specializes in dinners and luncheons at 60 cents. There also is a kitchen-buffet in the lounge car that remains open until all hours.

The South Wind will leave Union station at 9:30 a. m. Dec. 19 on its maiden scheduled trip to Miami. Next Monday the train will be on exhibition at Union station.

'A FIRE COMPANY RESPONDS AGAIN; 'AND IS IT PUT OUT!

A month ago Jerry Putterman stepped on the starter of his car, parked in front of a drug store at 2656 Potomac avenue, and the car caught fire. Engine Company 57 made a fast three block run from Haddon and Western avenues and extinguished the blaze. A week later in exactly the same place the same thing happened. This time the firemen were put out too.

"Why don't you park across North avenue," they said, "and give some other district your business?" Putterman looked embarrassed.

Yesterday Putterman's father, Max, tried to start the car in front of their home at 1314 North Claremont avenue. Engine Company 57 had just changed shifts and the same crew responded for the third time.

"This," one of them said coldly, "is too much."

Putterman thought so also and drove to a garage at 1312 North Western avenue. A mechanic, seeking the trouble, was silly enough to step on the starter.

Yeah. You guessed it.

ODD LEGAL QUIRK PROVES BONANZA TO TAXING BODIES

Fraction Dumps Extra Dollars Into Till.

(This is the fifth in a series of articles discussing the financial condition of Cook county's six major operating governments.)

BY LAURENCE BURD.

A quirk in the law for figuring tax rates—known as the odd fraction—regularly dumps a bonanza into the lap of the Forest Preserve district that usually enables the district to balance its budget and keep its bills paid.

The district is especially benefited by this fraction because its tax rate is small compared with rates of the other major Cook county governments. The others receive on the average as great a windfall in dollars as the forest preserve, but the benefit is only a drop in the bucket in their cases.

That Odd Fraction.

The odd fraction—sometimes called the seventh government—nicks the taxpayers of Cook county for more than $500,000 a year that isn't to be found in tax levies of any of the governments. Last year the amount was $664,000.

This is how the fraction works: When the county clerk figures the tax rate for the Forest Preserve district he adds the district's tax levies for its various funds such as operating, pensions, etc.

The clerk then figures the total assessed valuation of taxable properties in the district. Next, he computes what rate—so many cents per $100 of valuation—when multiplied by the valuation will equal the total tax levy of the district.

This rate seldom comes out even. The law says that when there is a fraction left over, the fraction shall be treated as one full cent.

How It Helps.

The effect of this quirk on the forest preserves is seen in its 1939 budget. The county clerk found that the tax rate needed to make the total taxes billed equal the amount of the district's levy was 8.6328 cents. The rate, accordingly was made 9 cents and the forest preserve was presented with a gift of about 37/100 of a cent per $100. When multiplied by the huge 2½ billion dollar valuation applicable to the forest preserve district, a windfall of $91,630 resulted.

By common practice among the governments, the extra money resulting from the odd fraction is dropped into the corporate, or operating fund. The forest preserves' 1939 operating fund's original tax levy was only $534,842, so the addition of the fraction boosted its actual corporate levy by more than 17 per cent.

The city's fraction in 1939 was more than 9-10 of a cent, bringing an extra contribution of $187,519. This sum, more than twice the actual amount gained by the forest preserves, was only about ½ of 1 per cent of the city's corporate tax levy of 37 millions.

Actually Gain 27 Per Cent.

In the last 10 years the forest preserves' operating budget has been boosted a total of $1,415,516 by the fraction, or 28 per cent of the tax levies originally included in the operating fund. This is shown in the following table:

Year—	Tax levy operating fund.	Increase in levy thru fraction.
1939	$ 534,842	$ 91,615
1938	534,842	4,052
1937	554,625	155,327
1936	607,500	60,804
1935	426,600	11,707
1934	438,750	110,756
1933	450,000	235,239
1932	400,000	196,000
1931	440,421	238,000
1930	667,000	303,946
Total	$5,054,580	$1,415,516

The extent to which the odd fraction helps the forest preserves is seen in the effect of its fluctuation thru the years. For example, the fraction added $155,327 to the corporate tax levy in 1937, so that when 1937 tax collections came in the following year, the district was able to pay all its bills and pay rolls up to date by the end of 1938. But the fraction in the 1938 levy contributed only $4,052. A resulting shortage in 1938 tax collections forced the district to close 1939 with $42,522 in unpaid bills.

REIGN OF TERROR IN WASTE PAPER RACKET CHARGED

U. S. Indicts Dealers, Union in Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13 [Special].—Charges that bombing, force, intimidation and violence were employed in a plot to further a restraint of trade conspiracy in the multi-million dollar waste paper industry here were made today in indictments returned by a federal grand jury.

One indictment named local 337 of the teamsters union, two officers of the union, four wholesale waste paper firms, and executives of the firms. A second indictment named only the wholesale firms and their officers.

The plot in general was to force out of business wholesale waste paper firms in competition with the "Big Four" companies named in the indictment, it was charged.

Bomb Thrown into Home.

A bomb was thrown last June into the home of Charles Ginns, owner of the Central Waste Paper company. No one was injured but considerable damage was done. Other acts of violence and threats of violence were included in the indictment.

Another charge was that local 337 sought to coerce leading railroad lines by threatening to impede all trucking to and from railroad warehouses if the railroads handled waste paper cargoes from any but the "Big Four" waste companies.

The defendants named are:

Local 337 teamsters union, A. F. of L. and two officers, Bernard Brennan, president, and James Hoffa, business agent.

Standard Mill Supply, Inc., Peter Goldstein, president.

Levine Waste Paper company and two officers, Samuel Levine, president, and David Levine, vice president.

Monroe Waste Paper company, Inc., and two officers, Sam Lieberman, president, and Isaac Greer, secretary.

Julius Rotenberg, proprietor of General Mill Supply company.

Wholesale Paper company, and Arthur Harris, manager.

Face Prison Terms.

John C. Lehr, district attorney, said the maximum penalty on each indictment was one year in prison and a $5,000 fine.

The indictment naming only the four wholesale firms and their executives is brought under the monopoly provisions of the Sherman antitrust act.

The other indictment was brought under the restraint of trade provisions of the Sherman act. This indictment alleges the union undertook to enforce the conspiracy by means of threats and violence.

REPORTS ON NUMBER OF STATE EMPLOYES URGED FOR ILLINOIS

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 13 [Special].—Senator Earl B. Searcy [R., Springfield] announced today he would seek legislation requiring every department of the state government to file monthly reports listing the number of employés and the amount of their salaries.

"That's state business the taxpayers should know," Searcy said. "The bill will call for filing these reports in a special ledger with figures so arranged that a comparison with previous months can be made in a few seconds' time."

Under present law no regular public reports are made as to payrolls. Various departments are required to make annual reports to the state auditor, but the figures usually are not tabulated to show the number of state employés.

PUBLIC HEARING ON PARK BUDGET SET FOR DEC. 24

Park district commissioners yesterday set a public hearing for Dec. 24 on the tentative budget for 1941. Copies of the budget are on file in the secretary's office in the park district administration building and may be examined by any interested person.

Altho the budget may be altered considerably before it is adopted, the first draft provides for a total appropriation of $22,828,546. This is $2,006,433 less than the 1940 appropriation. Principal reductions are made in the corporate, or operating, fund and in the bond redemption and interest fund.

Robert J. Dunham, president of the park district, said district facilities could not be maintained and properly serviced with this reduced appropriation. He said it probably would be necessary to request the legislature to raise the pegged levy for the corporate fund.

TRAFFIC CLUB'S LUNCHEON AIDS GOOD FELLOWS

1,400 Assist in Christmas Basket Campaign.

A crowd of 1,400 persons who believe in sharing Christmas joy with others less fortunate filled the grand ballroom of the Palmer House and an adjacent banquet hall yesterday noon for the fifth annual Good Fellow luncheon of the Traffic Club of Chicago. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, was the principal speaker.

Money raised by this luncheon will provide Christmas baskets for some 400 needy Chicago families. The larger families will get two baskets, one of which will contain toys. John Middleton, chairman of the organization's toy committee, estimated that 1,794 boys and girls will receive toys from the club this year. Distribution of the baskets will be made from the Chicago Tunnel warehouse at 746 Jackson boulevard, beginning at 9 a. m. the Monday before Christmas.

Col. McCormick Lauds Effort.

"The effort of you men and women who have joined the Good Fellow movement will be an inspiration and an incentive to thousands of others to help the unfortunates in our community at Christmas time," Col. McCormick said.

"Behind this idea of the Good Fellow movement is a group of public spirited citizens, banded together in a common cause. The movement originates with a right impulse and is carried thru with good actions. Certainly the same procedure could and should be used advantageously in meeting the problem of the 10 millions of our people who want to work instead of being forced to rely on charity.

"Neither you nor I can be content until our endeavors have altered the underlying situation. We must put our minds and our ingenuity to the larger task of attempting to eliminate the causes which make the Good Fellow and other charity drives so necessary.

Discusses Problem of Jobless.

"What we have not done is to teach some 10 million people to become self supporting. At present these people cannot take advantage of the marvels of this age or rise to the standards of its life.

"There are today fields of useful work offering almost innumerable opportunities for employment. At the same time there are educational facilities available to every one who is ambitious to equip himself for the task of living. Is it not absurd that with the facilities of today, and the educational opportunities of today, 10 million people should not be able to support themselves?

"These people must be freed from the parasites which grow fat by producing programs which keep the unemployed on the border line of misery, rob them of their self-respect, and steal their independence. We do not need milksop devices, or soporifics.

"The men who find a way to free these 10 million Americans from the parasites that feast on their misery, and who teach them to support themselves with self respect and in decency, will be greater humanitarians than any one who contributes to charity."

Col. McCormick told members of the Traffic club that the country looked to such groups as their's for the solution of this problem.

Col. McCormick's address was preceded by a brief religious talk by the Rev. Carl Matties, pastor of the Tabor Lutheran church. There followed an all-star bill of entertainment featuring Edgar A. Guest, the poet, and Lillian Gish and Percy Waram, stars of the current play at the Blackstone theater, "Life With Father." The "four sons" in the play also appeared.

Other Stars on Program.

Other entertainers were Miss Irma Cooper, soprano, who was adjudged best woman singer at the 1940 Chicagoland Music Festival; Frank Paris and his marionettes, now appearing in the Empire room at the Palmer House; Joe E. Lewis, comedian, and Tamara, singing star, from the Chez Paree; Rhythm Willie, colored harmonica virtuoso; Stalac Brothers and Pearl, from the Chicago theater; the WLS Rangers and Christine, from radio station WLS; the children's a cappella choir of the Tabor Lutheran school; Margit Bokor, Hungarian soprano of the Chicago Opera company, and Lew Diamond and his orchestra.

Two Good Fellow talks will be made on W-G-N today. At 11:15 a. m. Quin Ryan will interview Philip Maxwell, Good Fellow editor, and at 1 p. m. Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church, will speak on "Good Fellows and Christmas."

Engineers Display Skill Bridging Kentucky River

Fort Knox, Ky., Dec. 13 (AP).—The 16th engineer battalion, first armored division, is convinced it can bridge almost any river under any circumstance. Under simulated battle conditions and handicapped by rain and deep mud, the engineers yesterday and last night threw a pontoon bridge across Salt river, a reservation stream. Then the ability of the bridge to support 11-ton tanks and combat cars was tested. In another part of the maneuver, 350 men crossed the Ohio river in assault boats, ferrying combat cars in hastily constructed rafts.

PLAN PARLEY TO STUDY LOOP PARKING CHAOS

See Economic Loss in Problem.

BY HAL FOUST.

A conference on downtown automobile parking is planned soon after Christmas by Ald. George D. Kells [28th], chairman of the council traffic committee, and Ald. Joseph S. Gillespie [29th], chairman of a subcommittee on parking. It was disclosed yesterday. Representatives of principal loop interests are to be invited to discuss this problem as it relates to their own economic futures and to the future of Chicago.

Ald. Gillespie [top] and Ald. Kells. [Peter Fish Photo; Wallinger Photo.]

The meeting will hear proposals on downtown parking that have been made to the council in the last two years. It will hear criticisms, most of them adverse, on present conditions. And it will hear of schemes, some radical, that are being considered in other cities as possible answers to the car storage problem.

Business Groups Take Part.

Participants in the conference will include the State Street council, Downtown District association, Building Managers' association, and the Wholesale Property Owners' association.

Many studies have been made of central business district parking in Chicago and other cities. All agree present conditions are undesirable. Many authorities contend drastic changes must be made to prevent heavy economic losses thru the deterioration of the metropolitan structure with its peculiar advantages to business and commerce.

"At present," said Ald. Gillespie, "downtown parking is too expensive for the metropolitan population to benefit fully from automobile transportation. Tall garages cost too much. Parking lots can't pay the real estate owner's taxes plus interest on his mortgage. And these lots are deteriorating adjacent values.

Encounter Long Delays.

"Hikers gallop automobiles from nearby to outlying lots, or leave the cars on the streets outside full lots. Owners sometimes have to wait half an hour while their cars are being returned to where they left them."

"Business is being driven away from the loop," said Ald. Kells. "Central business district values must be maintained or Chicago's main source of tax revenue will suffer.

"With the construction of superhighways, more downtown storage space will be required. Chicago must decide what it is going to do, and then do it."

Harland Bertholomew of St. Louis, Mo., one of the country's leading city planners, concluded from a recent study that the average American city is decentralizing beyond the limits of sound economics and that unless this decentralization is checked it will lead to an economic collapse. He believes that corrective measures, while expensive, would be less costly than to let the trend continue.

Study Private Car Ban.

Ald. Gillespie said that one suggestion to his subcommittee would ban all private vehicles from the loop, forcing everyone to use mass carriers. The America Transit association has published a study indicating that if all workers in an office building were to use private automobiles they would need a garage for their cars almost as big as the office building.

The workers occupy an average of 150 square feet of office floor space while their vehicles, carrying an average of 1.75 persons per car, each need 140 square feet of garage floor space.

Public ownership of large parking areas on the depressed fringe of the central business district is another proposal, something for the west, north, and south sides of the district comparable with the 25 cent parking lot in Grant park. An adjustment of real estate tax assessments, so that downtown lots could be operated on a sound basis, has also been suggested.

The Milwaukee Plan.

Leslie J. Sorenson, Chicago traffic engineer, said that the present outdoor storage on valuable real estate was merely an interim usage between the destruction of an obsolete building and the construction of a new one. He looks to a further development of the combination shop and ramp garage.

In Milwaukee some thought has been given to revamping the street map to make one large square block of what is now four square blocks. The center of the big square would be devoted to parking and the border would be devoted to stores and offices.

George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, contends that storage facilities are a public obligation as much as facilities for moving traffic. He argues that the motorist's taxes should pay for a place to stop his car as well as a place to drive it. He compares privately operated parking lots with toll roads.

"We want all responsible contributions to this planning," said Ald. Gillespie, "because we feel sure there is nothing more important to the future of Chicago than the downtown parking problem."

22 COATS STOLEN FROM CAR.

Max Buckner, driver for a loop furrier, yesterday reported the theft of 22 fur coats valued at $1,410 from an auto parked in front of 511 South Paulina street.

AMERICA FIRST GROUP FORMED ON NORTH SHORE

Permanent Committee to Be Selected.

Organization of America First committee activities along the north shore was begun yesterday from Evanston headquarters at 615 Davis street. This is part of the intensive drive which has been begun in the Chicago area to keep America out of war and particularly to offset the activities of the William Allen White Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies.

A permanent north shore committee will be announced in a few days, it was stated by the organizer in charge of the Evanston headquarters, Mrs. Melvin Z. Bennett. Miss Anne Stuart of Lake Forest, president of the French club and sister of R. Douglas Stuart Jr., national director of the committee, will be in active charge of the north shore activities, particularly among women.

Other workers who reported for duty at the busy headquarters yesterday were Mrs. J. W. Erringer, Mrs. H. Bruce Wiscomb, and Mrs. Max Seeling, all of Evanston.

Demand for Literature.

"There has been a great demand for literature," said Mrs. Bennett. "People are against putting a higher value on commerce than on human life and in putting sympathy for the Allies ahead of patriotism. Our first enemies, it seems, are at home. All kinds of people are coming into the movement. It has much more than a social background. They want to save America, or save what they still have of it before it is too late. The White committee is well organized and is working hard. We hope to be in the same position soon. We are neither pacifists nor Communists nor pro-Hitlerites, but Americans first."

The principles of the America First committee are as follows:

1. The United States must build an impregnable defense for America.
2. No foreign power or group of powers can successfully attack a prepared America.
3. American democracy can be preserved only by keeping out of the European war.
4. "Aid short of war," beyond the limitations of cash and carry, weakens national defense at home and threatens to involve America in war abroad.

Sane Leadership Sought.

The objectives of the committee are to provide sane national leadership for the majority of American people who want to keep out of European or Asiatic wars and to register this opinion in Congress.

The first big rally of the Chicago group will be held in Orchestra hall next Wednesday evening. It will be presided over by Gen. Robert E. Wood, national chairman. The speaker will be John T. Flynn, New York author.

Telegrams are being sent to President Roosevelt and to the Illinois delegation in Congress, registering opposition to any program of aid to Britain that might lead to war, and taking the definite position that "our first line of defense is not Great Britain."

Aiding Campaign

Miss Anne Stuart of Lake Forest at work in Evanston headquarters of group organizing for drive to keep United States out of war.

"FIRST DUTY IS AT HOME"

A woman minister told an overflow audience in the La Salle hotel last night that America's first duty, far from entering the European war, is to make democracy work at home so that this nation's millions can have decent homes and employment.

She was the Rev. Dr. Margaret Blair Johnstone, pastor of the Addison Street Congregational church. She spoke under auspices of the Citizens Keep America Out of War committee. The committee is sponsoring an antiwar massmeeting in the Auditorium theater next Friday night at which Senator Rush D. Holt, of West Virginia, will speak.

Dr. Johnstone said that nations fall only when they are weakened by internal unrest, and that America can best protect itself by being strong within. Americans, she said, should examine the causes of the present European war before leaping into it.

Another speaker was Capt. William J. Grace, committee chairman, who charged that people behind the William Allen White Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies, and all others trying to drive America into the war, were "traitors worse than Benedict Arnold."

AID FOR ALLIES COMMITTEE TO MEET MONDAY

The Chicago chapter of the Committee to defend America by Aiding the Allies will hold a dinner meeting Monday evening in the Palmer House, it was announced yesterday by Adlai E. Stevenson, chairman of the chapter. Herbert Agar, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, will be the speaker.

"To say that our committee 'is trying to get us into war' is not stating a fact, but merely expressing an opinion," Stevenson said in commenting on the formation of a Chicago chapter of the America First committee.

"It is our opinion that the defeat of Britain would eventually result in war for the defense of the Americas, a war fought in the Americas with the United States alone against a totalitarian world."

I. C. Suburban Trains Will Sport Bright Colors

The Illinois Central's suburban trains are going to sport bright new color combinations. F. R. Mays, vice president in charge of operations, said yesterday that several cars in the railroad's Burnside shops have been painted green and yellow, with red trimming. This array must be approved, and then durability of the colors will be tested for a month before the line's suburban fleet of 280 cars is painted, Mays said.

GREEK ADVANCE PERILS ITALIAN 'ESCAPE' PORTS

Drives Fascists Closer to Sea in South Albania.

ATHENS, Dec. 13 (AP).—Greek troops tonight were reported edging desperately fighting Italians back against the sea in a two pronged drive, one along the coastal road toward Palermo and Chimara, and the other inland against Tepeleni, which is an important junction of the road leading to the port of Valona, about 30 miles to the northwest.

The coastal drive against Palermo and Chimara threatened those two last Fascist ports of escape in southern Albania. Valona, a bigger port 30 miles north of Chimara, still is in Italian possession, but it was declared to have been virtually made useless by heavy bomb attacks.

Capture More Prisoners.

Despite fresh troops thrown into the vital Klisura pass that protects Tepeleni and the heights around Palermo and Chimara, dispatches from the front said the Greeks pushed steadily on, taking new prisoners and inflicting heavy losses on their counterattacking foe. Klisura lies about 10 miles northeast of Tepeleni.

[An Exchange Telegraph dispatch to London said the Italians were evacuating Tepeleni after a fierce fight. British military circles said the capture of that town and Klisura remained "merely a matter of time."]

Greeks quoted Italian captives as saying there was doubt that the Italians could continue the struggle if Klisura fell.

Weather Hinders Italians.

"The situation has developed insurmountable difficulties for the Italians who are trying to find a way out," a Greek spokesman said. "Bad weather hinders not only their activity but also Italian transport."

In the north, however, the Greeks acknowledged stiffer Italian resistance in the mountain passes near captured Pogradetz, but added that defenders there had begun to give way under steady pressure.

Italian air attacks against points within Greece, including the plains of Salonika, were acknowledged, but the ministry of home security said no casualties or damage were caused.

Bloodiest Fighting of War.

BITOLJ, Jugo-Slavia [Near the Albanian Frontier], Dec. 13 (AP).—The Greeks lashed out against the Italians with a big push along the entire northern Albania front today and the bloodiest fighting of the war raged in that sector, advices from the front said tonight.

The battle area was declared strewn with the dead of both sides as opposing infantrymen fought hand to hand, with the Greeks driving the Fascists deeper into the snow capped mountains. The fighting ranged over a wide arc from west of Maschopolis to Uduniste, on Lake Ochrida. Backing up the Greek infantry charges, Greek artillery pounded the Italians with a day long bombardment. The Italians themselves replied with artillery fire and Fascist infantry put up the stiffest resistance yet witnessed in the north.

Hear Explosions in Adriatic.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Dec. 13 (AP).—Heavy explosions were heard in the Adriatic off the Jugo-Slav port of Dubrovnik today, indicating a possible British-Italian naval engagement. Dubrovnik is 80 miles above the Jugo-Slav-Albanian border.

HOW GREEKS RID NATIVE SOIL OF LAST INVADERS!

Tribune Man Tells of Battle in South.

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH GREEK FORCES IN ALBANIA, Dec. 12 [Delayed].—Greek officers today told me how they drove the last Italian soldiers from Greek soil and thus carried the war into Fascist-controled Albania.

Some of the fiercest fighting in this particular phase of the struggle occurred on an important stretch of road from Kakavia to Argyrokastron, in southern Albania.

The Italian "battalion of death," sworn to die rather than retreat, almost fulfilled its oath. It held out better and longer than any other Italian unit, according to the Greek officers, but on Nov. 29 the last survivors bolted and the Greeks entered Kakavia, an Albanian frontier village. The last Italian soldier had been driven from Greece.

Nine Hours of Fighting.

The final attack on Kakavia involved nine hours of fighting and five infantry attacks. From 8 a. m. until dark the Greeks fought, dragging up machine guns after each advance, then pushing forward a bit more. At nightfall they finally got the village.

The attack was started by a group equipped only with two machine guns. In the end, 1,000 Greeks were involved tho their losses were only 10 dead.

Kakavia stands in a little hollow spot on a ridge on the southwest side of a deep valley. The approach up a road winding along the side of the ridge was well covered by machine gun fire from the crest southeast of the village.

The Greeks clambered over the ridge southwest of the road, blasted the Italians from their machine gun positions with grenades, and then captured the position with bayonets.

Continue Their Retreat.

The day after Kakavia's fall the Italians held a few positions from which they were able to fire on Kakavia, but later continued their retreat. They held out five days at Georgusats, the next important village where the road forks toward Aghisaranta and Argyrokastron.

There with prepared machine gun positions and a column estimated at 20 light tanks, which served as movable machine gun nests along a road, they managed to delay the Greek advance.

The Greeks again outflanked them, advancing over barren rock ridges south and west of the village. They cut the road toward Aghisaranta where it passes thru the mountains. The Italians, afraid of being surrounded as the Greeks advanced on both sides of the road, withdrew their forces, including the tanks.

Then the Greeks swept down from the ridges southwest of the village and drove out the last defenders in hand to hand fighting.

Among the Greek troops there is a shortage of blankets and warm clothing. The men are now going on short rations because of the shortage of trucks and seven days of heavy rains, which make transportation all the more difficult.

LONDON CALM AFTER QUIET NIGHT; ASSESS DAMAGE IN SHEFFIELD

LONDON, Dec. 14 [Saturday].—A brief air raid alert in London ended before midnight and the city was calm early today. All during the daylight yesterday, it was officially stated, the country was wholly free of raiders, and the only casualties were several persons killed by the explosion of a time bomb here.

The day had brought, however, a melancholy assessment of the damage done to the great British steel center of Sheffield by dusk to dawn bombing which ended in the early morning.

The air ministry reported a number of buildings destroyed there and roads blocked by débris. Rescue workers still were digging bodies from the ruins.

SOUTH AMERICAN LANDS MAY HOLD DEFENSE PARLEY

COLONIA, Uruguay, Dec. 13 (AP).—Foreign Ministers Alberto Guani of Uruguay and Julio Roca of Argentina, conferring here on defense problems, tonight announced they were considering inviting Brazil, Chile, Bolivia, and Paraguay to participate in the discussions.

The first official announcement of their conversations said "the question of continental defense" as well as "problems related to security of the River Plate" were reviewed. It was understood Argentina had no objections to continued Uruguayan-United States defense conversations but reserved the right to raise objections on any proposals threatening domination of the vital River Plate between the two countries.

The statement also revealed that Argentina and Uruguay hoped to reach a new treaty calling for increased trade, considered important because of Argentina's past coldness toward intensified inter-American trade.

EXPECT ITALIANS TO BATTLE ON IN ALBANIA, AFRICA

Reports of Armistice Are Discredited.

ROME, Dec. 13 (AP).—Usually well informed persons predicted tonight that the Italian armies would defend their lines in both Libya and Albania for the rest of the winter.

At home, Italian defeatists and hoarders may face rought handling by Fascism's early day strong arm squads. One extremist newspaper declared hoarders and profiteers should be shot.

In the view of today's informants, the aim of the present British offensive in Egypt is believed to be to push the Italians back behind their Libyan frontier, from which they advanced early last autumn to and beyond Sidi Barrani, 70 miles inside Egypt.

Battle in Sandstorms.

It is not believed here that the British will attempt a serious drive into Libya itself.

Today the high command reported a violent battle amidst sandstorms "in the zone between Sollum [on the Libyan frontier], Sidi Barrani, and the desert zone to the southeast." The high command has not specifically conceded the fall of Sidi Barrani, altho the Rome radio did so last night, adding: "What of it?"

The Italians were fighting with great gallantry against the British armored columns, the communique said, telling of yesterday's action. Dawn to sundown bombing of the British units was reported to have set fires among them. The toll in planes yesterday was placed at 18 British and 12 Italian.

Discredit Armistice Talk.

On the Albanian front, the high command said merely: "Nothing worthy of special report; small attacks of local character repelled." A rumor supposed to have originated in Athens concerning a possible Greek-Italian armistice was discredited in authoritative circles. Fascists said Premier Mussolini's announced determination to "break the back of Greece" whether it takes two months or 12, precluded any truce.

A Berlin report that Mussolini might visit Adolf Hitler soon was taken in usually informed quarters as possible, but doubt was expressed that the trip would take place soon.

[In Berlin the authoritative commentary service Dienst aus Deutschland joined other spokesmen in denying reports of an immediate meeting between Mussolini and Hitler.]

HORSE BURNS TO DEATH.

A horse owned by Hyman Miller, a peddler, burned to death last night when fire destroyed a barn in the rear of 1327 South Homan avenue.

BRITISH PURSUE 'BEATEN' ITALIAN TROOPS TO LIBYA

Drive Lingering Fascists Out of Egypt.

Italians on both sides of the border and tore apart all organization of an attempt to reinforce the trapped troops.

The fleet at one point steamed within half a mile of the Libyan port of Bardia and pumped one-ton high explosive shells ashore. They started huge fires and their explosions blasted motor transport sky high and smashed troop concentrations.

This was to destroy as much of the Italian base as possible, prevent any attempt at reorganization of the retreating forces at that point, and keep the Italians on the run far into Libya, perhaps as far as Derna, 150 miles from Bardia.

The fleet, throwing big shells, started at Maktila, 15 miles east of Sidi Barrani, and smashed it in an hour. Libyan troops, terrified by the bombardment of the fleet's 15 inch guns, deserted their Italian officers.

Then the whole coast from Sollum on the Egyptian side of the border to Bardia, 37 miles away, was subjected to a devastating bombardment, some single attacks lasting more than an hour.

Block Path of Retreat.

Shells falling into the main highway ripped open huge craters, blocking the path of fleeing Italian mechanized units.

At the Libyan-Egyptian frontier thousands of green uniformed Italians hurled rifles and packs into the desert sands and ran toward both Egypt and Libya.

While the fleet was throwing high explosive projectiles into Italian positions and blasting troop columns out of existence, British planes rained bombs on the Italians.

In operations thruout Thursday night—operations that have not really ended since the beginning of the offensive—British pilots were reported to have struck heavily at Italian bases all over the Egyptian and Libyan area.

Blast Airport at Tobruk.

Attacked, said the British, were the chief Italian position at Tobruk, on the Libyan coast where hangars at a nearby airport were "completely gutted." Bardia, where an ammunition dump went up in a great explosion that spurted flames 1,000 feet aloft, and many other objectives.

The town of Tobruk and its harbor were reported hit by many tons of bombs, which set off fires and explosions, some of them near gasoline storages.

Altogether a dozen Italian airports and landing fields were reported damaged. An unstated number of Italian planes were reported destroyed on the ground.

In the desert, meanwhile, sledge hammer blows were delivered by the British army with lightning like rapidity.

Nowhere, according to accounts gathered on the front, did the Italian forces make any successful stand against the British in the brief campaign.

After the British force had crossed the desert undetected for a distance of 75 miles and had taken Nibeiwa a column shot forth and cleaned up the strong forts in the Tumnar region.

There, amid fierce fighting, the British proceeded toward Sidi Barrani. Meanwhile, an armored unit had charged northward to the coast farther west, cutting off Sidi Barrani from the rest of the coastal strip.

While the Britons closed in on Sidi Barrani, a British tank unit reached Buqbuq, where the befuddled Italian airmen bombed so indiscriminately that they killed many of their own fleeing troops.

The captain commanding a big Italian motor transport column which ran into British tanks near Buqbuq said he had heard firing, but paid no attention since he had no idea the British were in the vicinity.

Radio messages picked up from British tanks operating in the desert indicated thousands of Italians were surrendering.

Tanks Capture 500 at Once.

An officer of a tank column which was pushing beyond Sidi Barrani broadcast:

"I am in the middle of 500 [Italian] infantrymen, all with their hands up, but I cannot hold them much longer. Send infantry quickly."

Scarcely a single Italian bombing plane showed up during the fighting, so well was the air filled with British planes shuttling back and forth to bomb Italian supply bases.

A captured Italian airman, asked why the Fascist planes were not more active, said:

"I don't know. We only went out when we got orders, and we weren't ordered out very much."

WOMAN, 73, ROBBED IN HOME.

Miss Ida Bolt, 73 years old, reported to police yesterday that two young men robbed her of $13 in her flat at 451 North May street, then tied her to a chair and threatened her with torture in an effort to find out whether she had other funds.

LILLIAN LUCENTE.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 13 [Special].—Bitterness flared between a father estranged from his family and his daughter at an inquest in the slaying of Joe Villaneuva, 21, fiancé of Lillian Lucente, 17. She testified her father, Frank Lucente, 48, shot Villaneuva when they returned from a dance last Sunday. Twice Lucente interrupted to shout, "You lie, I never shot him." Each time she replied, "You did, I saw you."

TOKIO, Japan, Dec. 13 (AP).—Millions of dollars worth of American, British, and Canadian church properties are in the process of being turned over to the Japanese as a result of Japan's new religious law, foreign church officials announced today.

The religious law stipulates the cessation of foreign financial assistance and places mission schools, hospitals, and social enterprises entirely in Japanese hands.

Bishop Charles S. Reifsnider, president of St. Paul's Episcopal university, said this institution, along with St Luke's Episcopal hospital, one of the finest in the orient, and Holy Trinity church—all American owned—are among the properties affected.

PETAIN IS GIVEN 'GOOD' REPORT ON W. INDIES ISLES

Told U. S. Understands French Situation, Too.

VICHY, France, Dec. 13 (AP).—Gov. Gen. Jules Carde of Algeria today conferred with Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain after his return from a mission to French Guiana, Martinique, and Guadelupe.

An official announcement said Carde gave Petain a "comforting" impression of his trip, not only in the French possessions, where he explained France's defeat and discussed the supply problem, but also in the United States and the British Antilles.

It added however, that he was arrested by the British, at Antigua, capital of the Leeward Islands, and at Bermuda. The announcement said that at Bermuda he was put in a concentration camp for a week.

Shake Up Colonial Officials.

New governors for Martinique, Guadelupe, Madagascar, Cochin China, Niger, and other French colonies were named today in a sweeping decree issued by the minister of colonies.

The decree named Armand Annet as governor general of Madagascar, replacing Leon Cayla; Henry Rivoal to replace Gov. Verber in Cochin China, and Brigade General Falvey in place of Leon Solomiac as governor of Niger. Yves Nicol was promoted to the rank of governor of Martinique and Constant Sorin was given governor's rank in Guadelupe.

Three other governors were retired. In French Indo-China two new residents-superior were appointed, two promoted, and another retired.

The decree affected numerous other high colonial officials.

French Repulsed, Siamese Claim.

BANGKOK, Thailand, Dec. 13 (AP).—A series of French attempts to penetrate Thai [Siamese] frontier by land and air from Indo-China was repulsed yesterday, according to Thailand's high command.

A French plane was reported to have dropped 14 bombs on Mukdaharn, killing only a horse.

French guerrilla parties were said to be harrassing civilians along the Mekong river.

Windsor's Attorney Named Head of Press Ministry

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Sir Walter Monckton today succeeded Frank Pick as director-general of the ministry of information in what the Press Association called a "surprise" shift. Sir Walter is attorney for the duke of Windsor and reportedly visited him recently in the Bahamas.

Reno, Nev., Dec. 13 (AP).—Reno's traffic signals, equipped with whistles, were silent today. It was too cold. The signals stuttered and hissed briefly like the closing note of a snore.

Nude Posing Approved

MISS SHIRLEY WARREN.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 13 (AP).—Twelve jurors, who previously signified they were not adherents of nudism, found today there was nothing immoral about a pretty 18 year old model posing undraped before a group of amateur photographers, by returning a verdict of acquittal.

The case revolved around Miss Shirley Warren on her appeal from a lower court conviction on a lewdness charge that grew out of a camera session in the studio attic of a Boston man's home.

She testified that she had worked for numerous painters, sculptors, and photographers and that she had no thought of immoral appeal in posing for the amateurs.

PLENTY OF MEAT, BUT BRITISH CAN'T GET IT TO BUYERS

Lack of Transportation Creates Scarcity.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The transportation shortage, already responsible for a coal famine in London and the whole of southern England, now is causing a meat scarcity, a food ministry official admitted today. Butchers in several areas report many people will be unable to get their full coupon's worth of meat for Sunday.

"There is plenty of meat in the country," the food ministry spokesman assured questioners. "It is merely a matter of transportation.

"We could not foresee the difficulties of distribution but as soon as they became evident we took every possible step to overcome them," he added. "New arrangements, however, will not be in full operation until a few days have passed."

Simple Living Urged.

From other districts complaints were coming in of a scarcity of a variety of commodities. Certain districts in London were short of margarine. Again transportation was blamed as the food ministry claims to have accumulated huge stocks.

Meanwhile, the public was again warned by Food Minister Lord Woolton that it would have to "live more simply and more deliberately in the future." Inaugurating a food education campaign at Portsmouth, he told an audience, "Food is a munition of war and it is the deliberate effort of the German government to starve out this island."

In the last 16 months, Lord Woolton declared, he had been "leading the country into training" for a more Spartan existence.

"We have taken you off butter, or very nearly so," he said. "We have reduced your consumption of bacon. We have reduced your consumption of meat and we shall reduce it still further fairly soon. We have reduced tea and sugar but here you are, a thoroly healthy, contented lot of people. The German U-boat campaign has been going on with all its force to starve us out, but you are still unstarved."

Use Ships for Shells.

Outlining a need for a general belt tightening for the duration of the war, Lord Woolton declared, "We are now taking away some of the ships that have been bringing in food and using them to take shells, guns, munitions, and supplies to the men fighting in the middle east. I have told my colleagues in the government we will deliberately and willingly as a population have a little less to eat."

Lord Woolton warned the public that food hoarding was illegal, declaring, "If I come across hoarders I'll deal with them ruthlessly, remorselessly, and with intense pleasure."

HERE IS HOW BRITISH MOTORIZED TROOPS PIERCED ITALIAN LINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 13.—Details of the operation enabling the British motorized divisions to penetrate to the Egyptian coast and cut off the Italian force at Sidi Barrani were revealed today.

In September, when Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's Italian troops reached Sidi Barrani, a famous mechanized British regiment was given special instructions to harass them and prevent the Italians from completing a line of highly fortified camps.

For weeks the mechanized units carried out incessant attacks. This resulted in an open gap being maintained in the Italian front positions, frustrating attempts to complete the chain. At the zero hour on Monday the breach was still open and motorized units were able to drive in according to the plan. Sidi Barrani was occupied by the British on Wednesday.

NEW U. S. BLITZ DIVISION ROLLS 115 MILES MORE

Panama City, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP).—The second armored division—10,000 men and 2,500 vehicles—breezed into Panama City today on the second phase of the army's first field expedition with a full mechanized division.

The division rolled the second 115 miles of the trip out of Fort Benning in record breaking time. The column left Abbeville, Ala., at 7 a. m. Chicago time and arrived here before noon. Tanks that weigh 25,000 pounds whipped up speeds above 40 miles an hour on the good highways. Other vehicles included trucks, some of them huge ten wheelers; combat cars and headquarters cars.

Officers, already elated by yesterday's performance in bringing the division out of Fort Benning for the first time since it was organized, described the second leg of the trip as even better than expected.

BRITISH SHELLS SINK SHIP SET ON FIRE BY GERMANS

U. S. Naval Officer Tells of Scuttling.

Key West, Fla., Dec. 13 [Special].—Commander Wilder Baker of the United States neutrality patrol off Key West, today told the story of the scuttling and sinking of the German tanker Rhein, which attempted to run the British blockade from Tampico, Mexico.

Baker viewed the scene off the Cuban coast from aboard the destroyer MacLeish early Wednesday morning, and told how the Dutch training ship, Van Kingsbergen, cooperating with British warships, pursued the tanker and forced its scuttling.

Shots Sink Ship.

The British cruiser Caradoc, which arrived in the area later and removed the German crew taken aboard the Van Kingsbergen, fired four shots into the flaming vessel to sink her, Baker said. The freighter had burned for 15 hours before it was sunk.

The American destroyer, one of those assigned to observe and report on the movements of the vessels of belligerent nations within the neutrality zone, came upon the scene shortly after the Rhein was set afire, Baker said.

"The Rhein was fired by her crew about 1:30 a. m. Wednesday, well within the American neutrality zone," he said. [The exact spot was not revealed.]

Tells of Scene.

"When the MacLeish arrived at the scene the Dutch training ship Van Kingsbergen, which is slightly larger than a destroyer, was in close pursuit of the tanker. Suddenly flames shot from forward and stern and the German ship was a blazing inferno. Life boats were lowered and the crew abandoned ship.

"The Dutch crew did not board the Rhein until after she had been fired. They did not remain aboard long as they realized that it was impossible to extinguish the fire. The crewmen of the Rhein were removed from their lifeboats by Dutch sailors and taken aboard the Van Kingsbergen. Later they were transferred to the British cruiser Caradoc as prisoners. The Caradoc did not arrive until the tanker was aflame."

U. S. COURT RULES A PLEA OF GUILTY MAY BE CHANGED

Cincinnati, O., Dec. 13 (AP).—In a precedent setting decision, the 6th United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled today that a person who has pleaded guilty in a federal criminal action may—under certain conditions—withdraw that plea and substitute therefor a plea of innocence.

The case was that of Sam Ward of 1263 Pratt boulevard, Chicago, convicted and sentenced last May in a mail fraud case arising from cemetery lot sales. Ward was sentenced to two years imprisonment after denial of a request for permission to withdraw pleas of guilt.

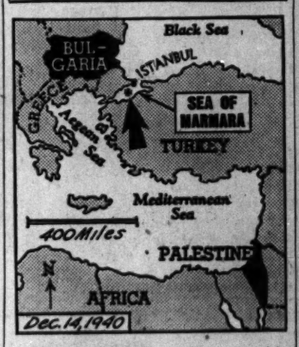
Remanding the case for retrial, Appellate Judge Herschel W. Arant wrote: "We do not find that this question has been decided by any federal court. The prevailing view, however, appears to be that the [district] court's denial of leave to withdraw a plea of guilty is examinable on review, to determine whether such denial is in accord with the exercise of a sound judicial judgment."

ASKS PRESIDENT TO PUT O. K. ON LOGAN MEASURE

Oscar G. Mayer, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, in a public statement yesterday, urged President Roosevelt to approve the Walter-Logan bill in the interest of both government and business. The bill, which awaits the President's signature or veto, is designed to subject actions of federal bureaus to judicial review.

"The growing number of such agencies in recent years, with broad powers to issue regulations and interpretations of questions in doubt, has made compliance with and understanding of the law difficult and confusing," said Mayer .

Ship Sinks; 200 Lost



Cross marks place where a ship carrying some 300 Jewish refugees from Bulgaria to Palestine was wrecked.

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Dec. 13 (AP).—More than 200 Jewish refugees were dead or missing in the storm-lashed Sea of Marmara today following the foundering of a motorship crowded with more than 300 passengers bound from Bulgaria to Palestine.

Seventy-one bodies were recovered today and 137 persons were listed as missing. Many were women and children. A total of 122 passengers were saved. The name of the ship, which went to pieces near the Turkish shore, was not determined. The captain swam ashore and was held pending an investigation.

Survivors were landed at a small village without a telephone and details of the disaster were scant. It was said the ship went down so quickly the passengers had no time to take to lifeboats.

LOTHIAN'S ASHES TO BE PLACED IN ARLINGTON VAULT

Funeral Services Will Be Held Tomorrow.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—An unprecedented honor will be paid to the late Marquess of Lothian, British ambassador to the United States, who died suddenly early yesterday, by having his ashes interred in a vault in Arlington National cemetery, the state department announced today.

His ashes are expected to remain there at least for the duration of the war. Interment in the National cemetery heretofore has been confined to men who have served in the armed forces of the United States or immediate members of their families.

Funeral services will be held here Sunday afternoon at which the Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington and the Very Rev. Noble Powell, dean of the cathedral will officiate, reading the Anglican office for burial of the dead.

Escort of Cavalry.

Following this, a detachment of cavalry and a mounted band from nearby Fort Meyer will escort the caisson bearing the remains of the ambassador. Private cremation services will be held at Fort Lincoln cemetery.

Monday at noon the ashes will be taken to Arlington, where they will be met at the main gate by a military escort and the ambassador's salute of 19 guns will be fired.

The urn containing the ashes then will be deposited in the vault under the mast of the memorial to the U. S. S. Maine, a short distance from the amphitheater and the tomb of the unknown soldier. The ashes will remain in Arlington until arrangements can be made for final disposition.

Matter Up to President.

Burial plans are incomplete. No decision has been reached on the possibility of sending his ashes back to Britain aboard an American cruiser. The matter is in the hands of President Roosevelt, the state department said.

It was believed no such action would be taken until the end of the war because of the danger of an untoward incident occurring on such a voyage.

When the late ambassador of Japan, Hirosi Saito, died here, his ashes were returned to Japan on an American cruiser. The vessel was not in the zone of Japanese-Sino hostilities.

SEIZE BOY PURSE SNATCHERS.

Twenty recent purse snatchings on the near west side were reported solved by Desplaines street police last night with the arrest of five young Mexican boys, none older than 16 years. The prisoners were taken to the Juvenile home.

DUNCAN HINTED AS BRITAIN'S NEW U. S. AMBASSADOR

Sir Andrew Duncan. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

LONDON, Dec. 13 (AP).—Speculation tonight centered upon Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, a former corporation lawyer and industrialist and now British minister of supply, as a probable successor to the late Lord Lothian as ambassador to the United States.

War Minister Anthony Eden had been much talked of earlier, but his name receded from private discussions. It was considered that the Washington post requires mainly a man skilled in business and finance.

Sir Andrew has spent most of his adult life in big business. He has served as a director of the Bank of England and chairman of the executive committee of the British Iron and Steel federation.

UNION PRESIDENT SAYS REDS SEEK TO GAIN CONTROL

New Kensington, Pa., Dec. 13 (AP).—Nick Zonarich, international president of the C. I. O. Aluminum Workers of America, charged today that communist party members were seeking to gain control of the union's New Kensington local No. 2, largest single unit of the organization.

The New Kensington union elects officers Sunday. Zonarich said he had been informed communist party members were sponsoring a slate of officers with the help of outside organizers.

Zonarich declared it was not his desire to interfere in the election, but that he was pledged to carry out the recent C. I. O. convention resolution condemning Nazism, communism, and Fascism "as inimical to labor and destructive of our form of government."

The New Kensington plant—working on more than $1,000,000 of defense orders—recently was closed by a C. I. O. strike.

U. S. ACTS TO BAR 5TH COLUMNISTS AMONG REFUGEES

Tighter Control Aimed at Dictator Nations.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—Evidence from various sources that the German and Russian governments are getting fifth columnists into the United States in the guise of political refugees has precipitated action to tighten up American immigration restrictions.

The administration is setting up new controls of the admission of refugees from the totalitarian countries. These controls are to be operated by a committee in process of formation representing the state, justice, war and navy departments.

The function of this committee will be to investigate the record of every applicant for political asylum in the United States to determine whether he is actually a disciple of the democratic form of government, and whether by any chance he might be a spy or saboteur or other manifestation of the fifth column. Pending the completion of this machinery the admission of several thousand refugees is being held up.

Totalitarian Nations Only.

The precautions taken apply only to the activities of fifth columnists of the totalitarian nations. They are not to be applied to the British propagandists and manipulators who have been sent to this country to get us more completely into the war.

The foremost British fifth columnist is Sir George Paish, who lobbied about the halls of congress last summer until exposed by Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.]. Wheeler quoted Paish as saying that he got the United States "into the last war" and "am going to get this country into this war." Paish sought to extenuate his conduct but did not deny the accuracy of Wheeler's quotation.

The British government was so compromised by the revelation that Lord Lothian, the British ambassador, ordered Paish on Aug. 29 to go home. Paish did not obey, however, the British embassy stating today that they heard from him a fortnight ago and that he then was staying in the vicinity of New York City. The Roosevelt administration took no steps against Paish, either by way of canceling his visitor's permit or applying the penal statute against propaganda by unregistered foreign agents.

Some Under Surveillance.

How many Nazi and communist plotters have gained admission ostensibly as refugees the immigration authorities do not undertake to estimate. Some are under surveillance by government agents. Altho steps are only now being taken to close the door to such dangerous elements the government received warning last summer by William C. Bullitt, then ambassador to France, of what was going on. As long ago as Aug. 18 in his Philadelphia speech Mr. Bullitt made his warning public.

"The agents of the dictators," he said, "are already here preparing the way for their armies. They are preparing the way in the same manner in which they prepared the way in France.

"The French had been more hospitable than are even we Americans to refugees from Germany. More than one half the spies captured doing actual military spy work against the French army were refugees from Germany."

Thousands Wait at Lisbon.

There are 15,000 refugees at Lisbon awaiting opportunity to get into the United States. Most of them are from France, German and Russian occupied Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Austria, Rumania, and the Russian occupied Baltic countries. In London there are 2,000 Poles waiting for their names to be reached on the American immigration quota.

Mr. Roosevelt threw the United States open as the asylum of the oppressed and created the "President's advisory committee on political refugees" which functions in New York under the chairmanship of James G. McDonald. Refugees are admitted as quota immigrants and also as visitors on business or pleasure for a limited period. Extensions of the period are readily granted, however, Mr. Roosevelt having stated that no refugee would be compelled to return home.

Complains Against Delays.

The advisory committee has submitted the names of nearly 1,000 refugees for admission and has complained that the state department was not granting visas expeditiously. The department says that consuls are granting visas as rapidly as they can check up on the applicants. The American Federation of Labor presented a list of more than 1,000 labor leaders in German and Russian occupied regions. Charges were made that many of these labor refugees from the Baltic states were communists.

While American groups were complaining of the delay in getting visas for refugees the Archduke Otto of Austria came to the United States on a mysterious mission. Its object became apparent after his departure when it became known that he had obtained quick action on the admission of a group of about 30 persons whom he vouched for as anti-Nazis.

[A second article to appear soon will present the statistics on the admission of refugees.]

Artists Pay Tribute to McCutcheon

JAMES MONTGOMERY FLAGG

These two drawings honoring John T. McCutcheon are reproduced in program of Indiana society's dinner tonight. Flagg, internationally famous illustrator, made his drawing in 1914. Rube Goldberg, cartoonist on the New York Sun, made his especially for the dinner.

WOMAN WHO TOSSED BASKET TO WELCOME WILLKIE ACQUITTED

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13 [Special].—Miss Dorothy Laroue, former Reconstruction Finance corporation stenographer who tossed a waste basket out of a hotel window during a Wendell Willkie welcome here Sept. 30, was acquitted of a felonious assault charge today by a recorders' court jury of three men and nine women.

Miss Betty Wilson, 19 years old, of 2438 Linden street, Detroit, who was struck on the head by the metal basket, was one of the witnesses at the three day trial. She had 13 stitches taken in her scalp for treatment of the injury.

"I don't know why I did it, "Miss Laroue said, on the stand. "Other people were tossing things, so I did. I didn't see anybody in the way [much less Willkie] except some policemen on horseback."

She said she resigned her federal job when President Roosevelt, taking cognizance of Willkie's tumultuous welcome here, said if she were guilty she should resign.

The jury agreed that loss of a job she had held for seven years was punishment enough.

PULPWOOD MEN TO PONDER LABOR STANDARDS ACT

Thomas O'Malley, regional director of the wage hour division, announced last night that 624 Wisconsin pulpwood cutters would meet at Rhinelander Monday to discuss the fair labor standards act.

The meeting, O'Malley said, was called jointly by officials of seven upper Wisconsin river paper mills and the wage-hour division of the labor department.

The firms he listed were: the Nekoosa-Edwards Paper company., Port Edwards; Marathon Paper Mills company., Wausau; Wausau Paper Mills company, Wausau; Tomahawk Kraft Paper company, Tomahawk; Mosinee Paper mills, Mosinee; Rhinelander Paper company, Rhinelander, and the Consolidated Water Power and Paper company, Wisconsin Rapids.

HOOSIERS HONOR McCUTCHEON AT DINNER TONIGHT

Expect 1,250 Guests at $12.50 a Plate.

The 29th annual dinner of the Indiana Society of Chicago will be held tonight in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel, with a record turnout of 1,250 guests expected — and at $12.50 a plate.

The society is made up of Hoosier boys who made good, and one of them is to be the guest of honor at tonight's affair. He is John T. McCutcheon of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, dean of American cartoonists.

Officially the dinner will commemorate McCutcheon's [70th] birthday. His last birthday was in May, but this seven month lapse isn't bothering the society, whose annual dinners have been described by its past president, George Ade, the humorist, as a combination of circus, carnival, and old home week.

Life Will Be Dramatized.

The cartoonist's eventful life as war artist and correspondent, cartoonist, and writer will be dramatized in song and narrative. "Injun Summer," one of his outstanding sketches, will be reproduced in heroic size. A special newsreel will be dedicated to him, and a presentation—exactly what it is is a secret—will be made to him on behalf of the society by Will Hays, Indianan and movie czar.

An elaborate program of entertainment has been prepared, all of it touching in one way or another upon Indiana and Indiana's sons. Cadets from Culver Military academy will present colors, and the Indiana university glee club will proclaim in song the glories of the Hoosier state. Constance Merrell of the Chicago Opera company, who once called Kokomo home, will sing "On the Banks of the Wabash." Pianist Alec Templeton and the Hoosier Hot Shots of radio fame will do their bits. The scenic background, the work of Nathaniel A. Owings, will bear a decided Indiana touch.

Four Will Conduct Program.

There will be four masters of ceremony—F. Harold Van Orman, former lieutenant governor of Indiana, and Philip Maxwell, Herb Graffis, and Al H. Wynkoop, newspaper men. Dr. William Chalmers Covert will deliver the invocation, and Mark A. Brown, banker and president of the society, will make the address of welcome.

Among those at the speakers' table will be Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana, Gov. John Stelle of Illinois, Governor-Elect Henry F. Schricker of Indiana, Gen. Charles G. Dawes, Federal Judge Will M. Sparks, Congressman Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, the Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, C. S. C., president of Notre Dame university; Dr. Edward C. Elliott, president of Purdue university; Dr. Herman B. Wells, president of Indiana university; Dr. George V. Kendall, president of Wabash college; Dr. Clyde E. Wildman, president of DePauw university; Walter L. Gregory, vice president of the Palmer House; Roy D. Keehn, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker corporation; Everett Sanders, Washington lawyer, and Fletcher M. Durbin, investment executive.

SELECT MODEL USED BY CANADA FOR U. S. RECRUITING POSTERS

New York, Dec. 13 [Special].—Blonde Elaine Bassett, tall and statuesque, today was selected to pose for United States army posters to make her the unofficial champion recruiter of the continent. The New York model already has posed for Canadian recruiting posters. Even so, she not only has no liking for things military, but is hoping her husband will escape the draft because of his flat feet. Happily married, she said her heart "just isn't in this army stuff." She is the daughter of a Baptist minister in Dallas, Tex., who did not approve of his daughter becoming a model, but who later became fully reconciled to the idea. He now has two other daughters who are models here.

IT DOESN'T RING TRUE.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 13 (AP).—The fancy cash register in the traffic bureau went haywire, so police brought in a standard type. That's why motorists paying traffic fines receive receipts inscribed: "We appreciate your patronage. Thank you."

ARMY DISPUTES REPORTS MANY OFFICERS UNFIT

Few Reserves Rejected, Officials Say.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—War department officials today denied reports that a large percentage of the officer personnel had been found incompetent or physically unfit for service. However, they did not provide figures to support their denials.

They said that losses among officers in the regular army from all causes, including death, retirements, court martial, etc., have only amounted to 2½ or 3 per cent of the officer personnel, which totals 14,100 according to recent figures.

The officials said that officers in the regular army are subjected to two or three physical examinations per year and also before promotion. If found unfit for service they are retired. They admitted, however, that the percentage of retirements runs bigger in the higher ranks, such as major and lieutenant colonel, because of the age factor.

No Figures on Others.

No information could be obtained from headquarters here on the percentage of incompetency in the ranks of reserve officer and National Guard officer personnel. Officials said that examinations of National Guard and reserve officers are conducted in each corps area and that only the headquarters of each corps area would have the data.

According to reliable information, however, only about 60 per cent of the staff reserve officers have been found competent and only between 30 and 40 per cent of the line officers. The army has called into active duty only 14,300 out of the 126,000 eligible reserve officers in the nation. Active officers in the National Guard total approximately 5,800.

Army officials here said that reserve officers are not given annual physical examinations but are examined only when called into active service. They claimed that the percentage turned down, however, has been "very low," as mostly younger officers in the lower grades have been called.

Ease National Guard Requirements.

Just last month, however, the war department eased its physical examinations so that older national guard officers could go on active duty. Instructions were issued for the waiving of physical defects which "will not interfere with satisfactory performance of field duties appropriate to the grade and assignment of the individual."

According to impartial military experts this move would only serve to weaken the army, as many of the National Guard officers in the high ranks, at least, owe their rank to political influence. These experts have also contended that many of the officers of higher rank in the regular army are unfit for service and should be retired, making way for younger men.

It has been estimated conservatively that about half of the American general officers during the world war were inefficient. The army's 32 general officers then averaged about 60 years of age, and of eight holding rank of major general at the start of the war only one, Gen. John J. Pershing, saw active field service in the war.

DUKE DISCUSSES 'ISLAND BASES WITH PRESIDENT

Flown Out to Cruiser on a Navy Plane.

ABOARD U. S. S. TUSCALOOSA, Eleuthera Island, the Bahamas, Dec. 13 (AP).—President Roosevelt and the Duke of Windsor conferred for nearly three hours today aboard the Presidential flagship concerning United States defense outposts protecting the Panama canal and the mainland of the three Americas.

The duke told reporters that the people of the Bahamas looked with great favor on the establishment of the bases and that "we are ready to do what the President wants when he gives the word."

An Unfavorable Site.

The President disclosed at an informal press conference that plans for the establishment of a Bahamas base were being held in abeyance because of unfavorable anchorage and other conditions at Mayaguana island, which he inspected yesterday.

He also has seen little San Salvador, Long, and Eleuthera islands, but said none was entirely satisfactory for a base site and that the problem required further study.

During the conference, the Tuscaloosa was anchored off this British island, about 70 miles from Nassau, the headquarters of the duke, who is governor general of the Bahamas.

Flown in Navy Plane.

The duke arrived at 10:15 a. m. [Chicago time] from Miami, Fla., in a four engined naval patrol bomber. He was welcomed aboard the Tuscaloosa with full honors, and immediately went into conference.

The President and the duke discussed economic and defense conditions of the islands. Mr. Roosevelt agreed to arrange for Windsor to come to the United States early next year to study the Civilian Conservation corps. The duke said he probably would establish something similar for unskilled Bahamas Negroes.

Discussing his 11 day inspection tour of Caribbean defense sites, including those at Jamaica, St. Lucia, Antigua, and the Bahamas, the President told reporters that, obviously, the further you kept from the American continent a potential attack against it, the safer it would be for the continent.

Far Out as Possible.

That meant, he said, that we wanted to be as far out as we could be. Newfoundland, he said, was as far as we could go in the north, and Bermuda as far off the coast as we could go. With no island between Bermuda and Puerto Rico, he said, the Bahamas was the next best thing and would serve also as stepping stone for the maintenance of the southern end of the outer defense line in the Windward and Leeward islands in case of attack.

The President said there would be no such thing as a Gibraltar and that the United States must have many bases because naval war in these waters would be more mobile than in waters involving such a strait as Gibraltar.

Concerning his discussion of the Bahamas with the duke, the President said the economics of the islands fitted into the economics of the American islands. Mr. Roosevelt said he discussed economics also with the governors of Jamaica and Antigua.

"God Save the King."

The plane which brought the duke was set down on a smooth sea after a 240 mile flight from Miami. Windsor, accompanied by his aide de camp, Capt. Vyvyan Drury, stood bare-headed in a rainsquall while he was piped aboard the Tuscaloosa. The band played "God Save the King." The ceremonies were repeated when the duke left the ship and boarded the plane for Miami. [He reached there at 3:35 p. m. Chicago time.]

The Tuscaloosa and her escorts, the destroyers Mayrant and Trippe, headed tonight toward the United States. [At Charleston, S. C., it was reported the President's ship would dock there tomorrow.

HUNT TWO YOUNG GUNMEN.

Police were searching last night for two young gunmen who robbed a shooting gallery at 430 South State street and a cigar store at 122 West Van Buren street Thursday night.

HILLMAN FIGHTS AWARD TO FORD OF U. S. CONTRACT

Action Involves Terms of Wagner Act.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 (AP).—The long controversy as to whether firms accused of violating the Wagner act should be denied defense contracts came to a head today with the disclosure that Sidney Hillman, labor member of the defense commission, has protested against a 2 million dollar award to the Ford Motor company.

The order calls for some 1,500 midget cars, designed for high speed scout work, and a number of other automobiles.

Protest Is Two Weeks Old.

Aides of Hillman said the protest had been made about two weeks ago on the ground that the award carried no stipulation for compliance with the labor laws, particularly the Wagner act as it concerns the right of labor to organize and bargain collectively without employer interference.

War department officials commented that William S. Knudsen, production chief of the defense commission, had cleared the project in question. They said the Ford company had been ordered to proceed with the work pending completion of the actual contract, but that the contract had not yet been signed either by Ford or the department.

Robert P. Patterson, assistant secretary of war in charge of industrial procurement, said merely that he knew some protest had been lodged. He declined further comment.

Usual Labor Clause.

Other officials of the department declared that the contemplated contract with Ford included the same labor clause as in other normal contracts. This clause stipulated, they said, that the manufacturer must comply with the Walsh-Healy act regulating the wages and hours of employés working on government contracts.

Knudsen, former president of General Motors, has opposed the idea of withholding contracts from alleged labor law violators until the courts have passed finally upon the allegations.

A labor board decision against the Ford Motor company was upheld in part and overturned in part by the 6th Circuit Court of Appeals last Oct. 8. The Appellate court refused to enforce the board's order that the company cease distributing pamphlets among its workers outlining the firm's views concerning unions. At the same time, the appellate judges granted the board an order requiring that the company cease its alleged interference with the right of collective bargaining. The case has not yet been settled by the Supreme court.

WARNS AGAINST VETO OF BILL TO CURB NEW DEAL

Burke Calls on Roosevelt to Study Record.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—Admonishing President Roosevelt to study the record before vetoing the Walter-Logan administrative law bill, Senator Edward R. Burke [D., Neb.], asserted tonight that "only a power crazed bureaucrat who wants to regulate the lives of the citizens without interference" could object to the measure.

Senator Burke, a member of the judiciary subcommittee which considered the Walter-Logan bill and piloted it thru the senate, spoke over a nation-wide radio network urging citizens who believe in the principles of the legislation to make their position known before it is too late. President Roosevelt is expected to veto the bill within a few days. If he does, and a two-thirds vote cannot be mustered in each house of congress to override the veto, the bill will die with the expiration of the present congress on Jan. 3.

Defends Bill as Lucid.

Replying to New Deal criticism that the bill cannot be understood, Senator Burke expounded its provisions in simple, lucid terms. It is intended, he explained, to erect judicial safeguards around the procedure of some 130 administrative agencies of the federal government, which act as complainant, prosecutor, judge, and jury in a multiplicity of matters affecting the rights and liberties of citizens.

"It is significant," said Senator Burke, "that opponents of the measure during all this time have not suggested a single change in phraseology or other constructive criticism. They have been actuated by one compelling motive—the desire for outright defeat of the entire proposal.

"When they say that the bill is loosely drawn their words do not ring true. If sincere they would admit that what they want is to keep the administrative agencies free from all manner of checks and balances."

Explains Main Objectives.

Senator Burke explained that the bill has four main objectives. First, he said, it requires the administrative agencies to publish notice of their intention to issue rules and regulations governing their procedure. Any citizen who believes he may be affected would have the right to appear and be heard. The citizen has such a right, Burke declared, because these rules and regulations have the effect of law, applying in detail the general statute enacted by congress.

Second, the bill authorizes a simple and expeditious method of judicial review, available to any citizen who believes that an administrative rule or regulation is contrary to the constitution or the statute under which it was issued, Burke explained. Any citizen who questions the validity of an administrative rule or regulation governing the procedure of the agency issuing it may take an appeal and have it considered by a United States Court of Appeals.

Written Record Required.

Third, Senator Burke continued, the bill requires the administrative agencies to establish procedure for the holding of hearings on the demand of any aggrieved citizen, so that a written record may be made. The citizen involved in a controversy with his government would have the same right to call witnesses, to cross-examine government witnesses, and to subpena documents, as if it were a case in a United States District court.

Fourth, the bill provides for uniform and expeditious appeals to the United States Circuit Courts of Appeals from the final decisions of the administrative agencies, Burke said. The courts would have a somewhat broader jurisdiction than they now possess, including power to review the findings of fact, as well as the conclusions of law, of the administrative agencies.

"The Walter-Logan bill does not take away any basic rights or privileges or duties," Senator Burke asserted. "It is concerned, as has been demonstrated, only with procedure. Its single purpose is in a reasonable manner to regulate the regulators. That is a consummation devoutely to be desired by all citizens who are brought into contact with their government, and today that means practically the entire population."

ADMITS QUITTING BAR UNION RACE AFTER NITTI DEAL

Former Candidate Tells of Job Promise.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney revealed yesterday that Arthur Donahue, who until Thursday had been a candidate for business agent of the bartenders' union, had withdrawn from the race after making a secret deal for a union job with a faction allegedly dominated by Frank [The Enforcer] Nitti.

This was brought out during an investigation to determine whether gangland threats had forced Donahue or other candidates from the election field.

Romano's Son on Pay Roll.

Other developments during the day were:

1. State's attorney's investigators discovered that Mike Romano, 24 years old, is on the pay roll of the waiters' union as an organizer at $65 a week. Romano is the son of Louis Romano, who is a former president of the bartenders' union and is described as a Nitti associate.

2. It was learned that the president of the waiters' union, allegedly under gang domination, is paid $20 a week and is permitted to operate an apple concession in union headquarters at 5 West Grand avenue. He is Ben Parker, 67 years old, 5429 Washington boulevard. During the unsuccessful attempt to convict Nitti of conspiracy to seize the bartenders' union it was brought out that the waiters' union pays $1,800 a month to Danny Stanton, a prohibition beer runner and hoodlum.

Progressive Slate Called In.

Members of a Progressive ticket who have announced their determination to throw off hoodlum control in the bartenders' union were called to the state's attorney's office with Donahue for questioning. They are Austen Steeves, candidate for president; Al Reynolds, candidate for secretary-treasurer; John Nagel, candidate for recording secretary; Tony Bastione, candidate for chaplain, and John McLaughlin and Richard Nugent, candidates for trustees.

At first Donahue told Courtney he had withdrawn because the others on the ticket failed to make a vigorous election campaign. The other candidates denied this and said they were in the campaign to win.

Donahue then was recalled and admitted to Courtney that he had been promised a job as a subsidiary business agent if he agreed "to go along." He said the promise was made by George B. McLane, veteran business agent and candidate for reëlection on a slate supposedly backed by Nitti. Prompted by Courtney, Donahue repeated his story in the presence of the other candidates.

Seven Others Questioned.

In addition to Parker and young Romano, seven other officers of the waiters' union were questioned by state's attorney's police, who sought to determine whether the union has a hoodlum tie-up.

They are Guy R. Swinehart, secretary-treasurer of the union; Sam E. Van Cleve, district representative; Jack Abrams, vice president; Harry Goodman, business agent; Julius Zalusky, a trustee; William Swinehart, son of the secretary-treasurer, and a district representative and organizer, and Thomas C. Rogan, recording secretary. Guy Swinehart refused to divulge his salary. Goodman and Rogan said they each draw $100 weekly. Zalusky said he serves without pay, and the others said they receive less than $100 a week.

SEIZE 7 ALLEGED THIEVES IN AUTO ACCESSORY RING

Seven men, alleged members of a gang that stole thousands of dollars worth of merchandise from auto accessory dealers, were held by the state's attorney's police last night. Sergt. William Gibbons, who questioned the men, said about $6,000 of their loot had been recovered.

Two of the gang were pursued and arrested by County Highway Policemen Harold Fandrey and Dan Douglas when they ran past a stoplight at 55th street and Harlem avenue late Thursday. They are Richard Klatt, 19 years old, 5342 South Newland avenue, and Francis Young, 18, of 5649 South Austin avenue. In the car with them were two pistols.

This pair disclosed information against the others. George Skalla, 20, of 5808 South Normandy avenue, and Albert Zwieyzycki, 19, of 5544 South Oak Park avenue, were the next seized. Three others, accused as fences, were arrested, but denied any connection with the burglaries and their names were withheld. Gibbons said the gang got $1,500 worth of accessories at the Chicago Automobile and Body Sales company, 5057 South Western avenue, in mid-November.

JOBLESS WAR VET KILLS SELF.

Carlton Lawrence, 54 years old, 6422 North Richmond street, an unemployed war veteran, committed suicide yesterday by cutting his throat in his home. Friends told police Lawrence was disconsolate after he lost a job following 27 years of employment.

3 FREED BY JUDGE KEEP FREEDOM IN WARRANT DELAY

Indicted After Court Has Them Released.

Three alleged bootleggers who were let out of jail Thursday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward still were at liberty yesterday. That's about half the story. The other half is that deputy marshals were running around in mental circles trying to find authority to arrest them on indictments returned a short time after the judge released them.

The best guess of the marshals was that the three men—Daniel Warfield, colored, Frank Sajdak, and Michael Hercyk—were safe from the hand of the law until Monday. It did not appear probable, they said, that the necessary bench warrants for their seizure could be obtained until then.

Judge Charges Laxity.

The trio belonged in a batch of 22 prisoners who had been held in prison for weeks while the federal machinery ground slowly on their cases. Judge Woodward, charging the United States district attorney's office was lax in not bringing them to trial, summoned all 22 before him. Two assistant prosecutors, Martin Ward and Earle C. Hurley, said that they understood true bills had been voted by the grand jury against the prisoners and promised to bring them to trial in a week.

The judge was only partially placated. He declared the men were being deprived of their day in court and were being held in custody an unduly long time. He let Warfield, Sajdak, and Hercyk go.

A little while later the grand jury, which had stayed in session the whole day, returned a batch of 32 indictments. Among those indicted were the released men.

Bench Warrants Delayed.

The indictments were sent to the office of the clerk of the court, Hoyt King. With them were notations that some of those named, among them Warfield, Sajdak, and Hercyk, were in the county jail; Judge Woodward's swift action hadn't been recorded long enough to straighten out the matter.

Bench warrants for the arrest of those indicted were duly made out and approved by the court. None were made out for those recorded as being in jail. The lapse, so far as the released three was concerned, was discovered yesterday morning.

Plans were made to get bench warrants for them. This laudable intention was wrecked when it was learned all the district judges and those of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals were attending their annual meeting at 1212 Lake Shore drive and couldn't be disturbed. It was considered doubtful that warrants could be obtained today.

Bandits Kill Grocery Clerk in an Unsuccessful Holdup

Fred Mackechen, 50 years old, colored, was killed last night during the attempted holdup of a grocery at 4120 Calumet avenue where he was employed as a clerk. Three colored holdup men were routed by Gary Much, one of the store owners, and in the exchange of shots Mackechen was killed. James Goodwin, 19, of 4201 Prairie avenue, colored, was found later near the store with a bullet wound in his leg. He was identified as one of the holdup men, but

REFINERY SET AFIRE BY LIGHTNING; 19 HURT BY BOILING OIL

Texas City, Tex., Dec. 13 (AP).—A shift in the wind gave firemen hopes of checking a huge fire tonight at the Southport Petroleum company's tank farm, where 19 workmen suffered burns and scalds from flaming oil.

At about the same time that the wind shifted from the east to the northeast, two of four blazing oil tanks burned themselves out.

Four workmen were burned critically and 15 scalded as they attempted to quench the flames in tank containing 55,000 barrels of crude oil.

Asks Hunt for Girl, 13, Missing Since Nov. 26

Mrs. Elsie Jewell of 2534 South St. Louis avenue appealed yesterday to police to find her daughter, Lorraine, 13 years old, who has been missing since Nov. 26. Playmates said Lorraine was last seen at the Robert Burns school, where she is a pupil in the eighth grade. She was wearing a gray skirt and sweater when she left home.

FORMER DETROIT MAYOR PLEADS GUILTY IN FRAUD

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13 [Special].—Former Mayor Richard W. Reading pleaded guilty in federal court today to three counts involving fraud in making a statement to a bank receiver. Federal Judge Frank A. Picard deferred sentence until after Jan. 1.

The former mayor, who left office a year ago, admitted that shortly before he took office Jan. 1, 1938, he falsely reported his assets as only $100 in a statement to B. C. Schram, receiver for the First National Bank of Detroit. Schram at that time was trying to collect $16,000 from Reading. Actually, Reading admitted today, his assets then included more than $30,000 in cash, which he kept in a safety deposit box. The two other counts involved use of the mails in connection with the fradulent statement.

Reading is accused in another federal indictment of income tax evasion, and on two state warrants involving the acceptance of protection money from gambling interests.

Police Sniff the Air, Then Follow Noses to a Still

Sergt. Roy Hallen and members of his squad noticed a peculiar odor in the air last night as they drove thru the Chicago Lawn district. Their sniffs led them to what appeared to be a deserted barn at 5707 Massasoit avenue. Inside they found a still in operation and two 3,200 gallon vats filled with mash. Two men found on the scene—Sam Concialdi and Frank Ernasto—were seized.

U. S. JURY INDICTS NINE ON CHARGE OF STOCK FRAUD

Loss to Investors Placed at 7 Millions.

Nine persons associated with Resources Corporation International, 333 North Michigan avenue, were indicted yesterday by a special federal grand jury on charges that they defrauded hundreds of investors of $7,000,000 by the fraudulent sale of stock in a Mexican timber development.

Arnold Joerns [top] and Leonard L. Cowan.

The indictment, charging mail fraud and violations of the securities and exchange act, was the result of a two month investigation by the grand jury. It began after the Securities and Exchange commission suspended the registration of 35,000 shares of common stock in the company last summer at the conclusion of a hearing begun in 1938, which revealed the strange financial transactions of the corporation.

Promoter Killed in Crash.

Not named in the indictment was the corporation's first president and promoter, the late Harper S. Hoover. Hoover was found dead under the wreckage of his automobile in Wisconsin July 25, two weeks after the SEC suspended his efforts to sell more stock to the public.

The indictment listed scores of investors who had lost heavliy after expecting to reap large profits from the development of a two million acre tract of timber the corporation was supposed to own in Mexico. Among them were several prominent business men.

Heading the list of those indicted is Arnold Joerns, 50 years old, 519 Barry avenue, president of the corporation. He was former head of his own advertising company, and is a member of the Union League club and the Chicago Association of Commerce.

The Others Indicted.

Those indicted with him are:

W. L. Kellogg, 66, of 594 Hickory road, Glen Ellyn, a former president of the company and formerly associated in an executive capacity with several railroads and railroad supply companies.

George E. Howard, 45, of 190 East Chestnut street, secretary.

Bruce L. Hoover, nephew of the company's promoter and closely associated with his uncle in the promotion of company stock. He lives in San Antonio, Tex., and Mexico City, and was supposed to be the company's representative in Mexico.

William D. Durland, New Orleans, La., formerly connected with James D. Lacey & Co., timber dealers, who is accused of placing a fraudulent valuation of $110,000,000 on the timber properties.

Attorney Leonard L. Cowan, with offices at 10 South La Salle street, who was legal counsel for the corporation. The indictment states that he was active in organizational activities.

Ray Soldwell, accountant, auditor, and office manager of the company.

John J. Jennings of Detroit, a stock broker, who supposedly handled several of the stock deals.

Franklin A. Hofheins, president of the Am-Mex Sales company of Buffalo, N. Y., who had contracted to cut timber on the Mexican land.

Many Victims Well Known.

Among the well known victims of the scheme was Stanley S. Kresge, Detroit, Mich., a majority stockholder in the Kresge department stores, whose loss was placed at $500,000. Others included John J. Woolverton, South Bend, Ind., president of the Malleable Steel Range Manufacturing company; E. J. Gittins, Racine, Wis., former chairman of J. I. Case & Co.; George F. Argetsinger, Rochester, N. Y., former New York state senator and now controler of the city of Rochester, and Col. George T. Langhorne, Chicago, retired army officer and former president of the Field museum.

A. Bradley Eben and Thomas B. Hart, assistant United States attorneys, presented the case to the grand jury, which resulted in the 80 page indictment detailing the alleged fraud.

Stock Scheme Outlined.

Following is the stock promotion scheme as outlined in the indictment:

In 1928 Hoover organized the International Syndicate with a capital of $1,500,000 subscribed by small investors. The company supposedly was formed to purchase certain Mexican timber lands, to be leased later to contractors for cutting.

Hoover and his associates reorganized the company in 1931 as the Resources Corporation International. Investors in the old company were given one share of stock in the new company for each $10 they had invested.

The indictment says they were told the corporation had obtained $7,500,000 by the sale of stock to new investors. None of the investors was ever informed that the timber land, while valuable, had been grossly overvaluated, and was 700 miles from the nearest transportation facilities, the bill states.

In reorganizing the company the defendants actually obtained only about $1,000,000 by subscription. They were thus enabled to retain for themselves 600,000 shares of stock, with a supposed book value of $6,000,000 which had cost them nothing, according to the bill.

Early in 1931 an extensive sales campaign was inaugurated, and $5,000,000 worth of the stock was sold to the public.

By 1937 the market value of the stock had declined to $2.50 bid and $3.50 asked. To stimulate sales of more stock Hoover and his associates advanced $744,000 of their own funds to pay a 2 per cent dividend, it is charged.

Stockholders were told that the money represented prepayments by contractors who intended to cut the timber. Actually the promoters merely "financed" the contractors who then turned the money back at once to the company, a book transaction, the indictment says.

Because most of the stock was held by the defendants, most of the $744,000 actually was never paid out to investors—another simple book transaction.

Stock Price Moves Up.

As soon as the dividend was declared, however, the stock of the company advanced in price to $10 bid, $10.25 asked. Hoover and his associates then sold 176,548 shares, realizing a gross profit of $1,729,942.

In addition, Hoover was given 1,862 shares, valued at $18,625. They represented his "commission" for obtaining the supposed timber cutting contracts.

It was charged in the indictment that in this manner, and by other misrepresentations, Hoover and his associates received $4,700,000 personnally.

In testifying at the SEC hearing, Soldwell, the auditor, said that money paid in by investors was never kept in the company's bank account. There never was a bank account, he said, and the money was held in the personal account of Hoover who made all payments, even for office expenses.

At other SEC hearings, company officials testified that Hoover held an equity in the timber lands for which he originally paid only $152,919, and which he later sold to the corporation. Eventually, according to these witnesses, the corporation invested nearly $1,000,000, but valued the timber holdings at $9,000,000 for the purpose of interesting investors.

Had Fathers in Mind

Cleveland, O., Dec. 13 [Special].—A new baby diaper that is pinless and waterproof has been invented by a Cleveland man, Joseph La Kritz. The novel garment, which is expected to be a boon to both mothers and babies, is put on in the usual manner, but is held with a belt which is fastened with two rings. However, La Kritz said he had the fathers particularly in mind. The diaper is in one piece. The inventor has been a clothes designer for 15 years.

NEW AND NOVEL CHARGE ENTERS JOSLYN HEARING

His Attorney Accused of Witness Plot.

Another hearing was held yesterday in the Joslyn case, and this time Alvin C. Hubbard, attorney for George R. Joslyn, was on the receiving end of charges in the celebrated suit.

Alvin C. Hubbard.

Hubbard was accused of trying to influence two witnesses who had been scheduled to appear in behalf of Joslyn's former wife, Mrs. Charlotte Joslyn, in her divorce suit last fall.

The charges were made before Master in Chancery John J. Kelly, before whom Hubbard is contesting Attorney Thomas Hart Fisher's bill for $24,000 as legal fees for representing Mrs. Joslyn in the divorce case.

Explains Handwriting Bill.

Attorney Harold Keele, Fisher's representative, called his associate, Attorney Norman Crawford, to the stand to explain the hiring of a handwriting expert at $1,200 in Mrs. Joslyn's behalf.

"We wanted to be sure we were doing all we could to protect Mrs. Joslyn," Crawford testified. "We had learned that Mr. Hubbard had tampered with two of our witnesses. We——"

Hubbard bolted upright in his chair.

"What do you mean by that?" he shouted. "Who were these witnesses you talk about?"

Two Witnesses Named.

"They were Lawrence Haley and Champ Cotton," answered Crawford. "Haley said you had tried to get him to change his story. Cotton told me you tried to get in touch with him."

The testimony evoked a clamor in the hearing room, and Mrs. Joslyn, who had been sitting on a sofa in the corner, looked on with mounting interest. Kelly finally restored order.

Earlier in the day Fisher disavowed any improper relations with Mrs. Joslyn, as he had Thursday at the start of the hearing. Hubbard had charged their relations were other than those of attorney and client, and that Fisher thereby had lost his claim to legal fees.

The hearing will be resumed Wednesday, when Joslyn, son of a wealthy manufacturer of electrical supplies, will be called to the stand.

GIFTS OF GEMS TO 'HEAL' TOLD AT I AM TRIAL

Cultist Bade Students to Donate, Says Witness.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 13 [Special].—Love gifts of jewelry and clothes were presented to the widow of Guy W. Ballard, head of the Great I Am cult, in the belief that each gift would heal a body, a federal court jury was told today.

The widow, Mrs. Edna Ballard; her son, Donald, and eight other members of the sect are on trial here on charges of using the mails to defraud. The jury must determine whether their claims were actuated by real religious sentiment or commercial greed.

A government witness, Mrs. Gertrude M. Host, testified she had heard Ballard tell his classes that his wife's clothes were gifts from students and that a body was healed each time a student gave her a jewel.

"And I saw Mrs. Ballard wear expensive jewelry," Mrs. Host said.

Attorney Defends Finery.

"There's nothing wrong with that," interposed Defense Attorney Charles H. Carr. "Any preacher will wear any diamonds he gets his hands on."

Assistant United States Attorney Norman Neukom sought to introduce in evidence a photograph of Mrs. Ballard wearing a beautiful gown and much jewelry. But Judge Leon R. Yankwich, presiding, stopped him.

"It doesn't mean anything," the judge said, "because the jewels may be paste and tinsel that any one could get at a 5 and 10 cent store. Furthermore, a clever woman could make a dress like that for $2.95."

Peering more closely at the photograph, the judge observed: "She is a very good looking woman." After satisfying himself that this judgment was correct, he commented: "All women evangelists dress beautifully." Then he added: "And, we've got a lot of them around here."

Tells of a Promise.

Mrs. Host testified that at classes held in the Shrine auditorium here, Ballard told his students that St. Germain, an "ascended being" said to deliver messages to earthlings thru the Great I Am leader, would appear in his physical body at one of the sessions. He didn't appear, however, she said.

Another witness for the government was Jack W. Stahl, postoffice inspector working out of Chicago. He said he obtained a number of books and pamphlets on mysticism and spiritualism at the office of the St. Germain foundation and St. Germain Press, corporations thru which the Ballards operated in Chicago.

Judge Yankwich said he would permit the prosecution to attempt to prove that the writing in the I Am books was not inspired but was copied from other books.

Newborn Baby Abandoned in Alley Behind Theater

A new born baby boy was found abandoned last night in the alley behind the Kimbark theater, 6240 Kimbark avenue. A passer-by heard the child's cries and with theater attendants found the baby wrapped in a towel inside a shopping bag. Dr. John V. Lambert was summoned from the theater audience. He treated the baby and took him to his home and office at 6142 Kenwood avenue for the night.

MOTHER ORDERED TO TAKE TWO OUT OF 'I AM' SCHOOL

Judge Rudolph Desort yesterday ordered the two children of Mrs. Josephine Meissner, 1739 North Wells street, withdrawn from the "Great I Am" cult school in the Auditorium hotel and placed in a neighborhood school.

Mrs. Meissner.

The children are Robert, 6 years old, and Cary, 5. Mrs. Meissner's divorced husband, Howard Meissner, a park policeman, said the school is so far from his ex-wife's home that it is inconvenient for them to go back and forth while their mother is at work.

The question of their attendance at a cult school did not enter into the case. Mrs. Meissner is a member of the cult. An agreement was reached by which Meissner will pay his ex-wife $10 more a month, she will quit work, and the children will attend a neighborhood school.

4,000 Given Camp Grant Jobs; Work Being Rushed

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 13 [Special].—Employment on the Camp Grant construction program reached 4,000 men today as officials spurred work to meet the Jan. 15 deadline on the hospital and draftees' reception centers.

TRANSIT EXPERT ARGUES OVER BUS PURCHASE LIMIT

Philip Harrington, traction commissioner, told the council committee on local transportation yesterday that the council might upset the whole traction unification plan by trying to limit the price to be paid for the Chicago Motor Coach [bus] company in a traction ordinance.

The bus company has asked 10 million dollars for its properties. This price has been called excessive by the council.

Harrington said the price is primarily a problem for the management of the merged company—surface and elevated lines—and that the city's interests will be safeguarded without council action.

Ald. Frank Keenan [49th] and Ald. James J. McDermott [14th] disagreed with Harrington.

SOMETIMES THEY TALK ALIKE.

"Of decisive importance is the existence of a few hundred gigantic capitalists who are in possession of their factories and their stocks and who, in the final analysis, thus steer the people. The broad masses do not interest them in the least. There must be no private monopolies, if monopolies there be. They must serve the state. We must look forward to a society that is rid of the twin pests of extreme riches and extreme poverty."

A part of the foregoing statement is quoted from Herr Hitler's speech of Tuesday in the Rheinmetall Brosig munitions plant, in a suburb of Berlin, and a part from the speech of Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, Wednesday, in London. Mr. Morrison said that he saw no reasonable hope for freedom from the horrors of war until we could achieve the deliberate mobilization of our economic resources under a coöperative international plan.

Herr Hitler has described his vision as one of a united Europe, guaranteeing peace by the equitable distribution of the economic resources which when monopolized by the few cause the disinherited forcibly to seek their rightful share.

The conflict now going on has been described as irrepressible, inevitable, and implacable because it is a clash of ideologies so opposite that they can't possibly live together in the same world at the same time. That may be true, but the exponents of these violently conflicting ideologies are strangely alike in many respects in what they say of their purpose and aims. Herr Hitler's record easily proves that he is a falsifier and that his pledges of good faith are followed by the breach of it.

Mr. Morrison, who is in the British government as a representative of the Labor party, undoubtedly speaks of a better world as he believes it would be better and as he would like to have it. But he would admit that when Hitler talks himself into a Utopia it is one familiar to Mr. Morrison's ideals. A good deal of what Herr Hitler says could be put in the mouths of British statesmen and a good deal of what the British statesmen say could be put in the mouth of Herr Hitler.

They don't look alike or act alike but they are talking alike. If they are to be judged by some of their ideas they are not creatures of different worlds or of different times. They are people of modern day Europe. Herr Hitler adds to his ideas that Utopia must be a Nazi world, with Himmler agents at the gates to say who may enter and who may not and upon what terms and in what conditions people entering may stay there. With that the British and all other peoples disagree.

Herr Hitler promises the average man a new world in which he will get the fruits of his labor [Karl Marx]. He is not to be crucified on a cross of gold [William Jennings Bryan]. The oppressors will meet their master [Franklin D. Roosevelt]. The haves will divide with the have-nots [Huey Long].

DEFENSE AFTER ELECTION.

America—and Great Britain insofar as it relies upon American munitions—is five weeks closer to the unknown but appreciable perils of the future than it was on election day. But our nation is by no means five weeks farther along on its preparations to meet those perils than it was on Nov. 6.

Hardly a day passes but brings to light some new defect in our defense efforts. A grave shortage of airplane engines is belatedly admitted by authorities in Washington. Industrial production is crippled by frequent strikes, the most notable of which—at the Vultee plant—was managed by a known communist.

Every one who has given any attention to the problem recognizes that the defense commission must be given more authority and, above all, must have that authority vested in a chairman. One of the commission's principal aids has said that its present organization is "far from ideal." Yet there is no action to remedy the defect, and the really able men serving on the commission and their efforts continually frustrated by the headless, amorphous setup under which they are required to work.

Chaos is as great on the military front as on the industrial front. It is becoming increasingly apparent that the conscription program was timed for political rather than military effect. The original schedule for inducting conscripts and calling the National Guard to active service has been revised and revised until it is shattered. The latest estimate is that the number of men under arms on Feb. 1 will be 250,000 less than was called for by the preëlection schedule. The army cannot induct men because the camps to house them are not finished. It cannot train them if they were inducted because it lacks uniforms to clothe them and weapons to arm them.

No one in this country disputes the vital need of rearmament. Mr. Roosevelt, a clever politician, recognized that overwhelming demand and utilized it to win reëlection. But the time for politics is past and the country expects performance. It is not getting it.

There has been rather wide comment on the fact that Mr. Roosevelt has not found it necessary to inspect a single defense plant since election day. Another of the devices by which he impressed the critical state of world affairs on the voters was his refusal to go farther than a twelve hour trip from the White House during the campaign. Affairs are no less critical today than they were in October, yet the President at this writing is several days' journey from Washington, on a cruiser in the Caribbean.

Any one who calls attention to the obvious bungling, shortcomings, and omissions in the defense program is immediately assailed with the cry that he is disrupting national unity and playing politics with defense. That is a hypocritical cry. Mr. Roosevelt is playing politics with defense. He is placing every political end ahead of the one vital end—rearmament. That is the real issue, and attempts to distract attention from it by smearing and intimidation must not be tolerated.

OUR CHRISTMAS LIST OF BOOKS:

"The Customers' Yachts?"—This brief natural history of Wall street should be required reading for Henry Morgenthau Jr., Leon Henderson, and A. A. Berle Jr. Also for any one who is about to take his patrimony, 10 years' savings, or his month's pay into the canyon. Author Schwed is inside looking about at the country's great hat and rabbit performance. Many pretend to know how it's done. That's why they are there. None of them does. Mr. Schwed says a margin player is the man who intended to get off the Century at 125th street, but didn't, and found himself going thru Fort Wayne, Ind., at 70 miles an hour. That's all the better, because the Century doesn't go thru Fort Wayne, a point Mr. Schwed may not have intended to make, but it helps him out.

"Oliver Wiswell"—We made a quarter back sneak on this novel back awhile lately. Watta du yu mean fifteen yards holding penalty? Holding what? Not the book. Never saw it. But here's a question for Mr. Wiswell, the Tory hero. The American revolution produced on the revolutionary side the most distinguished galaxy of men ever known to arise in any period of history. What known name, Benedict Arnold excepted, can the American loyalists offer? Don't alibi yourself, Mr. Wiswell, with the excuse that you can't talk because you are no longer with us.

"For Whom the Bell Tolls"—Some can take Mr. Hemingway. Some can leave him. Some say they can take him or leave him. You know how it is with the take-it-or-leave-it people. If they could leave it, why are they so often trying their pocket knives on the keyhole in the early morning? We'll take "For Whom the Bell Tolls" even if it must be taken with digitalis, a few hours in an air raid shelter, and some chapters of Mrs. Miniver. Mr. Hemingway likes to scandalize a whitewashed fence. When that is done in the rich Spanish vernacular of obscenity the thing leaves the fence and soars into the sky. What a language, what a people, what a war. Some critics are in rapture over the tender love story. Whose love story? Pilar's and Pablo's? Anyway, Mr. Hemingway got off the fence and into the air. Air writing hereafter, Ernest, air writing.

"Mrs. Miniver"—Mrs. Struther's collection of remarks by an understanding English lady about things not particularly requiring understanding is, as a best seller over months in America, as remarkable an achievement as that 73-0 score. Never mind the reference. We can't hope to combine these two wings of the intelligentsia. The people who know what 73-0 means wouldn't have met Mrs. Miniver. Altho she is nice her vogue is hard to explain. Why should it be Mrs. Miniver? Possibly because for many sympathetic people she represents what they think of England without bombs. She may be an escape to the belief that there will be nice people remaining when the subways aren't their bedrooms and when mothers are not cuddling their children in the shelters.

"A Study of History"—Mr. Arnold J. Toynbee in six volumes, with three to come, is good holiday reading. Mr. Toynbee deals with twenty-six civilizations, including the Eskimo, which have passed away. So why not a few more to come and go, including Herr Hitler's? If Mr. Toynbee knows his civilizations, we certainly can take them or leave them. Why not hang that idea on the Christmas tree? We survive our civilizations. In proof, we have.

"Make Bright the Arrows"—Critics are unfair to Miss Edna St. Vincent Millay. Jeremiah beat her to the title. It does not therefore follow that one should read Jeremiah instead of Millay, altho it may be good to read Jeremiah. "Gather the shields: the Lord has raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes." They are to destroy Babylon, but also to create the Medes and the Persians. Tarry not with Miss Millay. Hurry back to Toynbee. Let us escape also the Medes and the Persians. And also the Eskimo. Sufficient unto our time is our own civilization.

FOOD PINCH IN ITALY SEVERE.

[Detroit News.]

The department of agriculture report on "Italian Agriculture Under Fascism and War" depicts a serious situation in Italy. Shortages of food and essential supplies existing to the extent here described, they add materially to the Fascist debacle in Greece, the naval losses, and the check of the African offensive in darkening Italy's war outlook.

That the American agriculture department becomes the source of information on a major war factor may seem surprising. The data used in the report is stated to have been obtained thru diplomatic channels. Reports to Washington by American consuls and diplomats, dispatched under diplomatic seal, might escape censorship and contain the most dependable information reaching this country. Those on agriculture and related questions apparently have been turned over to the agriculture department, whose experts should be qualified to present and interpret them.

Following are among the facts Italy is said to be confronting:

That the British navy's blockade of the Mediterranean has cut off 80 per cent of imports on which Italy relies;

That food prices have risen steeply, that food rationing is more stringent than anywhere in Europe, that the poor people are already suffering from malnutrition;

That acute shortage of rubber, cotton, wool, and jute exist;

That the only open sources of replenishment lie to the north, in Germany, northern Europe, Switzerland, and the Balkans, where the prospects of surpluses from which Italy can be adequately supplied are poor.

By the latest war news, the British blockade would now be still more effective and the Italian outlook in these respects even worse. As the war goes on thru the winter, the extent of shortages of foods and other essentials promises to be increasingly a factor in deciding the outcome.

Lady Astor, hostess of the Cliveden set, says thousands of Americans are "longing" to get into the war. Maybe so, but millions of Americans are determined to stay out.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

A MAP OF CHICAGO, 1878.

We have been cracking our eyeballs over a map of Chicago in 1878, contributed to the Line's reference library by Harry B. Rhoads of Terre Haute, Ind. It was published in street guide form by A. Askevold, room 67 Ashland block, northeast corner Clark and Randolph streets; N. B.—Elevator running at all times; and is an excellent example of the mapmaker's and lithographer's craft.

Well, it seems that the old town hasn't changed much, from a topographical point of view, in 62 years. It has merely done some stretching out, north, south, and west. The northern boundary then was Fullerton avenue, but Lincoln park, probably much more beautiful then, seems to have continued up to Diversey. Along the lake the southern boundary was apparently at 26th street, but west of the tracks [present Wentworth avenue] there was a vast annexation of prairie bounded by the south branch of the river, 39th street and Western avenue. In these great open spaces we find Chicago's prettiest street name of the period—Lindy's lane. It was two blocks in length, running north and south, close to the present intersection of 34th street and Damen avenue.

The region immediately south of Lincoln park, between Dearborn street and the lake, North avenue and Schiller street, is marked "Old Catholic cemetery." The old Chicago university campus, with one building indicated, is placed between Cottage Grove and Rhodes avenues, at 34th street. The grounds extended half way to 33d street on the north and half way to 35th street on the south.

Ha, a discovery! A street upon which the Linemaster lived as a boy, 40th street between Grand boulevard [South Park way now] and Vincennes avenue, was named Augusta. It was outside the city limits, in the village of Hyde Park. . . . Grant park was Lake park; Garfield park was Central park.

Lots of fun, old maps, but very hard on the eyes.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS.

Within the window of the great toy shop
The tree is gleaming with its silver strings
Festooned about the myriad Christmas things—
A doll, a drum, a picture book, a top;
And in another corner, wise men three,
Kneel with their gifts (lifelike as of old),
Toward little Jesus—gifts of tinsel gold,
As waxen angels float in ecstasy.

Outside the window, pressed against the pane,
Mothers and fathers hold their children high;
Snowflakes fall softly from the winter sky;
"Yes, dear, Santa will bring a sled and train."

Far in another land, mothers softly pray
"Grant my child one hour of peace on this Christmas day."

Opinion from Title and Trust Company.

Not wishing to fall down on any assignment, we have given due consideration to the problem referred to us by you in THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 4.

It is our considered opinion that Elsiska de la Rochette should realize that any book title which does not begin with an adverb, conjunction, or preposition stands no more chance than a Republican in Georgia. We think that the titles she suggested for her book about the intrigues among the leaders of the White Russians in the Ukraine; namely, "We Have Red Spots of Blood on Our White Banners," or "The Grapes Leave a Sour Taste in Our Puckered Mouths," are distinctly unsuitable.

In order that the success of her new book may be insured, our title division recommends "How Red Was Their Valley," or, with Lin Yutang's permission, "With Shove and Blasphemy."

Biography of Any Chicagoan.

I regret that I must further disappoint the thousands of readers that have been anxiously waiting to see my biography in the Line [hic]. While reviewing my early years in Chicago, I recalled having once lived in a tiny room facing an alley. That gave me an idea for a wonderful book title, so I did not finish my biography but began writing a book to go with the title. It is bound to be a success and will appear in the book stores under the name, "How Black Was My Alley."

SOCIETY EDITOR'S LAMENT.

Day in, day out, I write about
Weddings great and small;
Of bridal flowers and wedding showers—
'Til life begins to pall.
"The bride will wear"—"these guests were there"—
I write them every day.
There is no end to the wedding trend;
I guess it's here to stay.
It seems a shame that not my name
Is one of those I write.
This can't go on; a day must dawn
When I'll wear bridal white.
Meantime I write a lot of tripe
(The names are all that vary)
And dream of when my "man of men"
And I make plans to marry.

Do You Live on Sunnyside Avenue?

The old Sunnyside race track or driving park was one of Chicago's places of attraction to lovers of sport in the '60s. It was several miles outside the city limits then, on the gravel road [now Clark street] just north of what is now Montrose avenue, street cars did not run that far until many years after. The spectators who went there on special occasions and Sunday afternoons generally drove a fast team or a single horse of their own, or a trim looking rig from the livery. Across the road was the noted and hospitable Sunnyside roadhouse, which often accommodated flashy and merry parties. Charles E. Jennings.

Over the proscenium arch at Powers' theater [Nov. 7], this inscription appeared:

"He was not of an age but for all time our myriad minded Shakespeare." Jacob Weinstein.

Superstitions about unlucky days and the fatal influence of the numeral 13 always fill us with a sense of fatigue; but when they join forces, on Friday the 13th, we become practically exhausted from boredom. CHARLES COLLINS.

IS YOUR CHILD COMFORTABLY DRESSED?

JUST yesterday I saw a rather curious sight. The temperature was well below freezing and an attractive mother, dressed in a full length fur coat, was walking along the street accompanied by two barelegged girls—one about 12 and the other 10. The wraps of the children were thin and I am sure that I detected in their behavior a marked cringing because they were uncomfortable.

Now, I assume that these children are well nourished—adequately supplied with a balanced diet. But why the nudity? There can be no objection except on hygienic grounds. Sunlight will manufacture vitamin D in the skin. But was this the purpose? Apparently not, for the day was cloudy. Furthermore, the surface would scarcely have been sufficient. What then? The parents must have decided that this type of exposure would render the youngsters nonsensitive to Jack Frost; and that a certain amount of toughening would ensue.

There is rather more than a grain of truth in this thought. Within reason, we can become immune to cold, but the process must be gradual. Heat is stolen from the body whenever we encounter air at a temperature lower than our own. That is why we wear clothing—to retain warmth so that the skin will function normally and not "raise" goose pimples.

But when much caloric is dissipated, unless the burning up of tissue is accelerated by at least forty per cent, chilling is the rule. This demands more food if the quantity of energy radiated thru the bare epidermis is substantial. There is a marked difference in the circulation whether one is sitting quietly out of doors or is running about. We all realize that with the thermometer at about 20 above, "shivery" feelings will come quickly to one who is well bundled up but who stands quietly in the shade.

Another thing observed about my pedestrians was that while the mother's posture was all that could be desired, the shoulders of the daughters exhibited a forward slouch. This is the typical stance of the one who can't stand harsh weather.

While there may be good reason to suggest that some youngsters are underclothed, there is evidence that many are obliged to tote too many wrappings. No one wants to be encased so tightly that activity is impossible. On the other hand, we must not levy a serious drain upon our heat producing machinery. Unfortunately, fashion is likely to dictate, relegating common sense to the background.

Two or three years ago some computations were made regarding the clothing weight of children. In the summer months, 12 year old boys, on the average, carried around only 2 pounds and 14 ounces; for the winter season, 4 pounds and 5 ounces. Girls of the same age during hot weather supported 1 pound and 11 ounces; and 2 pounds and 6 ounces on freezing days.

The strange part of it all is that under similar conditions the girls appeared to be about as healthy as the boys, altho the incidence of colds was higher with the former. They probably add more garments than boys when facing exposure. The only conclusion possible points to the fact that, per square inch of body surface, girls are obliged to provide far more internal heat than their brothers to arrive at the same degree of comfort. I wonder if they are.

Any interference with comfort may alter the disposition. If the eye muscles are out of balance, headache may be expected. Strain also takes its toll. Correct poor vision and you may have no cause to be peevish.

ANOTHER PROMISE KEPT

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A DIRECTORY BANQUET.

Chicago, Dec. 9.—According to a recent item in THE TRIBUNE, the Evansville, Ind., city directory has names that'll make your mouth water.

Shucks, they haven't anything on Chicago. Even our telephone directory has 19 Turks, 55 Birds [including a Lucky Bird], and 17 Fryers to their one apiece. We, too, have Partridges, Hares, Deer, Lambs, Hams, Bacon, Hamburgers—and enough Weiners to stock a sausage store. Besides, Chicago has a couple of Ducks, a Gosling, and a few Mallards and Teal; also a couple of Muttons, a number of Bears, a few Elk, and a Bison.

Not only does Chicago have more than 50 Fish, including Goldie Fish, listed in its telephone directory, but you may also have your choice of Bass, Haddock, Codd, Perch, Trout, Salmon, Carp, Pike, Pickerel, Sturgeon, and Whale.

For other courses you may take Bouillon, Salads, Greens, Radisch, Onions, Olives, Pickles, Parsley, Kraut, Corn, Pease, Apples [including an Orange Apple], Peaches, Pears, Lemons, Oranges, Plums, Cherrys, Mellons, and Berrys, including Dewberrys.

There are a number of Rolls, with Butters, Honey, Jelly, and Jam to go with them, and you may have Custard if you wish.

Spices, Ginger, Mustard, Cinnamon, Caraway, Dill, Garlich, Salt, Sugar, and the Peppers [including Mrs. Frances Sweet Pepper], are available for seasoning.

For beverages you may have Wines—Port, Sherry, and Champagne; Beer [Casebeer if you're real thirsty], Porter, Ale, and Stout; Brandy and Bourbon. If you are on the water wagon, you have a choice of Punch, Cider, Coffee, Chocolate, Milke, or Springwater.

The foregoing should be sufficient for a dinner, but to top them off there are Candy and Nutts, or, more particularly, Almonds, Brazils, Chestnuts, Filberts, Hazels, and a Walnut. VICTOR ELVING.

BICYCLE IS "A VEHICLE."

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Tex Williams excoriates the Chicago police for doing their duty. Under article 1 of the uniform traffic code is the following: "For the purpose of this ordinance a bicycle shall be deemed a vehicle."

In view of the existing law, therefore, the cyclist has violated the law by riding his bicycle on the white line of a city street. Why should any more lenience be shown in this case than in any other situation? These cyclists who break traffic laws are a potential danger as well as a constant headache to motorists who are trying to drive safely on the city streets.

A NORWEGIAN REPLY.

Sister Bay, Wis., Dec. 9.—Like many others who finished college in the early '80s, I learned to admire James Bryce and his works and not least his "American Commonwealth." I cannot say the same about the report to which he was persuaded to lend his name nearly 60 years later. I think the Bryce who in the prime of life wrote the "American Commonwealth" would not have permitted his name to be signed to the report of 1915, at least not in the form in which it was rushed into print for American consumption immediately after the sinking of the Lusitania.

I am disposed to agree with the American historian who writes, "His [Bryce's] report is one of the most extreme examples of propaganda. It was in itself one of the worst atrocities of the war."

Your reader's [E. R. W.] insinuation that I would welcome the victory of German arms, and his citation: "If the German plans for a confederation of the nations of the European continent should fail," carefully omitting "it will be largely because of this defect in the German [Prussian] national character" is in itself a good illustration of the nature of war propaganda.

E. R. W. can feel assured that the undersigned, born in Norway of Norwegian and Scotch ancestry, with practically all his relatives still residents of that country, does not wish to see it under the domination of a Hitler or a Stalin.

As for my attack on certain forms of Norwegian propaganda in America, it was based on the belief that the cause of the Norwegians is sufficiently just and sound to stand on its own merits before God or man; no need here of the fantastic lies and distortions which characterized the report of 1915.

J. C. M. HANSON.

WAR AIMS.

Freeport, Ill., Dec. 6.—In our help to England, would it not be well at some early date to define our objectives? We are to help England do what? Are we to stay with it until Hitler is driven from the continent of Europe, or are we willing to settle merely to save England from destruction?

Are we signing up to help in whatever the English government chooses to do, or will we have a word in defining the objectives? Personally I am strongly in sympathy with helping England avoid destruction, but I would not sign up for a 20 year war to nail the British flag to the tip of every flagpole in Europe. I would sign up to end the war as quickly as possible, not to keep it going in pursuit of some impossible objective. At the moment, all we know about objectives is England's announced determination to "end Hitlerism" in Europe. This is too vague an objective to enlist under.

I t us have a conference to end all conferences, and have England state her minimum aims, and decide if they are sufficiently modest to fight for. Let Hitler have Europe; let him have his prewar colonies; let him have a strong place in the Mediterranean; let England keep her navy and her main colonies. Tell Hitler that if he crowds England any harder than that we will come into the war. Perhaps we could end the war on the spot if we conceded the things which seem inevitable. I would not give a cuss word for the signatures on a treaty, but a settlement based on mutual interest and advantages might be reasonably enduring.

CONSERVATIONIST.

CREDIT FOR THE R. O. T. C.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—In THE TRIBUNE of Dec. 5 there appeared an article by Harold Hutchings telling of the fruits of R. O. T. C. work in our high schools, colleges, and universities.

The article is very enlightening, but it does not give any credit to some men who worked on the Chicago school board committee and with the committee. A Mr. Piggot was a member of the school board in 1916 and introduced and fostered the ordinance to its adoption; the ordinance had been prepared by Attorney Angus Shannon, school board attorney, and the writer of this letter. After the adoption of the ordinance in committee, Capt. Edgar Z. Steever of the Wyoming state high schools appeared before the school board and later he and a Lieut. Beals set up the system of military training which now is the R. O. T. C.

I have always felt that Mr. Piggot and Mr. Shannon and members of the school board committee really did the work and deserve much credit. V. C. SWEINHART.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Is not the W. A. White Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies" a misnomer? In straightforward, honest, Abraham Lincoln language should its title not rather be the Committee to Get America Into the European War as Soon as Possible?

TRUST FUND.

Chicago, Dec. 2 [Legal Friend of the People.]—A bank in Pennsylvania is trustee of a trust fund of mine and they have not paid any income to me for almost two years. Last April they sent me a check for $110. This was more than $100 less than they should have paid as [1] they agreed to pay 5 per cent and had paid at that rate for about two years. I returned the checks to them and told them [2] it was not according to the way they had paid me in the past and asked them if they had made a mistake.

I have written them several letters and not until last Aug. 8 did I receive a letter from the president of this bank stating his son was absent on a vacation and when he returned he would send me a statement of my account showing how the money was invested, etc. He did not keep his promise.

Will you please tell me [3] how to handle this matter?

4. Would it do any good for me to write to the American Bankers association or do they bother with such matters?

B. D.

1. Ordinarily a trustee agrees to invest the trust estate and to pay over the net income. It hardly seems plausible that the trustee would have made a definite agreement to pay a guaranteed 5 per cent. Do you mean that the trustee is also using the money for its own purposes? We cannot advise without having the facts more clearly.

2. In the ordinary trust the mere fact that income of a certain amount has been paid in the past is no guarantee that it will be paid in the future.

3. If you do not understand the situation any better than is indicated in your letter, we would advise you to employ an attorney as your first step.

4. We see little object in writing to them until you have the facts more clearly in hand.

Test Your Horse Sense

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE.

Select the answer which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers on page 26.

1. The phrase "round up" should remind one of the East West North South.
2. A man convicted of usury would probably work in a Used Car Lot Loan Company Medical Clinic Furniture Store.
3. The state with a beautiful new superhighway for which a toll of approximately 1 cent per mile is charged, is Pennsylvania Tennessee Texas Florida.
4. The principal gas given off by green plants is Nitrogen Carbon Dioxide Oxygen Carbon Monoxide.
5. A centimeter is what part of a meter? 1/10 1/50 1/100 1/1,000.
6. If you have a scientific interest or a fondness for figures, you should enjoy this problem. Try to match the numbers below with subjects to which they refer. You may never have seen some of these before, but by process of elimination you should get most of them right.

[a] Normal number of red blood corpuscles per cubic millimeter of blood [men].	[v] 7,500.
[b] Approximate population of Greece.	[w] 240,000.
[c] Approximate speed of light per second in miles.	[x] 5,000,000.
[d] Average number of white blood corpuscles per cubic millimeter in a healthy person.	[y] 186,000.
[e] Approximate distance from the earth to the moon in miles.	[z] 6,500,000.

Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-6, average; 7-8, superior; 9-10, very superior. [Note—the last question counts five points.]

Here Are Gift Suggestions for Last Minute Shoppers

BY REA SEEGER.

Unusual Christmas gift ideas round the town, ready for the last rush of shoppers include the luxury finds and the things that cost but little. One of the most lasting gifts any one could use is the carrying size radio, a constant companion thruout the year. There are no tricks to it, just open the door, and the radio starts. You can buy it with or without a leather case [the case is priced extra]. The weight is approximately four and one-half pounds. It is simple enough in outline that it will go with everything, the clothes you wear, your car, the apartment, and when you travel.

A full length marabou coat for decorative lounging about the house would delight the most exacting woman. These luxury coats come in white, pink, and pale blue. They look like the most glamorous movie star's pet lounging coat. Shorter versions ready to double for party or bed jackets come in the same pastels or in vivid colors.

If you have a temporary invalid on your list or a beloved granny and not much money to spend, see the colored enamel and engraved silver pill boxes. Others slightly larger make wonderful cigaret cases, or stamp boxes. There are black finds that can be monogrammed in script letters in silver or gold; there are gay green enamels and the many stunning Florentine silver boxes with bas-relief designs, all with price marks for any limited budget.

For these same stay-at-homes, see the satin quilted and padded covers for heating pads or hot water bags. The fur lined bed socks and the beautiful padded quilts and chaise longue "throws" come in pastel colors and some in velvet in almond green, rose, or madonna blue.

Thru the LOOKING GLASS

From the notebook:

Have you seen the soap back scratcher? It's such fun you mustn't miss it. It's an exquisitely modeled soap hand, ivory white and poetically pink tipped, mounted on a back-scratching wand. Round the wrist is a ruffle of white lacy net. Lots of smart women we know are buying or giving these for decorative bathroom items. They come in a long, smart box and are so inexpensive you'll almost faint with surprise.

Then there's the brand new perfume for men, very masculine and attractive in a smoke-tweed way. The bottle is a crystal pipe that looks real as life and comes in what looks like a most realistic cigar box. It's a dashing kind of package and a smart gift for the man who is difficult to shop for.

To pop into the toe of the young girl's stocking: A trio of little lipsticks, each in a different shade. Nothing makes a girl feel so rich as a lipstick wardrobe. There are some new ones in red, white, and blue cases, strung on a metal key chain. Another set is mounted on what looks like a match box and the college girls are mad about still another—three set in a smart little leather kit.

Good Morning!

This, simmered down, is just a feminine version of "Dead End Kids."

The slums of New York are its background and the story is concerned with the activities of a quintet of teen age girls who, as the picture opens, are of the opinion that the "primrose path" is "the easiest way."

Frances, sister of one of them, tiring of her drab existence, had gone away with a gangster, Smiley Ryan, who, before the law caught up with him, had lavishly spent money on her. Her young sister, Jennie, and four pals had set Frannie up as a model. First scenes show them poring over a newspaper which features a story about Smiley's release and displays a large photograph of the beauteous Frannie. . . . And then Frances comes home.

She's fed up with Smiley and all he had to offer, and she's staggered by the realization of the effect her association with the racketeer has had on the adolescent girls of her neighborhood. . . . She tries to bring them to rights. . . . Prof. Cane, the kindly teacher of the school the kids attend, devotes endless thought to them. He has started the honor system in the school and believes that, in the end, it will be proved efficacious. . . .

But the girls are hard headed little brats.

Frances gets a job in a department store. . . . The girls during an attempt to loot it are indirectly responsible for the death of a timorous newcomer to their circle. . . . The tragedy brings matters to a climax. . . . The finale is a happy one.

This is a thoughtful film and a well acted one. I liked best the work of Paul Kelly as the professor and Tina Thayer as Jennie White.

See you tomorrow.

Choir to Give Oratorio.

"Seven Voices at Christmas," a Christmas oratorio, will be presented by the St. James Choir school of the St. James Methodist church tomorrow at 4:30 o'clock in the sanctuary of the church.

Two Outfits for Girls

GIRL'S TAILORED COSTUMES.

The girl in school needs a wide variety of tailored costumes which must be able to withstand strenuous wear. Today's two costumes fall into this category, which will please mothers who must keep an eagle eye on the budget. However, the frocks are smart enough to please youngsters who are blissfully unaware of the importance of every penny. One model is a two-piece jacket affair, while the other is the popular 1940-'41 jumper with shirred skirt.

Style No. 2593 is designed for sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 1¼ yards of 54 inch material.

Style No. 2520 is designed for sizes 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14. Size 8 requires 1⅛ yards of 35 inch material for blouse, with 1¼ yards of 54 inch for jumper.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Radio-Theater Play Receives Critic's Praise

BY CECIL SMITH.

The world première of "Protective Custody," given last evening by the group calling itself Radio-Theater, Inc., was an event of considerable significance. While advocates of the drama groan and mourn because Chicago is not a local producing center, the members of this energetic and intelligent organization have left wailing and complaining to others less creative than they, and have entered upon a valuable program of modest professional production.

"Protective Custody" was one of three winning scripts in a playwriting contest engineered by Radio-Theater last fall. The other two plays are to be presented later in the season; and after all three have been put on the stage a cash prize will be awarded to the one selected by five judges—Robert Pollak, Dan Goldberg, Lloyd Lehman, William A. Bacher, and Virginia Payne.

Whatever may be said against "Protective Custody"—and it has its faults—it is a script definitely worthy of production. The plot deals with Vienna just before, during, and just after the anschluss. The tragic events of 1938 are seen thru the experiences of an elderly Jewish couple, whose devotion to the Austria they remember keeps them from escaping to America when the time is ripe.

The acting was of professional caliber, and often of superior effectiveness.

Looking at Hollywood by John Chapman

Hollywood, Dec. 13. — Don't be surprised if Howard Hughes himself finishes directing "The Outlaw," which was called back from location when Boss Hughes and Director Howard Hawks fell out over money spending. For once the boss wanted to spend more than the director did. Hughes, incidentally, is no stranger to the "Let's do it again" profession. He was credited with megaphoning "Hell's Angels." Hawks would like to mastermind Gary Cooper's "Sergeant York" picture for the Warner brethren. . . . Angna Enters has sold a four-page script, price undisclosed, to Metro. Title, "Mamma's Angel." . . . Next in the Hardy series will be "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," and I can hardly wait until, surely by two or three years from now, they do "Andy Hardy's Divorce." . . . Metro's "Billy The Kid" company, which will have Robert Taylor in Glorious Technicolor, starts for location in Tucson today. . . . Carole Lombard, bedded with flu, has a pleasure most invalids don't get. Each of the so-called major studios has made her an offer to do a film for the usual price of $125,000, and she's been playing eenie meenie minie moe.

Ever since Florenz Ziegfeld died various Broadway music show men have aspired to what is always called his mantle. Many a manager, notably the Earl Carroll of a decade ago, has put on the stage enough silken fabric to stock a drygoods store and enough legs to outfit a herd of centipedes in an effort to become the new Ziegfeld. The Shuberts still put on "Ziegfeld Follies," having bought the title. They have staked some fine reviews, but they weren't Ziegfeld. The mantle of the late glorifier wasn't officially dropped until recently, when Burns Mantle called Buddy De Sylva the new Ziegfeld.

Buddy has been on and off Broadway for a long time. During his latest invasion he has had three lovely and funny hits, "Du Barry Was a Lady," "Louisiana Purchase," and "Panama Hattie." Now he is out here in Hollywood to make a Bob Hope picture and a Bing Crosby picture for Paramount.

Buddy grins appreciatively at the "New Ziegfeld" title, winces at the jabs he got for using raffish humor in the three musicals. "I was going to do a musical comedy version of 'Lysistrata,'" he says, "but I was afraid to do another dirty show. Now I'm making a couple of movies and all I'm worrying about is what length overcoats draft soldiers will wear." The Bob Hope film—with Dorothy Lamour as the lure—is called "Caught in the Draft."

The Bing Crosby picture will be called "The Birth of the Blues" and will be laid in New Orleans, cradle of swing. De Sylva had to buy a third of the title from himself. Years ago he, Lew Brown, and Ray Henderson wrote a song of that name. Monta Bell bought it for title use. So, when the Crosby plan came up, Buddy had to haggle with Bell and also with the Brown-Henderson publishing firm over price.

De Sylva is small, brown skinned, black eyed. Came to California from New York when he was 2, was educated here. Went to U. S. C. in the days when everybody played the ukulele, so he played it and wrote song lyrics. After a year in U. S. C. he joined a phony Hawaiian band at the old Vernon Country club, was always pointed out as the only real Hawaiian in the outfit.

De Sylva will remain in Hollywood until June, maybe longer. Abe Berman, his lawyer, runs his Broadway shows while he's away.

Edward Blair's Engagement Is Being Announced in Baltimore

BY JUDITH CASS.

TODAY at a tea in Baltimore announcement will be made by Mr. and Mrs. Francis Nash Iglehart of the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Graham, to Edward McCormick Blair, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McCormick Blair of Astor street and Lake Forest. The entire Blair family is in the Maryland city for the announcement party, Bill [William McCormick Jr.] having gone there from Charlottesville, Va., where he is studying law at the University of Virginia, and Bowen from Boston, where he is a student at the Harvard business school.

Edward Blair has just returned from a month's cruise with the naval reserves aboard the New York and soon will start his shore training at Northwestern university. Miss Iglehart will accompany him and his parents to Chicago next week for a visit. No date has been set for the marriage.

Miss Iglehart attended Miss Hall's school in Pittsfield, Mass., and the French school in New York. She made her debut at the Bachelors' cotillion in Baltimore several years ago. Mr. Blair is a graduate of Groton; Yale, class of 1938, and the Harvard graduate school of business administration. On the distaff side he is a grandson of Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen. His paternal grandfather was the late Edward T. Blair.

Mrs. Howard Linn, a sister of William McCormick Blair, is in Baltimore for the tea today. She arranged to stop there on her way home from a month in Middleburg, Va., where she has been enjoying the hunting season. She will return to Chicago on Monday.

Lauritz Melchior, who will sing in "Die Walküre" tonight, and Dusolina Giannini, who will sing the leading rôle in "Jewels of the Madonna" at today's matinée, will be two of the three especial guests at the Tavern club's Sunday breakfast party tomorrow. Douglas Beattie, who sang in "Martha" last night, will be the third.

Howls of laughter will fill the Esquire theater this morning at 10:30 o'clock when the Woman's Exchange presents its first Junior Esquire hour. The first half of "I Married Adventure," an episode of "The Longe Ranger Rides Again," and a cartoon will be shown. The children will be given questionnaires on "I Married Adventure" and after the second half has been shown next week, those submitting the best answers will be asked to sit with the "Quiz Kids" at the Dec. 28 program.

Longmeadow Hunt Giving Dinner for Land Owners.

Turn about is fair play and tonight the Longmeadow hunt will trade places with the landowners in the 20 square mile area thru which the hunt gallops, and entertain them at dinner at the Illinois Country club. Without the wholehearted coöperation of the landowners there wouldn't be a Longmeadow hunt, and the club, ever since its founding, has played host to this group at an annual dinner.

The party is informal in every sense of the word. The fun begins at 7:30 with square dances and old fashioned waltzes and supper will be served buffet style at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Stewart Boal and her committee of Mrs. Frank Fuller Fowle Jr., Miss Margot Webbe, and Mrs. Frank Kolbe, have decorated the dining room and lounge in a Christmas motif.

Henry W. Meers is general chairman in charge of the party. John B. Pollock planned the supper menu.

Elizabeth Ann Sheldon Becomes Bride Tonight.

Four year old Anne Sheldon will be the youngest member in the bridal party tonight of her aunt, Miss Elizabeth Ann Sheldon, and Arnold J. Wilson Jr. Matron of honor at the 8:30 o'clock ceremony in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Sheldon of Glencoe, will be Mrs. John W. Sheldon [Marjorie Mercer].

Dr. R. Gordon Brown of Philadelphia will serve as best man. Elbert Fitch of La Salle, James G. Cannon of New York, Harold Spencer of Philadelphia, Alan Magary of Evanston, and John W. and James M. Sheldon Jr. complete the wedding party. After a honeymoon trip to Nassau the couple will reside in Detroit.

Following their marriage tonight in Christ church, Winnetka, Miss Carol Jean Wellbeloved and Kenneth W. Rahn will go to British Honduras and Guatemala for three weeks before they return to reside on North Damen avenue. The bride is the daughter of the Sidney G. L. Wellbeloveds of Winnetka, and Mr. Rahn's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Walter Y. Rahn of Winnetka.

Tomorrow evening Miss Nellie Stuart of the University of Illinois music school will present a program of songs at Ferry hall. Miss Stuart was the winner of the Chicago Tribune Chicagoland Music Festival contest in 1934.

North Shore Fortnightly Giving Second Dance Tonight.

Preceding tonight's party of the North Shore Fortnightly, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Smalley of Highland Park, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Matthias of Winnetka, and Mrs. and Mrs. John Elliot of Kenilworth will entertain in their homes. The dance is the second in the series held at Shawnee Country club.

Altho she just launched her professional dancing career Thursday night, Miss Evelyn Lawrence already is being "booked" for charity benefit performances. Tonight she and her rhumba partner, Paul Shahin, will do an exhibition rhumba and teach the conga at the Book ball which the Women's Faculty club of the Northwestern university medical school is giving at the Knickerbocker hotel.

The home of the Hyde Gillettes of Barrington will resemble Santa Claus' workshop tomorrow, for Barrington children will take the toys there which they have collected for charitable organizations. The toys will be on exhibit all day while Mr. and Mrs. Gillette hold open house.

In Christmas Play at Ferry Hall

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Marilyn Cary, left, and Miss Betty Lou Firstenberger, who will have two of the important roles in the play, "Holly and Cypress," which will be given tonight as the high point in the annual Christmas dinner and fete at Ferry Hall in Lake Forest. Others in the play include Miss Barbara McLaughlin, Miss Nancy Broeksmit, Miss Elizabeth Bibb, Miss Helen Milman, and Miss Isabelle Welch.

Front Views and Profiles — By June Provines

Good-by, Ballet Theater.

The departure of the Ballet Theater after its final performance tomorrow afternoon takes away some of the brightness the town has had these recent weeks. We hope it returns soon. Meantime there is a bright gallery of remembrance, in which Dolin and Gollner, Conrad and Tudor, Stroganova and Loring and Laing danced divinely to music of Chopin and Chausson and Strauss and Prokofieff. Brightest memory of all, the Ballet Theater's presentation of Giselle, with the enchanting sets and costumes by Lucinda Ballard, reminiscent of an old line engraving.

• • •

Most of the ballet company saw movies of themselves the other night, shown by Ann Barzel in the Ballet room at the opera house. Beautiful Nana Gollner, in a print dress and silver fox hat, Lucia Chase, in a red corduroy frock, black-haired Alicia Markova, in a checked tweed jacket and skirt, Stroganova, her hair done in the precise, fanlike arrangement she affects, Annabelle Lyon, Dolin, Laing, Tudor, and the others watched Giselle and Voices of Spring, Goyescas, and other ballets on the screen, and frequently hummed the missing orchestrations. It was the first time many of them had seen themselves in action.

Driftwood.

Gardner Read, noted Evanston composer, and his bride, the former Margaret Vail Payne, are leaving next week for a honeymoon trip to Florida, where they will stay at Driftwood hotel at Vero Beach. When Composer Read was visiting in Florida last winter he happened to stay overnight at that hostelry and conceived the idea of his Driftwood Suite, which is descriptive of the hotel and its surroundings. The hotel is built of driftwood found on the beach where it stands, and much of its furniture was fashioned from walnut, cypress, and mahogany logs cast up by the sea. Two rusty cannons from Spanish galleons of the 17th century, wrecked along the Florida coast, flank the entrance drive.

New Guinea Trip.

How Frederick Crockett, young Harvard man who lectured to a packed house at Orchestra hall the other evening under the auspices of the Chicago Geographical society on the head hunters of New Guinea, happened to make the voyage: Crockett and his anthropologist wife, Charis, paid the doctor bill of a sick man they met on shipboard crossing the Atlantic several years ago. He told them he might never be able to make payment of his debt in cash, but he offered them a document giving them the rights to the trees on two islands in New Guinea. Aliens are not permitted to own land under the Dutch law, so only the right to the trees, which carries with it various privileges, was possible. After several years the Crocketts decided to visit the islands and take a movie camera with them. They made the trip in a 59 foot schooner in 1936.

On Washing Stockings.

The modern girl considers washing her stockings as part of her bedtime routine, almost so much so as the cold creaming of her face and the brushing of her teeth. The research division of the Chicago Laundry Owners' association tells how stockings were washed in 1845, as printed that year in the Boston Journal of Arts and Sciences:

Wash your stockings with soap to take out the rough dirt, rinse in fair water and work them well in a fresh soap water. Make a third soap water strong, in which put a little blue stone wrapped in a flannel bag until the water is blue enough. Then wash your stockings well therein and wring them. Let them dry so that they remain a little moist and fumigate with brimstone, after which put upon a wooden leg two stockings, one upon the other, and polish with a glass.

The laundrymen's advice to girls washing their stockings is to turn the hosiery wrong side out before they are washed. The laundry always does; it saves linting and other possible damage to the surface of the hose.

Packed House Hears 'Martha' for Last Time

BY EDWARD BARRY.

That a packed Civic Opera house was able to see and hear Flotow's sparkling, melodious "Martha" last night was due to some quick thinking on the part of Chicago Opera company officials. For Helen Jepson, scheduled for the name part, yesterday fell victim to that dread scourge of singers, laryngitis.

The wires to the east began to hum, and it was arranged that Josephine Antoine, an American soprano who had been favorably received here in other years, should be shipped air mail, special delivery from New York. She arrived in due time and gave a very creditable performance.

This in spite of the fact that the "Martha" in which she was called on to appear had been retranslated and restaged to the point where it was sometimes almost unrecognizable. It is a safe wager that she had never, in her other "Marthas," been called upon to descend a ladder from a dizzy height in order to make her escape from the farmhouse.

Aside from Miss Antoine, the singers last night were the ones who took part in the first performance of the revitalized "Martha" last Saturday afternoon. However, a word about them is now in order, for in the review which was printed after the earlier presentation a disproportionate amount of space was allotted the animals of the production and the remarks on the human performers had eventually to be dropped.

To both performances James Melton contributed a rich voiced Lionel and Douglas Beattie a bold, sunny Plunkett. Suzanne Sten, an enchanting newcomer this season enacted a Nancy who was willful of spirit, lovely to look at, and opulent vocally.

Lorenzo Alvary's Tristram was well sung and sufficiently comical. John Daggett Howell made a good slapstick figure out of the sheriff. The conductor, Kurt Herbert Adler, labored successfully to make the score sound somewhat better than it is.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 13 [Special].—A group of 200 lawyers graduated from Yale university and headed by Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati announced here today the launching of a campaign to raise $1,000,000 for the Yale law school. The campaign is an outgrowth of an offer made by John A. Hoober of York, Pa., president of the Yale Law School Alumni association and a member of the class of '91, to contribute one dollar to every three given by others toward the needs of the law school. Hoober placed the limit of his total personal liability under the contingent pledge at $250,000.

The Odor of Violets

By Baynard Kendrick

[Copyright: 1940: By Baynard Kendrick.]

SYNOPSIS.

Leaving their house guest, Cheli Scott, Norma Tredwill goes to the city to break up the romance between her libertine ex-husband, Paul Gerente, and her stepdaughter, Barbara. She sees Barbara leaving Paul's apartment—and discovers Paul murdered. Duncan Maclain, a blind detective, receives a visitor who claims to be Paul Gerente—with orders in code from the naval intelligence. They are instructions in case New York is plunged into darkness by war, giving the five vital locations where sabotage might occur—locations Maclain refuses to divulge to his visitor. Maclain surprises Cameron, who lives below Paul, in the apartment with the dead man. Cameron confesses to the murder, claiming a girl, Hilda Lestrade, witnessed it. Maclain doubts his story. Norma longs to ask advice of Bunny Carter, president of the aircraft works where her stepson, Gilbert, is a designing engineer, but she dares not for fear of implicating Barbara in the murder. Barbara disappears. In Gilbert's workroom some one pushes a wardrobe on Norma. Col. Gray, head of the New York defense plans, commissions Maclain and his partner, Spud, to investigate spy activities in connection with the murder and the bombing sight Gilbert Tredwill has designed. Maclain tricks Hilda Lestrade into accusing Cameron of murder. With his dogs, Maclain goes to the Tredwill home, ostensibly to solve Barbara's disappearance. He discovers the plans for the bombing sight have been traced. Norma tells Maclain she thought the maid, Bella, was behind the wardrobe. When Maclain goes to question Bella he finds her—beheaded!

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

MORE VICTIMS.

The sergeant pivoted at the waist to look at Maclain. The captain had drawn a straight back chair up to the long table in the center of the room. He was sitting with his hands folded on the table edge, quiescent as a good scholar in school.

"What do you mean by potential victims?" King asked. "Are you hinting there may be more?"

In an end place on the settee, Bunny Carter squirmed uncomfortably, waiting for Maclain to reply. Bunny had arrived at The Crags shortly after dinner to be plunged into an evening of horror that would leave him with a lifetime memory. Now the sergeant was asking if Maclain expected more.

The captain's cheeks flushed faintly. "This murder struck fast enough. This girl was beheaded ——"

"Merciful heaven, Maclain," Thad burst out. "Can't you say killed—— murdered—anything but that. It's wearing on me."

"She's just as dead, Mr. Tredwill, whatever word we are forced to employ." The captain might have sounded callous except for the sympathy in his tone. "She was killed some time around six or seven, as far as we know—maybe later. I arrived here about four."

"What has that to do with it?" King asked sharply.

"Nothing perhaps." Maclain raised his head. Brief as the life of a shooting spark up the chimney the leaping fire brought a glint of flame to his sightless eyes. "Perhaps a lot. Bella may have been killed to prevent her talking to me."

"About what?"

"About the disappearance of Mr. Tredwill's daughter, Sergeant," the captain announced, choosing his words. "Barbara Tredwill vanished last night in New York City."

"So! Kidnapping!" The officer whirled around on Thad and Gil. "I'm investigating a murder here, believe it or not. Why was this kidnapping kept from me?"

"It wasn't," Thad told him with cold preciseness. "You know it now. This isn't a precinct station house. I've a right to withhold information, if I think my daughter's safety demands it. I've a right to wait until some one communicates with me."

"And who has?"

"No one, Sergt. King." Thad's big head sank down in his hands. For seconds the living room was still.

"It's nearly midnight." Bunny Carter looked at his watch and put it away. "My wife's not well. Is there any reason, Sergeant, for detaining me?"

"No," said King. "You can go."

Bunny rose and flexed his stiffened muscles. King looked at him reflectively. "You came over here this evening to talk with Gilbert Tredwill, didn't you?"

"Yes," said Bunny. "That's so."

"Did you see him right away?"

"He was downstairs in his workshop. I waited in here with Stacy, Mr. Tredwill's younger son——"

"Oh, yes." The sergeant opened a notebook and looked at it. "I remember now, Mr. Carter. You can go."

"Thanks." Bunny's round face grimaced. "You can reach me at the plant if you need me tomorrow, Sergt. King. You too, Capt. Maclain."

"Why should Maclain need you?" King snapped out.

"He's rather well known as an investigator," Bunny said meekly. "I thought he might be helping you."

"O," said King.

The captain covered the faintest of smiles with his hand. "The sergeant has enough problems, Mr. Carter, without adding me."

King left his post in front of the fire and walked to the door where he signaled Trooper Stinson in the hall to pass Bunny by.

"Now where are we?" Thad demanded when King came back into the room.

"Damned if I know." King leaned against the table by Maclain and said earnestly: "What do you make of this, Capt. Maclain? What did that girl want to tell you that would provoke any human to murder her that way?"

"If I could answer that last question, Bella would still be alive, Sergeant. This is all I can say: You've questioned every one in this house—and no one has an airtight alibi. I'd advise you to call in more men, Sergeant, enough to post one in every hall."

"But no one in The Crags——" Thad began brokenly.

Maclain stood up, flowed to his feet, with a motion so commanding that it dominated the room. "Your wife was in The Crags when she was attacked last night, Mr. Tredwill. Bella was asleep in her room in The Crags when she was murdered today. The Crags has become a battleground of a war. I'm warning Sergt. King to watch every one in this house, servants and all, as he's never watched before. When a clever killer has started to work the end is never in sight. The worst murders in the history of crime were committed by a 12 year old boy."

Gilbert Tredwill deposited the butt of his second cigaret in an ashtray beside him and turned to watch Helena conceal her smooth skin in the sleek satin of a nightgown.

She had undressed silently, carefully draping stockings and underwear over a chair, fussing wordlessly over her hair and makeup removal. Gilbert would have preferred her usual inconsequential chatter. When Helena undressed without speaking it was fair promise that sleep would follow a family row.

He lighted a third cigaret which he didn't want, making an elaborate ceremony of striking the match and throwing it away. Helena ignored his obvious dallying. He snubbed the cigaret after a single inhalation, and said: "What's the matter with you?"

She swung around from her dressing table as the the question had startled her beyond endurance. "I'm frightened, Gil." Her round blue eyes moved toward the bedroom door.

"Why?" he asked with masculine unreasonableness. Helena's remark aroused in him a quick irritation which he found it hard to account for.

"Well—why not?" Helena countered. "After what's happened here, Gil, you don't expect me to feel secure just because there's a policeman pacing up and down the hall." She turned back to her dressing table and began to brush her hair with quick, petulant strokes. "Let's get away from here, Gil. This place isn't good for either of us."

"My work's here, Helena—and my family."

"Voltaire said——"

"Don't quote things, darling, please."

Helena left the dressing table and sat down on the edge of her bed. She slipped the mules from her slender, high arched feet and turned to face Gil half way. "There's too much family, Gil. The more you love me, the less they'll like me. I'm an intruder and a foreigner. Families are like that. It's——"

"Nonsense, Helena. Who's said anything about——"

"No one has said anything—but you're changing, Gil, becoming watchful and hard. I want some time alone with you. Even in New York we're not alone."

"You're being difficult now," said Gil. "Thad shared the suite with us—but he paid all the expenses, too."

Helena slid into her bed and pulled the eiderdown quilt up to her chin. "I see."

"Is there some hidden meaning back of that remark?" Gil reached for another cigaret then decided against it. Instead, he sat watching his wife stonily.

"Not intentionally," said Helena. "It just seems out of place to find a Tredwill considering expenses. Usually one finds them flinging money about most recklessly. Is it because your father also pays the expenses of the household that you don't want to move from here?"

Churches Urge New Campaign for Prohibition

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 13 (AP).—The Federal Council of Churches today urged all church organizations in the nation to unite in promoting an educational campaign to bring back national prohibition.

Dr. Luther A. Weigle.

Such a campaign, the council suggested in a resolution adopted at closing sessions of its annual fall meeting, should be "designed to set forth the moral problems involved, especially those related to our schools, our churches, and safety on our highways, and indeed, the entire social order."

Another resolution adopted expressed grave concern over what was termed possible "exploitation by liquor interests and commercial vice" of men in military camps.

Dr. Luther A. Weigle, dean of Yale university's divinity school, was elected president of the council, nerve center of 24 denominations embracing 25,000,000 members. Dr. Weigle succeeds Dr. George A. Buttrick, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian church, New York. Dr. Albert A. Day, pastor of the First Methodist church, Pasadena, Cal., was chosen vice president.

Orchestra Managers to Meet Here Monday

The Orchestra Managers' association, composed of the men and women who handle the business arrangements for America's 16 major symphony orchestras, will meet in the Palmer House next Monday and Tuesday. The selection of Chicago for the annual meeting is a tribute to the golden jubilee season of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, whose manager, Henry E. Voegeli, has been associated with the orchestra for more than 40 years.

United Palestine Appeal Opens Conference Today

The Midwest Conference of the United Palestine Appeal will open a two day session today at the Palmer House. Among the subjects to be discussed will be the position of the Jewish community in Palestine. Officers for the midwest region will be named.

In wartime London a cooking editor keeps busy advising the populace about how to get along on drastically shortened rations. One of her most urgent problems these days is presented by the "grass widower," as she calls him, the man whose womenfolk have been evacuated from the city, and who is therefore left to cook for himself.

There are many such men in London now, and their diets have been largely made up of bread, cheese, and sausages, foods which they may prepare easily for themselves, but many of them are tiring of this diet, and these are some of the suggestions which the cooking editor of a London weekly has been offering them.

1. A quick dish of sheep's kidneys prepared thus: Scoop out a bread roll for each kidney and place the kidney in the hollow. Bake 20 minutes in a hot oven.

2. Cook sausages and onions together in milk.

3. Fry bacon and eggs "when you can get them."

4. She tells men not to be so wasteful as to light an oven for baking potatoes alone, and suggests that several men pool their week's meat coupons and prepare "a real Sunday dinner of roast joint and potatoes."

In reply to the questions of a good many readers about the "Maywood Fruit Cake" recipe which recently appeared in this column, the term "mixed fruit" refers to mixed candied fruit, which may be purchased ready prepared. Or one might buy citron, orange, and lemon peel and cut them up one's self. Candied pineapple and cherries and white raisins were included as other fruits. To readers who asked if the nuts are soaked overnight in the wine along with the fruit, the answer is no.

"I've mislaid my recipe for "Brazil Nut Cookies," which was printed in THE TRIBUNE about a year ago. I made them for Christmas cookies and we were all crazy about them and want some more," writes a Joliet reader. So here's the recipe, which others may like, too.

Brazil Nut Cookies.
[6 dozen.]

1 cup shortening
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¾ cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups ground Brazil nuts

Cream shortening and sugar, beat in egg, add vanilla. Sift flour and salt and mix with ground nuts. Work flour-nut mixture into first combination and pack into the barrel of a cookie press. Force from the press in various shapes. Bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. Remove from cookie sheet at once. The dough may be dropped by spoonfuls on an ungreased cookie sheet if a press isn't available.

Knitting Interferes with Girls' Studies, College Dean Says

Mount Carroll, Ill., Dec. 13 (AP).—Knitting needles interfere more with a college girl's education now than any other distraction. Dean Margaret E. Johnson of Frances Shimer college, a girl's junior college here, said so today.

"Those who aren't knitting for the American Red Cross are knitting for bundles for Britain chapter," she said.

"If a student starts talking about a number 5, 6, or 7 these days, she doesn't mean shoes, or stockings either. All she wants is a pair of new knitting needles."

Universal day—A day for serious consideration. Don't take any flights of fancy.

Birthdays—This is the birthday of King George of England and he certainly has had the difficulties which sometimes beset a person while they are going thru a four-year. He faces, as do those with birthdays today, a year of great changes and unexpected upsets which might shake the very foundations of his life. There will be much to cope with, calling for poise and confidence. A five-year can be a gamble, the breaks coming for you, or against you, but breaks coming in either case. Things have a way of happening all over the place in a five-year.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: My partner and I would appreciate your valued opinion on the following hand:

North, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.
Rubber bridge.

♣ J 10 8 6 5

SOUTH
♠ None

♦ J 9 6 5 3 2
♣ A K 7 4

"We were North and South, and the bidding went as follows:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 diamonds	2 spades
Pass	Pass	3 spades	4 spades
5 diamonds	Pass	6 diamonds	6 spades
Pass	Pass	7 diamonds	Pass
Pass	Pass

"Question: Was South justified in going to seven diamonds after North did not double either four spades or six spades, or was he much too optimistic in his bidding? It so happened that this hand made only four diamonds, due to the fact that the king and ten of diamonds were both on the wrong side, and the finesse for the queen of hearts also went wrong.—N. G., New York."

The extremely bad grand slam contract was the result of an unfortunate combination of faults on the parts of both North and South.

North's opening bid, South's first response, and North's pass over one spade were uniformly correct. South was a shade optimistic when he cue-bid the opponents' spade suit at the three level. His two and one-half honor tricks, reasonably strong support for partner's hearts, and thus far unsupported diamond suit, did not quite warrant this show of strength, but I am not inclined to be critical of this call. Any other bid at this point would have contained equal flaws.

The partnership bidding started for the rocks when North freely supported diamonds over West's four spade bid. I am positive that North did not intend this as a free bid. The fact remains, however, that since West had overcalled South's cue bid, South was in no need of rescuing, hence any action by North at this point was bound to be construed as voluntary. Considering the irreducible "minnyness" of North's opening heart bid, it must be obvious that he should never thereafter have made a voluntary bid. South cannot be blamed for going to six diamonds, which would have been a very fair contract if the cards had lain better.

As for the grand slam actually reached, both North and South must "take the rap" for this. North should have shown a little gumption and guarded against such a conclusion by doubling the six spade bid. Surely North, with his miserable holding, did not want to hear a seven diamond bid. Even after his responsibility avoiding pass, however, South most certainly should not have stretched to the thirteen trick level. He should have been satisfied to "whack" six spades.

Bury Hatchet and Agree in Raising Child

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1940: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"My husband and I disagree on the management of our two children. It is hard on the children and is creating more and more friction between us as the years go on," writes a mother.

"My husband believes children should be raised as he was, in the old fashioned way," writes another mother. "He thinks all my ideas are new fangled nonsense and are surely going to spoil our children. He's strict and often harsh, all for their 'own good' he says. He's turning the children from him, yet is jealous of their love for me. What can I do?"

These are typical letters. The fact that another kind of letter comes from husbands, telling similar stories, doesn't change the advice I'm going to give.

For the happiness of the home and the good of the children, parents must "bury the hatchet" [if hatchet there is], and find some sort of working basis. They must reach some sort of agreement. I know this is more easily said than done, but it is not impossible. A mother and father should be able to act like mature, intelligent, human beings. And at that, sometimes all that has stood in the way of a settlement is the fact that the two people concerned have never sat down and calmly faced what they're doing. Perhaps all they've ever done about it is to glare, or snap, or weep, or quarrel, or sulk! Perhaps they've been at odds just because they've never chosen a quiet moment, when emotion was absent [and the children, too], and talked things over.

IOWA RUNS OVER WABASH QUINTET 42 TO 22

OVERLIN BEATS BELLOISE; KEEPS SHARE OF TITLE

Gives Young Foe a Boxing Lesson.

Fight Decisions

At New York—Ken Overlin beat Steve Belloise [15]; Aaron Smith stopped Irish Eddie Dunne [3]; Eddie O'Leary beat Curley Nichols [6].
At Hollywood, Cal.—Billy Soose beat Jimmy Casino [10].
At Minneapolis, Minn.—Paul Hartnek beat Johnny Hanschen [10].

New York, Dec. 13 [Special].—Ken Overlin, ring veteran of Washington, D. C., who is recognized in New York and some other states as world middleweight champion, tonight retained his title in Madison Square Garden before 16,353 by giving ambitious young Steve Belloise of the Bronx a thoro boxing lesson.

Thru 15 rounds of unexciting fighting calling on the ring wisdom he has picked up in 13 years, Overlin handled his challenger about as he pleased, and effectively treated Belloise as a hard hitting but comparatively crude young rival.

Verdict Not Unanimous.

The result was that at the final bell Overlin won the decision over the lad who knocked him down and had him on the verge of a knockout in a previous title bout six weeks ago. The verdict was popular, altho it was not unanimous. Referee Arthur Donovan cast his ballot for Belloise, giving the Bronx challenger nine rounds, calling four for Overlin, and two even.

Judges Jack Potter and Bill Healy voted for Overlin. Potter called 10 rounds for Overlin, four for Belloise, and one even. Healy gave Overlin nine rounds, Belloise four, and called two even.

Jeer Both Fighters.

The unexciting nature of the battle was such that several times the throng jeered lustily, trying to urge Belloise on to the effort they expected of a challenger. But Belloise appeared helpless against the experienced ring veteran he faced.

In the fifteenth round, when the fighters became extremely considerate of each other, the onlookers jeered first one and then the other.

In their Nov. 1 battle, Belloise floored Overlin in the sixth and came within an eyelash of winning the New York title. But it was different tonight. Overlin kept his jaw out of range and went methodically about giving Belloise an artistic lacing.

Wins with Comparable Ease.

Battering Belloise about the body with long lefts and rights, jumping in with hooks and jabs and crosses, Overlin won with comparative ease.

Belloise, desperate when the battle passed the halfway mark, roused himself, too late. He spent most of the night cocking his right menacingly. The only time he came close was the second when, in one flurry, he shot two lefts and two rights to the jaw that shook Overlin.

Overlin weighed 159 pounds and Belloise 154.

ZALE-MAMAKOS BOUT ON

A 10 round nontitle bout between Middleweight Champion Tony Zale and Steve Mamakos was closed last night for presentation in Chicago Stadium Jan. 10. Matt Twomey, manager of Mamakos, had agreed to the match on Thursday, but Promoter Bill Rand withheld official announcement until after he was granted permission to rent the west side arena. This came when Mike Jacobs, New York promoter, finally released his option on the Jan. 10 date.

The Zale-Mamakos engagement has been sought ever since Steve defeated Milt Aron in the Coliseum on Nov. 25. Rand had considerable difficulty closing it due to opposition from Jacobs. After the encounter was sewed up it was revealed Jacobs also was bidding for Mamakos' services against the title holder in the west side arena on the same date.

Delays Christoforidis Match.

However, Sam Pian, one of Zale's managers, refused all overtures made by Jacobs because of a previous agreement he had made with Rand.

Earlier it was reported that Mamakos had been signed to box for Jacobs exclusively, but the rumor failed to stop Rand's negotiations for the Mamakos-Zale bout. He since has learned there is no truth to the report.

Closing of the Zale-Mamakos encounter will force postponement of a proposed title match involving Tony and Anton Christoforidis in Cleveland Jan. 14.

CENTRALIA PREP STAR SCORES 103 IN FOUR GAMES

Centralia, Ill., Dec. 13 (AP).—Dwight Eddleman, Centralia junior, tonight ran his basketball scoring record to 103 points in four games as his team defeated West Frankfort, 54 to 27. Eddleman, one of Illinois' leading prep players last year, registered 24 points against West Frankfort. His other totals were 28 points against Springfield, 26 against Vandalia, and 25 against East Peoria.

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 13.—The lowly substitute comes into his own. . . . Chick Hansen, 1941 captain-elect of the University of Utah football team, could not win a regular position with the varsity but he was honored over Izzy Spector, all-conference tackle, and Floyd Spendlove, all-conference wing back. . . . Rocky mountain district fans rate Paul Owens of Iowa State a better passer than Missouri's Paul Christman on the basis of their performances against Denver and Colorado this season. . . . When the sports editor of an Omaha newspaper received a picture of the Harvard [Neb.] High school football squad, he noticed there were five players named Yost, three of whom also were named Bill, listed in the caption. . . . "We're a bit bothered," the editor wired Coach Warren Garrison. . . . "YOU'RE bothered," replied Garrison. "What do you think I am? The identification is correct—three Bill Yosts, two other Yosts." . . . National Hockey league clubowners are watching with interest Detroit's experiment with an afternoon game with Montreal Sunday. . . . Manager Jack Adams shifted the contest from night to afternoon at the request of out-of-town fans. . . . Newspapermen who attended the recent minor league meetings in Atlanta claim that many clubs are in precarious financial condition. . . . Fewer player sales were made than at any convention in the last 10 years.

If anybody cares, the Missouri Athletic commission is fostering a series of elimination matches to determine the world wrestling championship. . . . Phil Weintraub, who has played with the Reds, Phillies and Giants, in addition to several minor league clubs, has notified his present owners, the Minneapolis Millers, that he has given up baseball to take a year round position with a Chicago jewelry firm. . . . Phil had one of the best years of his career in 1940, with a batting average of .347, 27 home runs, and 109 runs batted in. . . . The New York Daily News, which will send its team of Golden Gloves champions against Chicagoland's best in the Chicago Stadium March 26 in the annual inter-city competition, already has opened its entry lists. . . . Don Budge, tuning up his game for his annual winter tour, practices daily with Frankie Kovacs at the Berkeley Tennis cub. . . . Kovacs, who can play the game with the best of them when he's in the mood, has been winning most of the odd sets from Donald with a terrific backhand. . . . The wisenheimers out here are laying sucker bets that the Stanford-Nebraska game will be played four days before New Year's. . . . And so it will—basketball. . . . College of the Pacific, oldest in California, has installed those streamlined steel plate backboards in its new basketball pavilion. . . . Larger colleges and universities in the vicinity are reluctant to adopt the improved fixtures because of the "expense."

We Hope You Get It.

Every Christmas, Arch, I have called upon you to intervene with Santa Claus for me and each year he has granted your request. Five years ago I got my electric train with all the tunnels and lights; four years ago it was my first two-wheeler bike, three years ago a chemistry set, and so on. This year it's different; I don't want trains, bikes, or other toys. All I want is: To pick up THE TRIBUNE Christmas morning and read in 10 inch black headlines:

NELSON FLASHES INTO LEAD AT MIAMI WITH 134

Takes 2 Stroke Margin Over Ben Hogan.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP).—Byron Nelson, national P. G. A. champion, shot a 65 and took the $10,000 Miami open lead today with a 36 hole 134, six strokes better than par for the distance.

Nelson's score, one shot off the course record, sent him two strokes ahead of Ben Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., but there still was a possibility that he might have to share the top spot at the half way mark.

Falls to Finish Round.

Still out on the course when darkness fell was Clayton Heafner of Linville, N. C., needing par on two unfinished holes to tie Nelson at 134. Heafner, who scored a 68 yesterday, will play out his round tomorrow.

The P. G. A. champion, one under par with a first round 69, clipped five more strokes off regulation figures with deadly iron shots. He scored seven birdies.

Hogan, off to a bad start today after his opening 67, regained his putting touch for a 69. That broke a leadership deadlock with Ben Loving of Springfield, Mass., who shot a par 70 and dropped a stroke back of Hogan with 137 for 36 holes.

Snead Cards a 70.

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., winner of this tournament two out of the last three years, ruined a beautiful score by losing five strokes to par on four holes, but still carded a 70.

Snead's 139 left him even with Harold McSpaden of Winchester, Mass.; Claude Harmon of Orlando, Fla.; Mike Turnesa of Fairview, N. Y., and Jim Turnesa of Eastview, N. Y.

Ferrier's 138 gave him a five stroke lead over his closest amateur rival, Dick Chapman of New York, national amateur champion, and Earl Christiansen, Miami policeman. Chapman scored a 72 today for his 143, Christiansen a 71.

Dykes Still in Market for Outfielder, Second Baseman

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Altho it appeared the Boston, Washington, and Cleveland clubs had pulled a freezeout on him with their three cornered deal which shuffled a lot of athletes of no outstanding import, James Dykes, the White Sox manager, yesterday gave no sign that he felt a sudden drop in the temperature.

Dykes had tried to dicker with the three above named clubs during the baseball bazaar here early in the week and even tho thrown for a loss in each instance, he had hopes of eventual success.

But he still has hopes for the very simple reason that he wasn't interested in acquiring any of the ivory which Boston, Washington, and Cleveland passed back and forth in the quantity transaction.

Still Ready For Business.

Dykes, who is heading for his Philadelphia home today with the intention of returning next Thursday for the American league's annual invitational movie luncheon, still stands ready to do business with Washington and Cleveland. Boston, he claims, is out because of alleged pressure tactics in the Mike Kreevich for Roger Cramer swap which didn't materialize. In addition the St. Louis Browns remain listed under the head of future business in the Dykes' book.

Cramer has been moved to Washington and altho Dykes still says he doesn't want the ex-Athletic, even with the Boston angle erased, this attitude might be mere deception. Being short an outfielder Dykes naturally would welcome Cramer. Without the latter Washington also would be short in the outer precincts. But the whole thing could be easily arranged. Dykes could give an outfielder and a pitcher and receive in return a badly needed second baseman along with Cramer.

Contract Troubles Mount.

The White Sox contract troubles threatened to mount rapidly yesterday. The previous day Pitcher John Rigney failed to reach for a fountain pen when told of the 1941 salary the club had planned for him. Now Bill Dietrich, whom Dykes has mothered for several seasons, has announced in Philadelphia that he wants more because he is going to be a 20 game winner. From Arizona comes word that Thornton Lee, the lefty, and Tom Turner, second string catcher, are sending back their first offers.

The threatened deluge of balkers hasn't caused any alarm thus far in the Sox quarters. Some of the athletes always reject the initial bid, knowing full well that there is plenty of time and that they can always accept what they first refused.

NO PURGE IN CLEVELAND.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 13 (AP).—The trading of three non-rebels to the Boston Red Sox today quelled talk in baseball circles about a Cleveland purge of the players who openly revolted against Manager Oscar Vitt last summer.

Pitcher Joe Dobson and Infielder Odell Hale, two of the players sent east in the swap for Outfielder Gerry Walker, Pitcher Jim Bagby Jr., and Catcher Gene Desautels, were the most docile members of the turbulent Indians.

Catcher Frankie Pytlak, the third player in the deal, was a perennial holdout and his troubles with President Alva Bradley nullified any weight he could carry with his owner in seeking the ouster of Vitt.

Vitt finally was fired and replaced by Roger Peckinpaugh this fall as the outgrowth of the rebellion, which found 12 players personally carrying their demands to Bradley.

Peckinpaugh spiked new transactions and elimination of the rebels by commenting: "This trade gives us a strong, well balanced club. I'd be satisfied to start the season with what we have right now. Unless some club comes to us with a proposition we can't turn down, we are thru trading."

LAUNDRY WOMEN CHALLENGE ARMY TO 10TH CLEANING

West Point, Dec. 13 [Special].—Army, which has concluded one of the most disastrous football seasons in its history, today was challenged to a game against the women of the Cadets' laundry. The laundry women issued the dare to Capt. William Gillis of Army, which lost nine games. The gantlet, so to speak, was thrown at Gillis' feet when he opened his laundry bag. All the members of the laundry staff signed the missive.

Peewee Reese Pronounced Recovered from Fracture

New York, Dec. 13 [Special].—Peewee Reese, Brooklyn shortstop, is fully recovered from the broken heel bone which halted his career last August. That is the opinion of Reese's physician in Louisville, Ky., and the Dodger youth is flying here next Monday for a final okay from Dr. Frank Glenn, specialist at New York hospital. Immediately after the local examination, Peewee will go into preliminary training.

NOTRE DAME TO TEST WISCONSIN QUINTET TONIGHT

Madison, Wis., Dec. 13 [Special].—Wisconsin's basketball team is host to Notre Dame tomorrow night in what is expected to prove the hardest test for the Badgers thus far this season. Wisconsin has put in a hard week of practice under Coach Bud Foster with a noticeable improvement in the work of sophomores resulting. The Badgers scored victories over Ripon and Marquette in previous games.

Bob Alwin has recovered from a tooth infection and will start at one of the guard posts for Wisconsin tomorrow. Ted Strain, Gene Englund, Charles Epperson, and John Kotz are other probable starters.

Notre Dame, altho outmatched in height, is expected to furnish strong opposition. The Irish hold victories over Monmouth, Kalamazoo, and Illinois Wesleyan. Coach George Keogan of Notre Dame is expected to start the same lineup which defeated Illinois Wesleyan last week-end. This team includes: Capt. Eddie Riska and Jim Carnes, forwards; Frank Quinn, center; Larry Ryan and Bob Smith, guards. A squad of 12 made the trip for Notre Dame tonight, including:

FORWARDS—Capt. Riska, Sobek, Carnes, Pope, Butler, Yezerski.
CENTERS—Quinn, Singer.
GUARDS—Ryan, Smith, Del Zoppo, Engel.

KIMBROUGH SEES N. Y., FORDHAM; MUM ON PROS

New York, Dec. 13 [Special].—John Kimbrough, the Texas A. and M. full back, who was unanimous at his position in this autumn's all-star choices, spent today as the guest of the New York Yankees of the American Football league and as a visitor to Fordham university, whose Rams, John and his teammates will meet on New Year's day in the Cotton bowl game in Dallas, Tex.

Kimbrough refused to commit himself one way or the other about his ultimate, if any, affiliations either with the Yankees or the Chicago Cardinals, who drew him in the National Football league draft. Asked about his impressions of Fordham, John averred that they were the "biggest bunch of little fellows" he ever had seen. He said he was glad to meet such of the Ram stars as Eshmont, Filipowicz, Noble, and De Filippo, and was more than anxious to play them.

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 13 [Special].—Iowa's smooth working basketball team rolled over the Wabash college quintet here tonight for a 42 to 22 victory in a nonconference game played before 3,000.

The contest, which was supposed to prove a real test for Coach Rollie Williams' team, turned into a walkaway victory.

Little Vic Siegel, the Hawkeye captain, dropped in six points to start a late first half spurt that gave the Hawkeyes a 23 to 11 lead at half time.

Roy Greve, Wabash forward, carried away the top scoring honors of the evening, sinking five baskets and three free throws for 13 points. He turned out to be the only offensive threat the Little Giants could muster.

Coach Williams spared his regulars in the second half, and altho Iowa maintained its 20 point lead thruout, the contest turned into a slow and ragged affair. Lineups:

PUPIL VS. TEACHER

Chicago's Maroons will seek their first victory of the season in tonight's game with Illinois Institute of Technology in the University of Chicago fieldhouse. The game presents a pupil vs. teacher angle since Illinois Tech is coached by Remy Meyer who played basketball at Chicago under Coach Nels Norgren.

The fact that Illinois Tech's captain, Hank Slima, will be out of the game with a leg injury, has strengthened Chicago's chances of repeating the 52 to 27 victory the Maroons scored last year over Armour Tech, now Illinois Tech.

Capt. Joe Stampf, center, and Chuck Wagenberg, diminutive guard, are expected to lead Chicago's attack. Jack Fons and Fred Shaver will be at the forward posts and Bob Hixson at guard opposite Wagenberg. Tech's attack will largely be in the hands of Center Ray Lagodney, and Jack Byrne, a speedy left handed guard. Mike Carey and Howard Pendlebury, a pair of green forwards and Harry Sieg, a guard candidate, also will start for Illinois Tech.

The Maroons have played only one game, losing, 38 to 31, to Georgia. Illinois Tech has defeated Grand Rapids university 43 to 31, and was twice defeated, by Chicago Teachers, 34 to 20, and by Lake Forest college, 40 to 32. Lineups:

RAY HAYWORTH BROWNS' LATEST CATCHING CHOICE

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 13 (AP).—The Browns, determined there must be an unwanted experienced catcher somewhere, tonight beckoned to Ray Hayworth, 35 year old veteran who spent 11 years in the American league before going to the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1938.

William O. De Witt, vice president of the St. Louis American league club, said the Browns are negotiating for Hayworth, who recently was released by the New York Giants.

De Witt said there still was a possibility the Browns might land Rick Ferrell of Washington.

Jury Awards Hickory Hills Club $3,625 Compensation

A Circuit court jury before Judge Denis J. Normoyle late yesterday awarded compensation and damages totaling $3,625 to the Hickory Hills Golf club for a quarter mile long 17 foot strip of land condemned for the widening of 95th street near Roberts road. The strip is part of the club's 12th hole.

HAWKS SEEK TO SNAP TORONTO'S WINNING STREAK

Meet Leafs in First of Two Games Tonight.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 13 [Special].—The Chicago Blackhawks arrived today ready for an attempt to snap the Maple Leafs' six game winning streak in tomorrow night's National Hockey league encounter. The Hawks were the last team to beat the Leafs before the Toronto players launched their succession of victories—and the Chicagoans are now in a mood to do the trick again.

Altho Max Bentley was hurt so badly that he will be out for 10 days and Art Wiebe's knee injury was aggravated during the hard game with the Americans in New York last night, the Hawks refused to let their optimism droop. Bill Thoms will take Bentley's place. The lineup will be strengthened further by Mush March, who is due to arrive from Chicago tomorrow morning.

Play Again Tomorrow.

Both teams will jump to Chicago for another meeting Sunday evening in the Stadium. If the Leafs keep up the pace they've been setting, the Hawks will have their hands full during these two consecutive games. The Toronto sextet has scored 24 goals during their six victories for an average of four goals per game.

This scoring splurge has carried Sweeney Schriner to the top among the league's leading marksmen with nine goals. Hank Goldup is tied with Roy Conacher of Boston with eight.

Dahlstrom's Shots Decisive.

George Allen and Cully Dahlstrom have been doing the most scoring for the Hawks. Both have made six goals, but Dahlstrom has been knocking them in at particularly decisive moments. Two of his goals have won games and another earned a 2 to 2 tie last night in New York.

Wings Defeat Rangers, 3-2, After Brawls

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 13 (AP).—The Detroit Red Wings continued their mastery over the world champion New York Rangers tonight with a 3 to 2 overtime victory in a give-and-take battle highlighted by two free-take battle marked by two brawls.

Hostilities broke out in the second period. Bill Juzda, rookie ranger defenseman, bumped Gus Giesebrecht of the Wings, and the battle was on with eight players swinging away.

The second fight came four minutes before the end, Dutch Hiller of the Rangers and Eddie Wares of the Wings being the principals. Again teammates joined the battle and Referee Stewart suffered a cut on the foot before he effected a truce.

BRUINS TO PLAY TUNEUP GAME IN AURORA TONIGHT

The Chicago Bruins will invade Aurora tonight to meet the Phoenix quintet in a contest which should afford the stiff opposition desired by Coach Frank Linskey, prior to the Bruins' National Basketball league opener against the Firestones of Akron in the 132d Regiment armory Wednesday night.

The Firestones, defending champions, have in their lineup Johnny Moir and Tommy Wukovitz, the ex-Notre Dame stars, and Jack Ozburn, the Bradley college ace of 1937, ranking fourth, fifth, and sixth, respectively, among the league scorers. Moir and Wukovitz have 23 points each and Ozburn has 22 as a total for three games.

Matched against them will be the scoring efforts of Mike Novak, Wibs Kautz, and Bill Hapac, Chicago's best shots from the field.

Columbus, O., Dec. 13 (AP).—Dr. Earl P. Maxwell, 51 years old, former Ohio State university football star and nationally known football official, died tonight of a heart attack.

POSSIBILITY OF STATE BAR NO BAR TO FENGER

South Siders Continue Drills for Charity Game.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Fenger High school's football team yesterday continued preparations for its post-season game in Miami, Fla., Christmas day, undisturbed by published reports that it would be suspended from the Illinois State High School association for going thru with the charity contest. The association prohibits football contests after the first Saturday in December, an amendment passed in November, 1939.

Fenger's followers pointed out that the association does not hold jurisdiction over Chicago high schools. Football rules differ, the Public School league following the Western conference code, while state association elevens play interscholastic rules. Only 10 Chicago schools have joined the association for 1941, the dues having been increased from $2 to $20 for Chicago institutions.

Coach Palmer Puzzled.

Charles Palmer, Fenger coach, who was enjoying a brief rest following an unsuccessful attack to prevent the team from participating in the Miami game on grounds that it had played 13 contests this season, was puzzled by the latest reports. If the association planned some action against Fenger, it could have done so several weeks ago, he pointed out. The association has another rule prohibiting member teams from playing nonmembers. Fenger played several football games this season with schools not belonging to the state group.

Albert Willis, assistant secretary of the association, said there would be no action against Fenger until it has played the contest. The group, he said, would hold nothing against the Public School league since the post-season game was approved by Superintendent William H. Johnson and A. H. Pritzlaff, director of physical education.

Suspension Would Bar Fenger.

If suspended, Fenger would be unable to compete against members of the Suburban league as well as other teams in the state outside Chicago. It also would be barred from state championship basketball, track, swimming, tennis, and gymnastic events.

LANE SWIMMERS RETAIN 2 CITY PREP CROWNS

Lane Tech swimmers successfully defended their championships last night in the senior and junior divisions of the City league meet in Bartlett gym pool. The seniors scored 50 points, their closest rivals being Crane with 18, while the juniors counted 49 markers, 32 more than the runners-up, Sullivan, who finished with 17.

One junior and three senior records were broken in the meet. The outstanding performance was made by Henry Kozlowski of the winning seniors, when he broke the 11 year old mark in the 100 yard free style. His time was :18.4, two-tenths of a second better than that of Art Highland of Schurz in 1929.

MAYOR UNVEILS PLAN FOR FINEST AIRPORT DEPOT

Expects Chicago to Profit by Errors of Others.

BY WAYNE THOMIS.

Representatives of six of the seven commercial air lines operating regularly scheduled flights from Chicago airport yesterday heard Mayor Kelly outline his plan for providing this city with the world's finest airport depot or administration building. The new structure, the mayor said, will match the quality of the improved airport to be dedicated next year when the railroad tracks now bisecting its area are removed.

Full plans and blueprints of the new depot were produced for the first time at the meeting in the mayor's office. These revealed that Chicago, profiting by mistakes made at Tempelhof airport, Berlin; at Le Bourget field, Paris, and at LaGuardia field, New York, is to have an entirely new kind of building with a peculiar functional beauty of its own. In fact, Chicago's new terminal will set a new style.

Building to Be E-Shaped.

As conceived by the architectural firm of Burnham & Hammond, the terminal will form a vast "E," with the main structure parallel to Cicero avenue from 55th to 59th streets and 925 feet long. The rest of the "E" will be formed by wings that will jut westward. Those at the north and south ends of the main building will be 250 feet long. The central wing will be 325 feet long.

On both sides of each of the wings there will be loading stations for as many as 21 airplanes of the size of the Douglas DC-4 now in production for the country's air lines. The DC-4 will be approximately twice as large as the DC-3, which is the ship now used by most of the commercial lines, and will have a wingspread of 125 feet with seats for 28 to 42 passengers.

Not one of these planes is flying at present, but unless war or defense program requirements interfere with present plans, they will be in regular service early in 1942.

Plan with Eye to Future.

The architects, however, were not satisfied to plan a building merely to accommodate the next projected size of air liners. The areas for loading zones are to be large enough to accommodate simultaneously at least seven airplanes twice the size of DC-4s and nine more DC-4s. In commenting on this, the mayor said that at LaGuardia field the architects supposedly had taken into account developments of the next 10 years, but that within 9 months after the airport was opened it was inadequate to handle the airplane and passenger traffic.

There will be two loading levels for the main station and loading piers, or wings. The main level will be for passengers and their service. The ground level will be for cargo and baggage. Each wing will have ticket counters, toilets, restaurants, telegraph and telephone facilities, and entrances and exits not only to the field, but also to the car ramp.

Sightseeing Area Provided.

The view from the ground for spectators in the building is to be spoiled deliberately, the mayor said. But a second floor restaurant and sightseeing area will be provided to overcome this objection. Here again facilities of all sorts for comfort and ease of those who wish to watch activities at the field will be inherent parts of the building.

In the center, above the spectator level, will be a dome rising to a height of 75 feet. Offices for the federal airways traffic control, the airport control tower itself, and the weather bureau and airport management offices will be provided there. There, too, will be a terraced restaurant and club rooms.

To assist in realizing this plan, the mayor asked the air lines jointly to advance the city $400,000 with which to defray part of the estimated cost of $1,813,000 for the new structure and complete equipment. This advance would be "repaid" out of landing fees to be recorded but not charged against the individual lines until their respective shares are canceled.

$1,000,000 Loan Requested.

The mayor explained that he has submitted the entire project to Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, in Washington, D. C., with a verbal request for $1,000,000 for the project, the loan to be amortized over 25 years from income. No formal application, however, has yet been made. The other $413,000 would be provided thru a city sponsored Work Projects administration grant, the mayor said. The city council has approved the plans, he added.

The air line representatives, headed by W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, said the proposal sounded promising. They were given copies of the plans and promised to return with their replies next Wednesday. Most of the air lines already have indicated a willingness to make the advances requested.

Mae Robson Collapses; Olivia De Havilland Ill

Santa Fe, N. M., Dec. 13 (AP).—Mae Robson, 75 years old, motion picture actress, collapsed in a hotel tonight and was rushed to Albuquerque by ambulance. Her condition was reported as not serious, but Dr. Eugene Fiske advised that she be taken immediately to a lower altitude.

Earlier, Olivia De Havilland was hospitalized here with appendicitis. Both had arrived on a special train for a movie première. Later Miss De Havilland was taken to Albuquerque by ambulance where a special plane will fly her to Los Angeles.

ANOTHER PILOT TELLS OF ICING AT CRASH TIME

Describes His Landing at Airport.

The pilot of an airliner that alighted at Chicago airport only a few minutes before the crash of another ship at the edge of the field on Dec. 4, reported yesterday at a Civil Aeronautics board hearing on the accident that his plane had been well covered with ice and that it landed at a speed of 90 miles an hour. This is approximately the gliding speed of these airliners under normal conditions.

The witness was Capt. Edward Couples of Pennsylvania-Central Airlines. He put his ship safely on the airport at 5:32 p. m. The ill-fated plane that plunged to the ground 600 feet from the field, bringing death to 10 of 16 persons aboard, crashed at 5:48 p. m. Each of the airliners had followed the same procedure in "letting down" to the field thru a 6,000 foot cloud layer.

Tells of Turning Back.

"I left Chicago at 3:55 p. m. headed for Grand Rapids, Mich.," Capt. Couples told G. Grant Mason Jr., the Civil Aeronautics board member who is conducting the hearing. "I attempted the flight because pilots told me there were warmer temperatures aloft than on the ground where it was freezing."

"I went out for 15 minutes, found only cloud and still colder temperatures in the air and turned back. At 4:54 p. m. I was over Chicago airport awaiting my turn to land, cruising at 6,000 feet where I was picking up some ice.

"Finally I told airways traffic control [the agency controling aircraft traffic at Chicago field] that I would have to leave 6,000 because of ice accumulations. They cleared me to 4,000. That was worse—there was heavy ice there and I finally told them I'd have to come lower whether they cleared me or not.

"I got my approach clearance soon afterward, and came in to land. All the time I was up I had carburetor heat on and was using my de-icing boots intermittently [these boots knock ice off the leading edges of wings].

Finds Inch of Ice.

"On the leading edge of the wing over the landing lights I found there was an inch to an inch and a half of ice when I got on the ground. I had to use my windshield defrosters [streams of hot air played on the windshield from inside the airplanes] to keep it clear.

"After I got on the ground I found that three-eighths of an inch of ice was on the de-icer boot—accumulated when I turned off the boot to land. I was keeping 33 inches of manifold pressure [a large amount of power] and an air speed of 110 miles an hour all the way to the ground.

"I landed on the longest runway [east and west] and I came down at a steep angle. My airspeed showed 90 miles an hour when I quit flying and landed. I used up nearly three quarters of that runway before stopping."

Couples' airplane and the wrecked ship were both Douglas DC-3 planes of identical exterior dimensions, weights and equipment.

Ice Blamed for Stall.

Couples' testimony was considered especially pertinent because he had preceded the United Air Lines plane thru the same weather by only a few minutes. It is now indicated that the United plane stalled in its glide to the field because ice accumulation had increased its stalling speed from a normal 65 miles an hour to around 100 miles an hour.

Earlier in the day United Air Lines engineers and motor experts testified that an investigation of the wreckage had proved to their satisfaction that there was no failure of ship or engines prior to the accident.

SAILOR CATCHES WOMAN FALLING FROM 3D FLOOR

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—An ex-seaman six feet three tall and weighing 227 pounds saw a woman dangling from a third floor window sill today, hurdled a fence and got under the window in time to catch her as she fell.

Police said the woman, Miss Dorothy Guzzi, 22 years old, was merely bruised while the rescuer, Conrad C. Miller, 42, who said he was former heavyweight boxing champion of the navy, complained only of a sore shoulder.

MAYOR TELLS 3 POINT OBJECTIVE OF CHICAGO DEFENSE COMMISSION

Mayor Kelly yesterday announced three primary objectives of the proposed Chicago commission on national defense. They are:

1. To help place Chicago's industrial facilities behind the national defense program in the most effective manner possible.
2. To obtain Chicago its share of defense production orders.
3. To stimulate a healthy civic spirit in regard to national defense.

The mayor said the commission membership would include men from business, civic, labor, and cultural groups and that the proposal that such a body be formed would be given the city council as soon as details are completed.

"I am convinced," he said, "that we have here the facilities for producing national defense materials that other communities will have to start from scratch to obtain if they are given contracts which ought properly to come to Chicago."

BRAND REVEALS MARRIAGE TO HIS EX-WIFE'S MAID

Horace Brand, former publisher, who was divorced last September by Mrs. Erna Brand, disclosed yesterday in a hearing before Judge Rudolph Desort that he has remarried. His new wife, he said, was the personal maid of his former wife.

Brand had been brought into court on complaint of his former wife that he has failed to carry out the provisions of their divorce decree ordering him to turn over the home at 37 Cedar street and give her one-fifth of his famous coin collection, which has been valued at $1,000,000.

Questioned by Attorney Robert Cantwell, Brand said his new marriage took place last Nov. 27 at Denver, Colo. Joseph B. Stack, a New York coin expert, brought here to appraise the Brand collection, protested to Judge Desort that Brand was uncoöperative, and the court remarked:

"Just because some one here [with a glance at Brand] has a Mahatma Gandhi complex is no reason why this case should be continued indefinitely."

FIERY 'RIO RITA' TO BE PRESENTED ON W-G-N TONIGHT

Three Stars to Join in Gay Operetta.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The gay and romantic operetta "Rio Rita" with Marion Claire, Conrad Thibault, and Jose Mojica as the stars, will be presented on the Chicago Theater of the Air over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 10 o'clock tonight.

"Rio Rita," with its flashing color and fiery Mexican romance, has been called the "Carmen" of light opera.

Mojica, the leading movie and opera idol of Mexico, will play the part of Roberto, brother of Rita, to be portrayed by Miss Claire. Thibault, a noted baritone, will make his second appearance of the season on the Theater of the Air. He sang in "The Vagabond King" in October. He takes the leading male rôle in "Rio Rita," Capt. Jim Stewart of the Texas Rangers.

Two Songs Interpolated.

The original production gave Roberto no singing parts, but to enhance the festive note of the operetta two typical Mexican songs, "Granada" and "Tu Partida," have been interpolated for Mojica. Miss Claire, Mojica, Thibault, and other principals will wear costumes representative of their rôles. Ruth Slater will sing the rôle of Carmen.

Mojica has long been a favorite in Chicagoland. Miss Claire and he sang together when both were members of the Chicago Civic opera. Opera-goers heard him with the Chicago Opera this season in "Falstaff," "Pagliacci," "Salome," and "The Love of Three Kings." He has been popular in Spanish and Mexican pictures for almost a decade.

Many Lilting Numbers.

"Rio Rita," written by Harry Tierney and first produced by Florenz Ziegfeld in 1927, immediately captivated the public with its carefree, romantic music. Three hits—"Rio Rita," "March of the Rangers," and "The Kinkajou"—are well known. There are several other catchy tunes in the program.

William A. Bacher will produce the show with the W-G-N Orchestra and ensemble under the direction of Henry Weber. The dramatic company will include a group of outstanding W-G-N actors. Robert G. Trendler is choral master.

CARROZZO WIDOW PROTESTS $241,000 INCOME TAX CASE

Mrs. Julie Carrozzo of Michigan City, Ind., has forwarded to the board of tax appeals in Washington a protest against the treasury's claim that her late husband Michael owed a total of $241,000 income taxes for 1937 and 1938. Carrozzo, who was for many years czar of the street cleaners in Chicago, died last Aug. 4. His estate, including a large farm property at Michigan City, was estimated at more than $500,000.

Mrs. Carrozzo, as administrator, asserted that the government erred in taking Carrozzo's currency and check deposits to indicate net income. The treasury in Washington said it has not yet received formal notice of the filing of the protest.

ENJOIN EVANSTON FROM ENFORCING TAXI ORDINANCE

Judge Robert C. O'Connell issued a temporary injunction late yesterday restraining Evanston officials from enforcing the new taxicab ordinance which was passed by the Evanston council over the veto of Mayor Henry D. Penfield. The court order was issued in behalf of three of the suburb's major low rate cab companies.

The ordinance, which went into effect Monday, raises fares 15 to 30 per cent, prohibits drivers from picking up passengers at bus stands, and provides for a regulatory commission.

Attorney Leon Gross, who filed the injunction suit, charged the ordinance was unconstitutional. Since it has been in effect police have arrested more than 100 drivers for violating its provisions. Ald. Thomas Airth said the new commission will meet tomorrow to discuss the protests.

NORTH. PACIFIC LINE BUYS 2,500 FREIGHT CARS

Cost Is Placed at 7 Million Dollars.

Nonmilitary industrial activities overshadowed army and navy awards for defense materials yesterday. Outstanding was the announcement by the Northern Pacific Railway company that it had placed orders for 2,500 new freight cars at a cost of $7,000,000.

C. S. Denney orders 2,500 freight cars.

With the addition of yesterday's orders, the Northern Pacific now has $10,000,000 in rolling stock scheduled for delivery in 1941, including fourteen steam locomotives and six Diesel-electric switch engines which were ordered last month at a cost of more than $3,000,000.

Two Firms to Build Cars.

The American Car & Foundry company will build 1,000 of the box cars and 200 ballast cars in its St. Louis plant and will construct 300 coal cars for the Northern Pacific in its Huntington, W. Va. plant. The Pullman Standard Car & Manufacturing company received an order for 900 box cars from the railroad and will build them at Michigan City, Ind. The road will construct 100 cars in its Laurel, Mont., shops.

"Today's order makes a total of 4,500 new freight cars Northern Pacific has purchased in the last year at a total cost of more than $12,500,000," C. S. Denney, president, said. "Two thousand cars delivered last spring cost approximately $5,600,000. In expending these large sums for cars and locomotives we are making doubly certain that our equipment is adequate to meet all normal business requirements and national defense demands."

Raises Pig Iron Price.

A $1 boost in the base price of pig iron to $24 a ton was announced by the Interlake Iron corporation. The Youngstown Sheet & Tube company announced it will blow in its new and largest blast furnace next week. The furnace is rated at 1,000 tons daily production.

Union Carbide & Carbon corporation announced plans to erect one of the largest plastic plants in the country at Bound Brook, N. J. The new plant will cost between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000 and will triple the company's output of vinylite plastic.

Army and navy orders placed in the Chicago area yesterday totaled about $150,000. Among contracts to Chicago firms were Crown Office Supply company, $6,641, pencils; Automatic Pencil Sharpener company, division of Spengler-Loomis Manufacturing company, $12,618; Litho Equipment & Supply company, $4,323, cameras.

JUDGE ENJOINS TIMETRUST SALE OF CERTIFICATES

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 13 (AP).—Federal Judge Albert F. Sames granted the securities commission an injunction today against Timetrust, Inc., forbidding sale of any more certificates for Bank of America stock.

Judge Sames ruled the commission had shown that Timetrust and other defendants had "stabilized" the market price of the bank stock, but had failed to disclose that fact to purchasers. Timetrust had engaged in sale of certificates representing investment in Bank of America shares.

The decision held that the bank had aided in the sale of certificates by circulating literature and coaching salesmen, and that United States mails had been used in promoting sales. Untrue statements had been made, the court held, and omission had been made of material facts. Besides Timetrust, defendants were L. M. Giannini, J. M. Grant, Meredith Parker, R. W. Wood, and H. E. Blanchett.

BIG APARTMENT BUILDING SOLD ON SOUTH SIDE

What was reported to be one of the largest single apartment building transactions in several years was the purchase yesterday of the four story 98 suite structure at the southeast corner of Yates avenue and East 72d street, by the 72d-Yates Building corporation, for $340,000, according to revenue stamps on the deed. The seller was the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, with Ralph W. Applegate & Co., broker.

A 15 year purchase money mortgage for $306,000, 4½ per cent, was given in part payment, and the balance in cash.

Colin L. Campbell is president, and Lowell A. Lawson, secretary and treasurer of the buying corporation.

Eggs Tumble Over a Cent a Dozen in Futures Mart

Egg futures broke as much as 1.45 cents a dozen yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange as forecasts of warmer weather induced liquidation of holdings. At the close December deliveries were off 1.25 cents at 21.65 and January was 1.15 lower at 20.35 cents. Butter futures sank 0.50 to 0.60 cent a pound. December contracts finished with the smaller loss at 33.50 cents.

Court Rejects NLRB Plea to Enforce Order

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday denied the National Labor Relations board an order to enforce the board's order against the Automotive Maintenance Machinery company of North Chicago, Ill.

In a petition to the court, the labor board had requested the enforcement of an order which directed the company to "cease and desist" from dominating the A. M. M. C. O. Workers' association, from contributing to its financial support, from interfering with the employés' rights to self-organization, and from recognizing the organization as the employés' collective bargaining representative.

Three Ordered Reinstated.

Reinstatement of three former employés also was demanded in the order. The case originated with a complaint by a C. I. O. union, the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America.

The court's opinion read in part: "Nearly all the employés took the witness stand. Thirty-one out of 31 favored A. M. M. C. O. We do not go so far as to hold they could not be influenced. We merely hold their expressed wishes under oath, where full and free cross-examination was possible, may not be, as here, wholly ignored. Because of its so doing, we are convinced that the order of the board should not be enforced."

Upholds Delco-Remy Order.

In another petition by the labor board, the court granted an enforcement order in connection with the board's order against the Delco-Remy plant, at Anderson, Ind., of the General Motors corporation.

The corporation had been ordered to cease its domination or interference with the administration of an employés association called the Drea, or any other labor organization, from recognizing Drea as the employés' collective bargaining representative, and from maintaining surveillance of employés for the purpose of investigating union activities. The board also ordered the corporation to withdraw recognition of Drea.

AUTO FINANCE CASE GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 [Special].—The General Motors Acceptance corporation and two subsidiaries today asked the Supreme court to reverse a federal trade commission order characterizing as "misleading" the company's advertising of its "6 per cent plan" for automobile financing.

Demanding that the company abandon its method of advertising the plan, the commission alleged that the emphasis laid on the "6 per cent plan" induced automobile purchasers to believe they could buy on the instalment plan at that interest rate, whereas the actual rate was approximately 11½ per cent.

Representatives of the company argued before the Supreme court that the advertising was "painstakingly truthful, informative, and comprehensible." The advertisment showed how the unpaid balance, plus cost of insurance, could be multiplied by 6 per cent, and this would be the "whole" financing cost, with no extras, service charges, or anything else, the company argued.

FIGHTS SEAWAY AS BARRIER TO DEFENSE WORK

Industry Terms It Useless for Years.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—The National Association of Manufacturers today adopted a resolution opposing the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway and power project on the grounds that it would be uneconomical in times of peace and would obstruct the national defense program.

Completing of the navigation project would require at least eight years, the resolution said, and would be of no value during the present emergency. In addition, it was added, the project would seriously interfere with the defense program because it would use funds, labor, and materials needed for army and navy equipment.

No need for development of power in the region exists, the resolution said, and the power project would be "a wasteful duplication of existing economical and efficient utilities."

Abandonment Is Urged.

"The Congress of American Industry vigorously opposes construction of the project and urges the President and the congress definitely to abandon the plan," the resolution concluded.

In another resolution, the manufacturers condemned "extra legal methods of enforcement of federal laws." The resolution stated that many federal statutes regulating business activity, altho containing penalties as drastic as any found in criminal law, are experimental, ambiguous, and uncertain in the obligations imposed on management. The association declared that conduct prohibited by statute should be clearly defined, penalties should be commensurate with the seriousness of the violation, and only those penalties provided by statute should be imposed.

Another resolution set forth that any alteration of the nation's transportation system necessitated by the defense program should be made in harmony with the "principles of private enterprise."

Stand on Social Security.

The congress recommended that at present there should be "no basic changes" in the social security program.

In a resolution entitled "preparing for the future," the group declared that steps should be taken to meet international economic competition with the return of peace. Steps advocated were:

1. To restore to the United States congress its constitutional control over foreign commerce and the protection of American producers.

2. To protect American industry, labor, and agriculture from destructive foreign competition by nations employing low wages or forced labor, depreciated currencies or other means to invade domestic markets.

3. To protect all the products of the labor and the farms of America from competitive foreign products, whether dutiable or free, at least on the basis of American cost of production and marketing under American standards and wage levels.

Opposed as Vulnerable.

The New York State Waterways association today adopted a resolution opposing President Roosevelt's proposal to develop the St. Lawrence waterway and power project and declared "the seaway dams and locks would be most vulnerable to air attacks and sabotage."

"The association deplores the subterfuge employed by the proponents of the project in an attempt to classify it as a national defense emergency, when nothing could be farther from the fact," the resolution said.

"It has been obviously demonstrated thru the recent actions of the President in diverting $1,000,000 from an emergency defense fund to carry on further engineering studies of the St. Lawrence seaway, that he will use every means at his disposal to secure the construction of this ruinous project."

Spiegel Borrows 5 Million from Banks at 1½ Per Cent

Spiegel, Inc., announced yesterday that it had borrowed $5,000,000 from a group of 16 banks and trust companies at an interest rate of 1½ per cent. The loan, which is due Nov. 15, 1942, will be used to retire a like amount of 1½ per cent notes due June 30.

COTTON

Trading in cotton was light yesterday, but the undertone was firm due to buying by mills and houses with Bombay connections. Closing sales on the active futures were .02 to .06 cents a pound higher. Trading in December ceased at noon. There were tenders of 4,100 bales of cotton on December contracts in New York and 1,200 bales in New Orleans.

Establishment of a 10 million yen company to control importation and distribution of all raw cotton which must be purchased abroad was reported being considered by the Japanese ministry of commerce and industry. The new program is expected to go into effect next February.

Cash cotton closed .02 to .08 cent higher, with New York, 10.40 cents; New Orleans, 9.95 cents; Galveston, 9.85 cents, and Houston at 9.82 cents per pound. Futures prices follow:

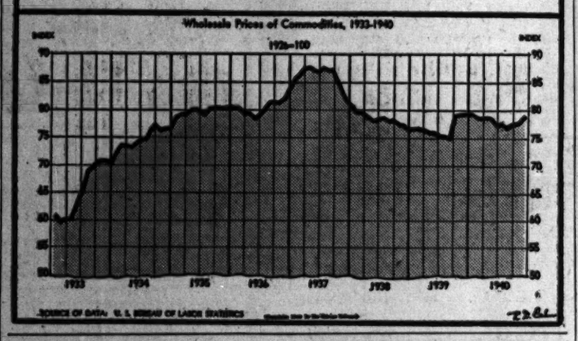
Commodity Prices Under the New Deal



Plane Output Lags 30 Pct., Says Knudsen

will be available from three different plants by midsummer.

Of airplanes, Knudsen said: "Frankly, we are not doing anything compared to the forecast made by the manufacturers and the commission in July, and our hoped-for production figures from Jan. 1, 1941, of 1,000 planes a month have to be scaled down by 30 per cent to be correct."

Regarding airplane types, he said: "There is no use worrying about the light planes—we can get them. On fighting planes we are in pretty fair shape, but bombing planes, from 16,000 pounds up to the heaviest, take time and they must be worked out for real production before we can get quantities."

"Greatest Production Problem."

The United States, Knudsen told the manufacturers, is confronted "with the greatest production problem of any country in modern times."

"The first half of 1941 is crucial," he added. "After that we are sure to be under way. But if you gentlemen can help us better the deliveries so that we can be in swing in the second quarter, you will have done your country an outstanding service of protection, both of its shores and of its institutions.

"Let each manufacturer utilize his gift for organization to help the total picture. Let us not lay in inventories which we don't need. Let us order our equipment to come in so as to balance operation. Get enough for one line and get it in operation without having an out-of-balance condition in the whole set-up. Sure, we have priorities, but the best way to have priorities is not to have to use them.

Forecasts, Asks Quick Action.

"And those of you who are tooled up now, please give us as much more of your quantities as is humanly possible. I would estimate very roughly that we are 20 to 25 per cent tooled up now, using the quantities as a base. I forecast that with your help we could be 80 per cent tooled up by April 1 and the balance by May 31. This is naturally an overall figure which cannot be applied to specific items, but I consider it possible to attain. I ask you to help get it."

Just before his conclusion, in which he said his audience represented America's "front line of defense," Knudsen said:

"I have not tried to paint the lily in this talk. I have tried to make it clear to you that I consider the defense effort to date not satisfactory enough to warant hopes that everything is all well. Maybe I haven't made it strong enough. However, I feel that when you made your delivery schedules there was probably some cushion in them for contingencies, strikes, and acts of God."

Gen. Wood Urges U. S. Peace.

Another speaker was Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman of the board of Sears, Roebuck & Co. He expressed vigorous opposition to American participation in the European war and repeated his assertion of two days ago before the New York board of trade that if the United States convinces the world that it refuses to be dragged into the war, the belligerents will arrive at a negotiated peace in the spring.

SEC. STIMSON WARNS STRIKES ARE DELAYING ARMY CAMP BUILDING

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 [Special].—Strikes in military construction work and in industries supplying material for the army camp expansion program, plus private competition for machinery and materials, were blamed today by Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson for postponement of original shedules for rapid expansion of the army.

Secretary Stimson's description of the delay in army housing work followed by one day his telling how delays in building operations had forced postponement of training plans from one week to 2½ months, with Camp Dix, N. J., the worst example.

"Strikes also had some effect in delaying the acquisition of material as well as in the construction itself," Secretary Stimson said.

Wage Row Checks Work.

Indiantown Gap, Pa., Dec. 13 (AP).—Construction work on barracks in the $6,000,000 improvement project at the Pennsylvania military reservation here ceased tonight for the week-end because of a deadlock on overtime wages. Officials said the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners [A. F. L.] is demanding double time for more than 40 hours work a week, whereas war department regulations stipulate time and one-half. The Saturday shift was discontinued, effective tomorrow, officials said, and work will continue only five days a week unless an agreement is concluded. The matter will be referred to the war department.

NEW BOSS PUT OVER DEFENSE CONSTRUCTION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 (AP).—The war department announced today that Lieut. Col. Brehon B. Somervell has been placed in command of its lagging $1,147,000,000 construction program.

The department said in a statement that Brig. Gen. Charles D. Hartman, who had been in charge of construction, entered Walter Reed hospital on Wednesday "for observation and treatment following a long period of overwork."

Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, said that delays in certain construction projects "had no bearing on the assignment of Col. Somervell." These delays, he added, had been due to causes beyond the control of the construction division. Col. Somervell recently has been WPA administrator in New York city.

Supreme Court Considers Texas Oil Proration Case

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 (AP).—Litigation involving validity of Texas railroad commission orders prorating the production of oil was taken under consideration today by the United States Supreme court. The orders were challenged by the Rowan and Nichols Oil company and the Humble Oil and Refining company.

CHICAGO STORE SALES SET NEW RECORD OF YEAR

Volume Also Rises Thruout Midwest.

The Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago said yesterday that the city's department stores were doing the largest volume of Christmas business since prior to the depression and that they sold more merchandise last week than in any previous week this year.

Sales in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district jumped 36 per cent over the preceding week and were 7.7 per cent ahead of the corresponding week last year. Sales in the four weeks ended Dec. 7 exceeded the volume in the corresponding 1939 period by 12.6 per cent.

Sales Ahead of 1937 Week.

Chicago stores, the report said, had the largest sales last week since the week ended Dec. 23, 1939. The Federal Reserve bank started keeping weekly tabulations on department store sales in 1937 and turnover last week was 7 per cent ahead of the corresponding period that year.

Chicago department store business last week was 4.3 per cent better than a year ago. In the four weeks ending Dec. 7, sales volume increased 9.1 per cent over the corresponding period in 1939.

Detroit Leads Other Cities.

A booming automobile industry, loaded with defense orders, helped boost business in Detroit department stores 17.9 per cent last week over the corresponding week last year, the largest gain for any city in the 7th district. Detroit stores did 21.5 per cent more business in the last four weeks than in the corresponding 1939 period.

Among other cities in the district reporting increased sales were Milwaukee with a gain of 8.9 per cent, and Indianapolis, where business was 7.2 per cent above a year ago. Other cities in the district did not fare so well, the aggregate business of stores outside the cities mentioned dropping 7.8 per cent.

Gain Is Nation-wide.

Department store business thruout the United States recorded a 5 per cent gain last week over a year earlier and was up 7 per cent for the last four weeks over the corresponding period last year, the fedrral reserve board announced.

On a unit basis, department store volume is the largest in history, it was reported. Prices on most merchandise are substantially lower than in 1929 and the stores are selling far more goods. However, because the prices are lower, the dollar volume of business will not exceed that of 1929.

DETROIT EDISON FILES BIG BOND REFUNDING ISSUE

Extra, Special Dividend List Is Increased

The year-end stream of dividend actions was unbroken yesterday and included declarations of extra or special payments by five companies and of the first disbursements this year by three others.

Directors of the First National Bank of Chicago, moreover, authorized a quarterly dividend of $2.50 a share, increasing the annual rate from $8 to $10. The board transferred $5,000,000 from undivided profits to surplus, making the latter $40,000,000. The capital stock of the bank remains at $30,000,000. The last financial statement showed undivided profits of $5,075,902.

The Laclede Steel company raised its dividend to 80 cents from the 15 cents of previous quarters this year. Seaboard Commercial corporation declared an extra dividend of 15 cents a share. The regular quarterly disbursements on common and 5 per cent preferred were ordered also.

Two Vote Specials.

The special dividends were ordered by Newport News Shipbuilding, 60 cents; Crum & Forster, 40 cents, and International Cellucotton Products company, 62½ cents. Regular quarterly payments were declared also. Directors of the Bank of Yorktown, N. Y., voted an extra disbursement of 50 cents with the usual 50 cents and also an extra compensation of one-half a month's salary for clerks.

The dividend of 20 cents announced by the Consolidated Retail Stores, Inc., was the first since 25 cents was paid, July 1, 1930. Brewster Aeronautical corporation, which last disbursed 10 cents, May 25, 1939, ordered a payment of 25 cents. Electric Power and Light corporation, whose last distribution was in January, 1933, declard dividends of 30 cents and 35 cents on the $6 and $7 preferred stock in arrears, respectively. STOCKS MOSTLY HIGHER IN MUCH HEAVIER TRADE

Tax Selling Is Reported Readily Absorbed.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Many parts of the stock list advanced today but some leaders lacked rising vigor. Hesitancy at the start faded when bidding came in for steels, utilities, amusements, and an assortment of senior issues. Gains ran to 2 points or so at the top altho these were reduced or cancelled in some cases at the close.

Activity was pronounced at intervals and transfers of 961,450 shares were the largest since Nov. 15. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .1 point at 44.3.

Tax Selling Absorbed.

The list again was confronted with light year-end tax selling thruout the session and the ability of the market as a whole to overcome this impediment was encouraging to bullish forces.

Livest performer was Commonwealth and Southern, which opened on a block of 70,800 shares, unchanged at the year's low of ¾. This was believed to have represented a tax sale. The stock improved later and finished up 1-16 at 13-16.

An increase in this week's automotive output, unusual at this time of year, failed to stimulate the motors. United States Steel and Bethlehem bounded in the forenoon on prospects of near capacity mill operations next week. They backed away at the last and ended down ⅛ each.

Chicago Stocks.

Prices edged upward yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Fifty-one issues advanced, 29 declined, and 29 were unchanged. Turnover was 39,000 shares.

McCord Radiator and Manufacturing, one of the volume leaders, set a 1940 high at 10, up 1½. Peaks were established also by Viking Pump at 31½, up 1½, and John R. Thompson at 6¾, up ½.

New York Bonds.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—Big blocks of the lower priced rails sold at advances running to around 4 points in a lively bond market today. Issues in the higher price brackets received a fair share of attention.

Dealers offered several reasons for the brisk rail buying. Freight haulage, as disclosed by carloadings figures, steadily has pointed upward lately, with the gain last week against seasonal expectations.

Another highspot was the fast advance in International Telephone loans on heavy turnover. The 5s rose 2½ to 32½, and the 4½s as much to 30¼.

United States government issues crowded the year's best prices with gains of as much as 11/32 point. In the foreign dollar list Italy 7s improved fractionally. French stamped 7½s of '41 dropped 4½.

Bank Stocks.

Chicago Title and Harris Trust shares advanced 2 points yesterday in Chicago bank stock trading. Continental Illinois gained half a point and La Salle National was 2 points lower.

TERM NEW LAWS UNNECESSARY ON COMPANY POLICY

Monopoly Quiz Experts Favor Education.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13 (AP).—Two economists, reporting to the monopoly committee on "bureocracy" in large corporations, said today that their findings clearly "do not point to the need for additional legislation."

M. E. Dimock reports no more "bureocracy" laws needed.

They suggested that instead of new laws, the committee "invite business to recognize more clearly the causes and cures of burocracy" and to consider the possibility of a new unit in the department of commerce to deal with "the problems of large scale organization and management" in an effort to increase industrial productivity.

Urge "Democratic" Control.

The report, entitled "burocracy and trusteeship in large corporations," was written by Marshall E. Dimock, a special assistant to the attorney general, and Howard K. Hyde.

The writers suggested that boards of directors be made effective by increasing the number of nonofficer members and by emphasizing the necessity of preserving democratic control in corporations.

The report proposed steps to discourage the holding of numerous directorships by one man, reducing the size of some boards, and increasing the remuneration of directors.

Recommend Publicity.

It also recommends publicizing the directors' qualifications, the number of directorships held by each, and their attendance at board meetings, using new legislation if necessary.

"Continual publicity should be given to production, sales, wages, and hours, employment, and the quality of goods," the report said.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

Hog prices rose to the highest level in three weeks yesterday as buyers bid actively for the reduced volume. Packers gave mostly 10 cents higher prices for most of the stock weighing less than 300 pounds, paying a top of $6.25 a hundredweight for selected lots of spring pigs and an average of $6.20.

After an uncertain start of the lamb trade, when a 10 cents higher top price of $9.60 was paid by shippers, the market weakened rapidly, finishing 15 to 25 cents lower.

Cattle receipts were very small, totaling only 1,000 head. However, demand was narrow and the supply changed hands at barely steady prices.

Hog receipts, 18,000; shipments, 1,000.
Cattle receipts, 1,000; shipments, 500.
Sheep receipts, 9,000; shipments, 1,500.
*Receipts include 300 cattle and 8,500 hogs direct to packers.

NARROWS BRIDGE.

What information do you have on the bonds of the Tacoma Narrows bridge, which collapsed last month? —J. E.

Answer: The Washington [State] Toll Bridge authority has outstanding $3,750,000 of Tacoma Narrows bridge 3 and 3¼ per cent revenue bonds due Sept. 1, 1960. The issue is secured by a first and exclusive lien on the tolls and other revenues of the bridge.

The bonds were offered to the public last Oct. 28. The suspension bridge was demolished 10 days later by the pounding of heavy winds. The bridge was insured against damage for $5,200,000 and against loss of revenue by use and occupancy insurance amounting to $240,000.

The toll bridge authority has indicated that the bridge will be rebuilt immediately. Original cost of the structure was estimated at $6,582,000, of which $2,832,000 was advanced by a Public Works administration grant and the remainder by the sale of bonds.

INDIAN MOTOCYCLE.

How is the Indian Motocycle company doing?—T. H.

Answer: The company's sales and net profit in the latest fiscal year were the largest in its history, based on a comparison of operating results in previous calendar years. The company has received considerable orders for military motorcycles.

†Net sales of $4,968,195 and net income of $703,083 were reported for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1940. Comparative results for the preceding year were not available because the company only this year changed its fiscal year from a calendar basis to a 12 month period ending Aug. 31. The company's plant and offices are in Springfield, Mass.

PARACHUTE SILK.

I read in the paper the other day that Cheney Brothers was given an army contract for one million yards of parachute silk. I had never heard of the company before. Is it a large concern?—M. E.

Answer: Cheney Brothers, South Manchester, Conn., has been manufacturing silk yarns and fabrics for more than 100 years. Besides silk dress, decorative, upholstery, and other fabrics, it makes silk products for industrial uses. In 1938 it set up a subsidiary to make parachute material.

The company's assets are valued at approximately 10 million dollars on the basis of the last available balance sheet. The company's stock is closely held.
